GOP Convention Primed For Gala Nixon Tribute

Reform Still Clouds Unity Tries On Floor

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Confident of victory and already slashing at George McGovern and the Democrats, the Republican National Convention will hand President Nixon renomination tonight with flag-waving exuberance.

Nixon's wife, daughters and sons-in-law and hundreds of delegates were ready to welcome him late today at Miami International Airport. He plans to rest at his vacation home at nearby Key Biscayne and watch on television the roll call of states that will formalize his third presidential nomination in 12 years. (See other stories, page 2; photos on page 2, 3, 28.)

A few hours before Nixon's arrival there were still a few signs of dissent both inside and outside the convention hall.

About 250 antiwar protesters marched a mile and a half along the resort city's strip of whitewashed hotels from their Flamingo Park campsite to the Fontainebleau Hotel, GOP convention headquarters, where they were greeted by a line of Florida highway patrolman stationed across both main driveways.

The protesters were there for a professed peaceful demonstration against a brunch honoring Mrs. Nixon and her two daughters.

The protestors milled about, burned portraits of Nixon and engaged in some minor shoving matches with policemen before heading back toward Flamingo. There were no arrests or injuries.

With the convention itself, some dissatisfaction still boiled among big state party leaders over their so far unsuccessful efforts to dilute rural, conservative domination at the party's next convention four years from now.

Led by New York and Pennsylvania, some Republican National Convention big-state delegations vowed a floor fight today over convention reform, an issue New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller said would "cast the die" for the GOP for decades.

The reformers planned to offer a complicated formula by Rep. Donald Steiger of Wisconsin. It would grant a significant number of bonus delegates to both small states which coted for a Republican presidential candidate and big states which elected GOP senators, senators and many congressmen.

If it were in effect for this convention, the number of delegates would be 2,175 instead of 1,348.

Gov. William G. Milliken of Michigan said his state was seeking a compromise with the reform measure approved by the convention's Rules Committee. But Michigan leaders said they were ready to fight, too.

New York and Pennsylvania, which together have 148 delegates to the current convention, both voted in state caucus to fight on the floor if big states did not win a better break in allocation of delegates for future conventions.

"This issue will cast the die for the form of the Republican Party for the next 20 to 30 years to come," Rockefeller said.

"I don't know how they could come up with a more unequitable plan," said a Pennsylvania leader, Sen. Richard Schweicker. Both he and Senate GOP Leader Hugh Scott said they would back a floor fight.

In developments inside, outside and behind the convention:

Michigan Gov. William G Milliken urged the third session of the convention to open its doors to more minorities, hinting that such reforms in the Democratic party made it more truly representative of the country. Unless the GOP opens its doors, he said in remarks prepared for this afternoon session, it "faces the danger that the day could come when those who are outside might better represent the country than those who are inside."

But House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, the convention's permanent chairman, said in prepared remarks this year's meeting is more representative "than ever before — 13 per cent young, 5 per cent black, 34 per cent of the stronger and sweeter sex."

WATERFRONT PROPOSAL — A Texas development firm has proposed this multimillion dollar plan for the 30-acre Schoonmaker property on the northern Sausalito waterfront. A motel, restaurant, marina and commercial area is proposed in the right third of the property while townhouses and condominiums predominate in the remainder. A public promenade sweeps along the waterfront, leading to another marina and boathouse facility at top left.

Novato Hits Joint Use Of Hamilton

Crowd Applauds Action On Commercial Flights

By FRANK FARRARA

To cheers and resounding applause from an overflow crowd of more than 250 persons, the Novato City Council last night voted 4-1 against joint civilian-military air use at Hamilton Air Force Base.

Faced with an emotionally charged audience and 4,610 signatures against joint use, the council responded with all-out opposition to commercial flights at the base.

Councilman George C. Quesada, the lone dissenter, objected to the timing of the move and warned the city "could wind up losing the ballgame."

During a three-hour public hearing, rapped to order on several occasions by Mayor F. Wayne Sartain, sentiment was overwhelmingly against joint use.

Residents said the proposed 20 flights a day would destroy the semi-rural character of Novato, bringing noise, air pollution and traffic, about 4,000 trips a day.

About a dozen representatives of local organizations and about a dozen individuals launched a verbal barrage against joint use to spurts of applause and some foot stamping.

The council voted first merely to withdraw its previous approval for four civilian flights daily by a 4-1 vote, with David Price Jones dissenting.

Jones said he felt this was "skirting the issue" and "diluting the effect" of council action. The council should simply "go on record as opposed to joint use at Hamilton Air Force Base," he said.

Then, the council voted 3-2 that the city become the "sole contracting agency for any joint use," a stronger stand than its previous bid for a "joint powers agreement" with the County of Marin.

Sartain, who believed the council "should be forthright and give true feelings," and Jones, who saw further "dilution" of council opposition, dissented.

Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste commented: "If I voted tonight as a member of the city council, I would oppose joint use."

Any chance that the matter would be put before the voters in November apparently faded, when the council failed to call for an election. The deadline for setting an election is today.

Councilman Fred F. Ruegg said it was apparent the "community has been polarized" against joint use and "since I represent the community I couldn't vote for joint use."

He said, however, he didn't think such matters should be decided emotionally, and asked residents "in the future to keep an open mind on issues like this and not be swayed."

Jones said: "I think this is a detriment to Novato to have joint use at Hamilton Air Force Base. I don't think once it started, it would stop at 20 flights a day. It would destroy

Big Sausalito Waterfront Building Plans Revealed

By PAT ANGLE

A Texas development company has announced plans for a multimillion-dollar development on the 30-acre Schoonmaker waterfront property in Sausalito, a project providing residential, commercial and recreational facilities on a vast scale.

Proposed by O'Meara-Chandler, the plan calls for 223 residential units, a motel, restaurant, commercial area and marina on the land between Napa and Spring streets in Marinship.

The firms envisions parking for 1,068 cars and would require 2.1 acres of bay fill.

"I think this development will certainly create a substantial income for the city," said T. L. Schoonmaker, president of the engineering firm which owns the land. "It is in keeping with the environment of the community and takes advantage of our magnificent waterfront vistas.

(Although the Texas company has not yet purchased the property —which includes 10 acres of water area — it has an option on the land.)

The San Francisco architectural firm of Worster, Bernardi and Emmons prepared the plans. The firm is the one which designed Ghirardelli Square in San Francisco and the Bank of America building in Sausalito.

Residential units would be divided into 87 townhouses and 136 condominium units and the motel would have 130 rooms. A 16,800-square-foot restaurant is planned and a 114-berth marina, a boatyard and 77,000 square feet of commercial space.

The plans were to be presented at 6 p.m. today to the Bay Conservation and Development Commission's design review board at 633 Battery Street in San Francisco. It will be the first official viewing of the plans, since O'Meara-Chandler has not yet applied to the City of Sausalito for a permit.

Large developments in Sausalito have stirred considerable public opposition there in recent months, and two — a 204-unit subdivision on Wolfback Ridge and a 380-unit apartment development on the American Distilling Co. site — are currently stalled because of such opposition.

The Schoonmaker Co., designers, assemblers and installers of diesel engine generator sets, has been a landmark on the Sausalito waterfront since 1848.

But the company filed for bankruptcy early last year, not to dissolve the firm but to present a plan to pay off its creditors. The company had been heavily engaged in defense contracts and Schoonmaker said at that time it had suffered substantial losses on Air Force contracts.

Since last March the firm — which once had 450 employees —has operated on the reduced scale concentrating on servicing and spare parts for the generator sets. Approximately 20 persons are now employed.

Schoonmaker said today the firm does not plan to end operations when the property is developed, but instead will move to another location "somewhere in Marin."

San Rafael Ends Ties With EOC

The San Rafael City Council last night unanimously voted to end its participation in the Marin County Economic Opportunity Council. (Other San Rafael City Council stories, page 9.)

The action came after Asst. City Mgr. and EOC representative William J. Bielser said that participation in the agency "no longer benefits San Rafael."

"No direct services are being provided to the poor of Marin County" by the EOC, Bielser declared, adding that the agency "stifles dissent".

The executive director of the EOC last week called for the ouster of Bielser and fellow board member J. Kevin Donovan after the pair sent a telegram to Gov. Ronald Reagan that urged EOC funding be withheld.

Bielser, who was instrumental in sparking the federal investigation into EOC misuse last year of about $100,000, has urged a complete reorganization of the agency.

Bielser, who became San Rafael's EOC representative last January, said he was "glad to be leaving" the agency.

McGovern Visits LBJ To Seek His Blessing

McGovern, the Democratic presidential nominee, and his running mate, R. Sargent Shriver, received the biggest welcome of their campaign Monday night in Austin when they arrived for today's 11:15 a.m. EDT appointment with Johnson.

McGovern barred newsmen from the meeting "in deference to President Johnson's privacy" so the dramatic confrontation between the two men, the first since they parted company over the Vietnam War in 1968, will be unrecorded except for carefully controlled still pictures.

During a brief airport news conference in Austin before flying to the LBD Ranch, McGovern said the meeting was merely going to be "a friendly visit. We're just going to discuss general matters about the campaign."

Though McGovern said he did not plan to ask Johnson to campaign actively for him, he said he thought personal appearances by the former President would help. Johnson also has suffered three heart attacks and possibly would not be able to campaign extensively.

An estimated 10,000 people— most of them students from the University of Texas and other nearby colleges—turned out to cheer McGovern as he warmly praised Johnson's record in ed-

Council Criticized As Corte Madera Budget Passes

By PAT PERRY

The Corte Madera Town Council last night set a 1972-73 tax rate of $1.37 per $100 assessed valuation, an increase of 34 cents over the previous year's rate. (Another Corte Madera Town Council story, page 3.)

But later, sitting as the Corte Madera Sanitary District board, the members set the district 1972-73 tax rate at 35 cents per $100, a drop from 60 cents last year.

So Corte Madera residents will pay a total tax rate of $1.72, an increase of 9 cents over this year's rate.

The final budget total of $1,271,163 for fiscal 1972-73 compared to this year's figure of $1,154,807.

The tax rate was unanimously set by the council after more than an hour of heated interchange with a standing-room-only audience.

Philip O. Sasso, a member of the town's board of adjustments and a director of the Mariner Cove Improvement Association, accused councilmen of "not doing their homework on the budget."

Claiming there were several mathematical errors in the original budget, Sasso said he had 22 years of financial experience and that he and Howard C. Harvey, vice-president of the Larkspur School District board, could not understand the budget.

"And he's treasurer of a major corporation and both of us got lost in allocations and numbers disappearing places," Sasso said.

Town Treasurer Frank Bigley said the working budget was an estimated document and all mathematical errors were corrected during budget hearings.

"I sat through seven or eight nights of budget meetings and they weren't corrected then," Sasso retorted.

The council spent much of its time trying to juggle the budget's figures to provide a $10,000 contingency reserve fund — an action they decided on at their Aug. 7 meeting when they deleted a $4,000 curb-ponding project and discussed adding 2 cents to the anticipated tax rate.

Councilman Edward W. Colthurst, who was absent at that meeting, strongly opposed setting up a reserve fund. Councilman Robert J. Flahive suggested the town ought to have something in hand in the event of an unforeseen emergency.

Their problem was accentuated because the budget total already called for a $1.35 tax rate and, on Friday, Bigley said, he was notified that the county library levy had jumped 2 cents, making a $1.37 tax rate an unavoidable minimum.

Tentative suggestions of a $1.39 tax rate brought forth oyth angry groans from the capacity audience, so the council devoted itself to finding an extra $6,000 in the budget to add to the $4,000 from the axed curb ponding.

Eight Die In Bomb At Station

BELFAST (UPI) — A 100-pound bomb exploded prematurely Tuesday as two gunmen were placing it in a Northern Ireland border customs post at Newry. The blast killed the two bombers and six other persons.

In addition to the eight killed, six other persons were injured and the brick customs building was destroyed.

The blast raised to 527 the number of persons killed in three years of sectarian and political violence in Ulster's six counties.

"I wish to God it was all over," said a young man who worked at the devastated customs post. "It doesn't really mean much when you read about it in Belfast. But these were my mates."

About 30 persons worked at the customs post outside Newry, 32 miles south of Belfast in County Down.

San Rafael Extends Building Moratorium

By NELS JOHNSON

The San Rafael City Council last night extended for eight months a building moratorium aimed at halting development incompatible with a new general plan to be prepared for the city.

The moratorium, passed for a four-month period last June 19 as an interim urgency measure, applies to all undeveloped land involving more than two acres or five lots. The extension will halt potentially incompatible development until June 19, 1973, and the moratorium may be extended for another year after that.

The unanimous action followed a joint meeting of the council and the city planning commission to clarify council policy regarding the ban and its companion use-permit procedure.

San Rafael Mayor C. Paul Bettini declared at the meeting thqt "there is not and never was intended to be" a blanket moratorium in San Rafael. The moratorium, he said, does not prevent anyone with an acceptable plan from developing property.

Bettini said that under the moratorium's use permit procedure, development proposals will be heard "when the type of land use proposed will be continued without question in a particular area." The proposal then will be considered on its merits, he said.

Bettini told the commission that any land proposed for development should be flat. "We're not going to be developing hilltops in any case," he said.

Proposed developments should have "substantially" less density than the maximum permitted under existing standards, he added.

Bettini said proposals would be considered "only for those areas where the city council, planning commission and pub-

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Survey Storm Damage

HONOLULU (UPI) — Army decontamination experts land on remote Johnston Island today to determine how the atoll and America's storehouse of lethal nerve and mustard gas withstood the fury of Hurricane Celeste.

An Army spokesman said there was absolutely no indication of any gas leakage during the pounding Sunday by 45-foot waves and 150-mile-per-hour winds.

The Air Force said that photos taken from a reconnaisance plane "show that wind took the roof off the TV-radio studio and a few other buildings," but that otherwise there was no apparent major damage to the storehouse of top-secret military equipment.

Sentenced To Hang

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (UPI) — Black Power leader Abdul Malik was found guilty of first degree murder yesterday and sentenced to hang.

Stanley Abbott, also accused in the murder of Joe Skerrit, a 24-year-old barber who was a member of a Black Power commune whose leader was Malik, was sentenced to 20 years of hard labor, after being found guilty of manslaughter.

No date was set for the hanging of Malik, whose crime was described by Judge Evan Rees as "the brutal, savage slaying of an innocent man."

Mailer Obey Orders

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mailers at The New York Times obeyed a court order and returned to work last night after a one-day work stoppage and the presses began rolling again.

With members of Local 6 of the New York Mailers Union back on the job packaging and routing papers from the presses to delivery trucks, today's editions reached the street on time.

Lawyers for the Times obtained an injunction yesterday, blocking a walkout by the mailers. The paper suspended publication of yesterday's edition after only 1,000 copies had been printed. Normal weekday circulation for the Times in 850,000.

Three Found Slain

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three young men were shot repeatedly and killed last night on a deserted stretch of beach used in the past as a lover's lane.

Detective Sgt. Bert Mills said the unidentified victims, who had apparently been led to the beach by their assailants and then shot, were discovered by two radio car patrolmen who spotted one of the victims, mortally wounded in the chest, staggering along Cross Bay Boulevard.

The officers then found the other two bodies, sprawled on the beach about 100 yards from the road, lying face down and bleeding from multiple wounds.

Non-Delegates Vary Their Miami Pitches

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Demonstrations by non-delegates to the Republican Convention Monday were colorful, sometimes spicy, varied and frequent. There was very little violence.

Highlights included a naked man turning cartwheels, a rock band composed of five women, two nude men with a topless girl, appearances by movie actress Jane Fonda and Black Panther Bobby Seale, and many, many speeches.

The activities got almost no coverage on national television and there was no indication that any of the delegates to the convention were paying attention.

As more than 1,000 ragged demonstrators listened to speeches outside the convention hall early Monday evening, they were watched by a stylishly dressed couple. The man and woman would not give their names but said they were from Paradise Valley, Ariz., and had come to watch the convention.

"This is nonsense," said the man, gesturing toward the protesters. "It's not going to influence anyone here."

The demonstrators themselves apparently were concerned about the image they were projecting, or the lack of it. News media received phone calls from various groups asking if they were going to have reporters at their scheduled events.

Sgt. Pete Corso, information officer of the Miami Beach Police Department, said protest groups "have indicated to us that they do want to be arrested on Wednesday, when they are planning civil disobedience acts."

Corso was asked if the police would make arrests.

"If their desire is to be arrested, we'll accommodate them," he replied.

The first and one of the largest protest marches of the day was staged by the Vietnam Veterans Against the War. A throng estimated at 1,500 persons, led by three veterans in wheel chairs, went to Miami Beach Senior High School where 800 Florida National Guard troops were billeted, on call in case of convention disorder.

The troops stayed inside the air conditioned building, watching through the windows as the demonstrators made speeches with bullhorns. Six protesters were arrested for climbing atop the roof of the four-level building where the guard's communications equipment was located.

The march by the veterans to the school was marked by two incidents. A young man disrobed and, wearing only his shoes, began spinning cartwheels in the street. He was arrested and charged with indecent exposure.

Also on the march, the Rev. Carl McIntire, a conservative and pro-war preacher and 40 of his followers ran into the antiwar group. The protesters shgut-ed antiwar slogans—some of them obscene—at the McIntire group. There was no response from the pro-war group and the demonstrators moved on.

Other groups marched to the convention hall. A woman's demonstration was led by a rock band. A march by Zippies protesting "repression" was highlighted when a braless young woman removed her blouse and two young men stripped completely. Police were in the area but made no move to arrest the disrobers or to order them to put their clothing back on, but after a period of time they redressed.

The antiwar groups gathered in front of the convention hall where in the early part of the evening they were joined by a large group of Cubans — estimated at between 1,000 and 1,500.

Miami Beach police, moving in quickly separated the Cubans and the young people. One brief fight broke out.

Barry Ignites The Old Spark

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—They were here to renominate a President who had steered the party through its sharpest turn to the left. But their hero for the day was a former presidential candidate who gave the GOP a disastrous wrench to the right.

"We want Barry!" the Republican convention delegates roared, repeatedly halting Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater in his delivery of a blistering speech they knew in their hearts was composed by Goldwater himself.

They applauded when Barry said President Nixon was ending the war in Vietnam, and that he could end it sooner if Democrats would quit messing in foreign affairs.

They cheered when he said he was tired of hearing what was wrong with America, and that he wanted Americans to start thinking about all that is right.

Recalling his own past tough stands against Communist aggressors over the world, they may have gulped a little at Goldwater's praise for Nixon's moves "toward building an understanding between the United States and our potential enemies ... Red China and the Soviet Union."

If they were a little surprised also to find Barry Goldwater, now 63, explaining the thought processes of youth, they were reassured at his diagnosis. ("When they say they want to do their own thing," Barry said, "they are telling us that they want to live without being guided by a ring in the nose.")

They heard him, if Hanoi didn't, when he served notice that George McGovern on the war doesn't speak for most Americans. They let loose the applause when he said Ramsey Clark had "almost never been right in his entire life."

Finally he got down to draft dodgers, and the delegates sensed that he was hitting his stride.

"I say to those young people who deserted America, stay where you are!" commanded Goldwater, in a double slap at amnesty talk and at McGovern's "come home America" theme. "You are no longer welcome in this country you turned your back on."

THE TEMPORARY CHAIRMAN

Reagan In The Limelight

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Four years after he battled Richard Nixon and lost, Gov. Ronald Reagan got his chance to address a Republican convention and lavishly praised his one-time foe as a President of "idealism with integrity."

In a tough speech specially aimed fr the ears of disenchanted Democrats watching on nationwide television, Reagan characterized Sen. George McGovern as a naive, impractical idealist and urged viewers to vote for Nixon.

"Our traditional two-party system has become a three-party system: Republican, McGovern and Democrat," Reagan said, emphasizing a theme heard throughout this convention.

Reagan, who ran against Nixon in 1968 for the presidential nomination, delivered a half-hour keynote-styled speech Monday night to the Republican Convention as its temporary chairman.

He was greeted by long applause from delegates before addressing them. The 96-member California delegation, largest in the hall, stood and held scores of handmade signs welcoming the governor to the podium.

Before riding to the hall on chartered buses for the convention's opening session, Californians were urged by delegation vice-chairman Thomas C. Reed of Ross to stay away from Flamingo Park, the demonstrator encampment.

"Keep your cool, keep your wits and don't get into any shouting matches with non-delegates," Reed told a delegation meeting. "They are not hippies, yippies or crazies. They are non-delegates. Leave it at that."

Holmes Tuttle, a wealthy Los Angeles auto dealer and a major Republican campaign contributor, passed the kitty for money and announced the delegation was in debt. He said morning coffee and donuts for delegation caucuses each day cost $1,000 alone.

Reagan, a former Democrat who switched party registrations a decade ago, said "millions of patriotic Democrats were disenfranchised in the take-over of their convention" by McGovern.

In a reference to former President Lyndon Johnson, Reagan said "a former President of the United States became a non-person. His years in the service of the party and nation were unmentioned.

"The former vice president (Hubert Humphrey) was dismissed with arrogant disrespect —unprecedented in American political history."

Haerle of Strawberry (center), who is serving on the Miami convention's rules committee. The conference came before Reagan was introduced last night as temporary chairman. (UPI Telephoto)

Reagan said although McGovern advertised himself as an idealist, the dictionary defined an idealist as "one who indulges in flights of fancy. To be practical, idealism must be accompanied by integrity."

McCloskey Monday was denied permission by the convention Credentials Committee to be represented by a New Mexico delegate of his choosing.

"I just have little sympathy with what he's trying to do," Reagan said of McCloskey. "He's just trying to find a forum to again express his disagreement with the administration."

Youngsters Cheer—On Cue, Too

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Republicans have spiced their convention with a goggle-eyed young cheering squad which marches to the GOP beat as avidly as protesters on the outside march against it.

The organizers, in turn, provide them a swimming pool, tennis court, rock bands and games to while away the hours until their next assignment.

Some 3,000 strong, the GOP youths paid their own way to Miami Beach to cheer on President Nixon and in the process, experience a smidgen of national politics.

The Nixon group is bused daily to what they call the "holding area" at Nautilus Junior High School. There they wait until they are assigned

Israelis, Arabs Exchange Fire Across Occupied Golan Heights

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Israeli and Arab gunners exchanged fire across the cease-fire line on the occupied Golan Heights early today, military sources in Tel Aviv said. No casualties or damage was reported.

The sources said several mortar shells fired from Syrian territory drew an answering barrage from the Israeli side. It was the second incident of its kind in 17 days. A similar exchange was reported from the occupied territory Aug. 5.

In Beirut, a French language newspaper said today relations between Egypt and Syria have become strained because of Damascus' refusal to oust Soviet military advisers.

President Anwar Sadat of Egypt last month ordered some 15,000 Soviets to go home and there was diplomatic speculation Syria would follow suit. However, President Hafez Assad of Syria said in a recent newspaper interview the Russians in his country would not be expelled and the newspaper L'Orient-Le Jour said today his decision caused relations between Damascus and Cairo to become cool.

The paper said relations were further strained when Egypt and Libya announced they would unite into a single nation within a year, excluding Syria.

In Amman, political sources said today Jordan's King Hussein Monday reshuffled his cabinet in a move to revitalize the country's economy and help him create a Palestinian state on the West Bank of the River Jordan..

Seven new ministers joined the cabinet formed by outgoing Prime Minister Ahmed Lawzi and two close aides of the king moved into the key portfolios of the interior and foreign affairs ministries.

The King said in a decree to Lawzi, charging him with forming a new government, that the cabinet should work toward uniting the East Bank and the Israeli-occupied West Bank.

Hussein earlier this year said the West Bank should become a semi-autonomous Palestinian state under his rule, following liberation from Israel.

The Palestinian cause, the king said, "is not a matter of politics to us, but a matter of life or death, existence or non-existence," the sources said.

GOP Fund Violations?

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The General Accounting Office (GAO) has found violations in the handling of nearly $500,000 by President Nixon's re-election committee, the Washington Post reported today.

Quoting "several reliable sources" the newspaper said GAO investigators found what they described as a $100,000 "campaign security fund." From this fund, it said, $25,000 was deposited in a bank account of one of the suspects in the alleged bugging and break-in at the Democratic National Committee.

The Post also said the investigators cited the Committee for Re-election of the President for failure to report all the funds it received after April 7, the effective date of a new campaign fund reporting law.

According to the sources, the $500,000 questioned by the investigators represents about $200,000 in unreported contributions, and "another couple hundred thousand dollars in unreported expenditures".

Stop Sign Ruling Is Delayed

The Mill Valley City Council last night postponed decision on a proposal to install a three-way stop sign at Sycamore and Nelson avenues until it could hear city staff recommendations.

Despite lengthy testimony from a neighborhood spokesman and a petition with 150 signatures, the council postponed action until it could hear from Police Chief Dan Terzich, who is conducting a traffic count at the corner.

The spokesman, Ralph Mead, said a stop sign would encourage motorists to go back onto Camino Alto, rather than cutting through Nelson Avenue en route to East Blithedale, would slow speeders and would preserve the "quality of life" in the neighborhood.

Unwilling to wait the three weeks that Terzich said he needed for the traffic study, the council continued the matter to its meeting Sept. 5.

The motion to continue was passed 4-1, with Councilman Gerlad J. Hood dissenting because, he said, he was prepared to vote last night.

The Mill Valley City Council also:

HI HO MOTEL — Heard from planning commissioner John De Becker that illegal filling of Richardson Bay, as recently prohibited by the Bay Conservation and Development Corporation, was being conducted near the Hi Ho Motel, along Highway 101. Hood agreed with De Becker and asked planning director Tom W. Newton for a report at the next meeting.

APPEALS — Defeated a motion by Councilman Robert E. Capron and seconded by Hood to review applications for permits recently granted by the planning commission to a Middle Eastern restaurant proposed at 22 Miller Avenue and for live entertainment at The Office cocktail lounge on Throckmorton Avenue.

SEWER WORK — Opened bids from three contractors for sewer work in the watershed area near Sycamore and East Blithedale avenues but continued the matter until today because the bids were based on inaccurate specifications.

ARCHITECTURAL — Appointed Dartmond Cherk and reappointed Jan Mountjoy, Calvin Platt and Robert Tanaka to the architectural advisory committee.

PARKS, RECREATION — Appointed Phyllis Joseph to a term on the parks and recreation commission which expires March 1973.

PARKING FEES — Decided against raising parking meter charges at this time from five cents to 10 cents per hour, after hearing chamber of commerce president Samuel W. Schneider report that no city in Marin County, except Sausalito charged 10 cents per hour for parking.

SEPTIC TANK — Granted approval to John Ehler to connect a private septic tank to his proposed two-bedroom house at 19 Fern Canyon Road, providing the installed tank meets the inspection requirements of the county health board.

FIRE GATES — Passed a resolution of intent to install fire gates across the openings to several fire trails on the north ridge to prevent cars and trucks from driving up and dumping garbage in the area.

ORDINANCES — Readopted without discussion three ordinances passed two weeks ago which City Mgr. William H. Cunningham said ought to be readopted in order to eliminate the possibility of legal challengers. The council quickly readopted ordinances regulating land fill around Upper Richardson Bay, punishments for violations of the animal code and membership on the youth commission.

NONRETURNABLES — Passed an ordinance requiring merchants selling soft drinks to display a sign reading, "The City of Mill Valley reminds you that buying beverages in returnable bottles saves the environment and may save you money." The council decided that signs must be provided by the merchant and posted within 30 days.

CUSHING DRIVE — Passed an ordinance which prohibits parking anywhere on Cushing Drive.

POLICE — Held a closed session at 7:30 p.m. to confer with city representative in pending contract talks with police employees.

MEETINGS — Adjouned to a budget session at 8 p.m. today in council chambers. Another budget session is scheduled at 8 p.m. tomorrow.

A Surprise For The City Council

To the apparent surprise of the Mill Valley City Council, the proprietor of the bus depot bookstore last night said she would rather forego a 50 per cent reduction in her monthly rent than assume responsibility for the maintenance of the outside of the Lytton Square landmark.

The proprietor, Janice Aranoff, said she wasn't interested in the lease agreement drawn up by City Attorney Leland H. Jordan which would obligate her regularly to paint and repair the outside walls and windows of the depot.

Under the proposed lease, Mrs. Aranoff would have been granted a reduction in rent from $250 per month to $125, for a period of six months. The council had previously stated that during the six-month period, the bookstore was expected to increase its gross sales and become able to afford a rent closer to the building's fair market value.

Mrs. Aranoff told the council sternly that she was not interested in making more profit. She said she resented the council's attitude toward her business and was prepared to look elsewhere for space to rent.

She said the council did not realize the services her business provides to the residents of Mill Valley. Among those services, she included: making change for bus travelers, selling bus tickets, offering information, supplying telephone booths, and staying open Saturdays and Sundays.

Councilman Robert E. Capron said he was greatly disappointed with the decision by Mrs. Aranoff. He said he interpreted her decision as an end to his hope to involve members of the community in a campaign to build the bookstore into a vital and profit-making venture.

Norman Black, a member of a committee appointed to study the depot, made three recommendations to the council. He urged the council to have the exterior repainted and repaired, to have the architectural advisory committee study possible landscaping of a mini-park adjacent to the former Pat and Joe's restaurant on Throckmorton Avenue and to have a police officer assigned to patrol the bookstore area "to make the area more conducive to business."

Black did not specify what he expected the patrolman to do, but it was clear that he expected a policeman to control the youths who frequently congregate near the entrance to the store.

Mill Valley Save-Space Land Deal

In an effort to preserve 23 acres of open space, the Mill Valley City Council last night approved a minor subdivision of a parcel owned by Mill Valley Community Church along the north side of Hillside Avenue between Elinor Avenue and Greenwood Way.

After subdividing its 23 acres, the church intends to retain a one-acre parcel for open air services and sell for $85,000 to Nature Conservancy the remaining 22 acres. Nature Conservancy, in turn, will offer its 22 acres to the city of Mill Valley on a four-year option to buy the property.

The transaction was worked out by Councilman Robert E. Capron as a method of freezing the land in an undeveloped state. If a regional park district is ever formed in Marin, the city can exercise its option, buy the parcel and, in turn, sell it to the new park district.

The plan had been scrutinized and approved recently by the city planning commission.

Councilman Robert E. Burton said he would vote for the subdivision, but was not happy with the complex arrangement. "I'm looking at this deal as a holding action only," Burton said.

Nature Conservancy is an organization that makes such land deals throughout the country in an effort to preserve open space from uncontrolled development.

Magee Back To His Old Court Acts

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — For the third time, Ruchel Magee spat on his court-appointed attorney Monday and for the 13th time he was removed to an adjoining cell into which the sounds of his pre-trial proceedings are piped.

The latest spitting came when Judge Morton R. Colvin ruled that Magee was not competent to act as his own lawyer but that a hearing would be held to determine whether he is competent to take part in his own defense.

Noting that Magee has flooded the court with 50 motions, Judge Colvin said most of them could have been filed a year ago.

"There must come a time when pre-trial motions come to an end and the courts must go about its business of conducting a trial," the judge said.

Magee, a San Quentin Prison convict, is charged with murder in connection with an aborted 1970 escape attempt from Superior Court in Marin County in which four persons, including Judge Harold J. Haley, were killed.

The campout, scheduled for Sept. 2 through 4, will be held at the 900-acre camp La Honda in the Santa Cruz Mountains.

Mill Valley: Wild Dogs Raise Fears

The Mill Valley City Council last night criticized the county humane society's lack of control of ferocious dogs that run loose in the city — particularly a pack of dogs that allegedly killed a Siamese cat and wounded a deer last Tuesday.

The criticism was leveled against the humane society after a group of agitated residents from the Cascade Drive area reported that a pack of dogs has been terrorizing their neighborhood for weeks.

The council was asked to take some action to prevent the dogs from endangering children in the area, but decided to postpone any decision until the city attorney could review a report from the humane society about the dogs.

The council began discussing only the single pack of dogs, but soon took on the broader problem of loose dogs throughout the city.

Councilman Robert E. Burton said the wildlife which had previously roamed around his neighborhood had been scared away by the dogs. "I think it's an outrage," Burton said.

Councilman Gerald J. Hood — who told the council he had recently pulled a pack of dogs off his 2-year-old child — said he has often had a hard time getting assistance from the humane society.

Addressing himself to the general nuisance of uncontrolled dogs, Councilman Edward J. Boessenecker suggested a limitation on the number of dogs in any one household, an increase in dog licensing fees and stricter leash laws.

Councilman Robert E. Capron asked City Attorney Leland H. Jordan to outline methods the council could adopt to restrain the dogs on Cascade Drive.

Jordan said he could seek a court order to have the dogs destroyed, but that he would hesitate to ask the court for such an order without a written report on the situation from the humane society.

He also said the police could be called in case of a real emergency.

The council continued the matter until its regular meeting Sept. 5 and Jordan was asked to report then on progress in obtaining a court order. The council also decided to invite an employee of the humane society to address the council.

Some GOP Delegates Seek Indictment Of Jane Fonda

She is criticized in the petitions for her visit to North Vietnam and her statements concerning the war.

Clarence E. Warner, the Oklahoma state GOP chairman, said Monday night he had 40 to 50 signatures on his petition. He said he got the idea for his petition from the Georgia delegation.

The petitions accuse Miss Fonda of giving "aid and comfort" to "the enemy" in the Indochinese war. Warner said he wished he could "add Ramsey Clark." The former Democratic attorney general also recently visited North Vietnam.

District Stance On School Site Sought

The Corte Madera Town Council decided last night to ask Mill Valley School District for its official position on seeing that a school site is designated by developers of Madera del Presidio. (Another Corte Madera Town Council story, page 1.)

Councilman Robert J. Flahive asked for the action, saying that although it was not the council's legal responsibility to ensure designation of a school site, the builder "is developing a community of over 500 units and a school is part of a neighborhood —it's our responsibility to be sure."

Councilman Edward W. Colthurst endorsed the town planning commission's action of Aug. 14 disclaiming jurisdiction over the problem, "let the school district do it" he said.

Flahive said he was concerned that children from the development would have to be bused into the Mill Valley district.

From the audience, C. William Thomas, chairman of the town's planning commission, said it was advised it had no jurisdiction on the matter, and he understood that the Mill Valley district had no intention of ever building a school in the Madera del Presidio area.

Town Atty. Albert Bianchi confirmed that the town has no authority to require developers to offer a school site.

The Corte Madera Town Council also:

TOWN MANAGER — Authorized Town Mgr. Ronald E. Bartels to attend a conference of the Institute of City Managers Association, in Minneapolis, Sept. 17 - 21, with estimated expenses of $475; after protests of the expenditure from the audience, voted to have Bartels make a verbal report to the council after the conference.

SOLID WASTE — Decided to write the county director of public works, Ray W. Foreaker Jr., questioning the proportional representation of cities to special interest groups on the proposed countywide solid waste management study committee.

QUARRY SITE — Delayed until the Sept. 18 meeting considering Sedway-Cooke planning consultants' report on a rezoning application for the quarry site; the applicants' attorney had requested the delay.

CHRISTMAS TREE HILL — Discussed a progress report from Fire Chief Frank L. Nelson on fire fighting problems. Dietrich Stroh, representing the Marin Municipal Water District said possible solutions would be presented at the district's Aug. 30 board meeting, including interconnection between the present 12,000 and 30,000-gallon water storage tanks, and the possibility of erecting a 300,000-gallon tank on top of Christmas Tree Hill.

BALLOT — Approved a ballot measure argument on making the town clerk and treasurer positions appointive rather than elective; the election to be consolidated with the Nov. 7 general election.

DELEGATES — Designated Mayor Holmes S. Norville and Councilman Herber C. Leney as delegate and alternate to the annual conference of the League of California Cities, Oct. 15 - 18.

ASSESSMENT — Approved a petition for an underground utilities assessment district for construction of a storm water pump station in the Fifer tract on Lucky Drive.

SANITARY — Sitting as the Corte Madera Sanitary District board, approved annexation of the Wertheimer property in the Ranch Road area to the district.

Living-Cost Rise In 5-Month High

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The cost of living rose 0.4 per cent in July, its biggest jump in five months, the Labor Department said today. Sharply higher food prices, especially for meat, were blamed.

The department's Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) said almost two-thirds of the increase in its Consumer Price Index (CPI) was caused by a 1.2 per cent jump in the cost of food in grocery stores.

The higher grocery prices reflected recent sharp upturns in wholesale food prices. Meats, poultry and fish showed a 2.8 per cent increase.

The overall increase in July was exceeded this year only by the 0.5 per cent jump in February. It left the index 3 per cent above a year ago.

But the BLS said average weekly earnings of workers increased more than enough in July to keep up with the rising cost of living, with the purchasing power of their gross weekly earnings increasing 0.4 per cent.

Actual average gross weekly earnings increased $1.09 in July to $136.47, due to a 1-cent increase in hourly earnings and a 12-minute longer work week. After adjustment for changes in consumer prices, real weekly earnings were 0.4 per cent above June and 3.5 per cent above a year earlier.

An administration spokesman, Assistant Treasury Secretary Edgar R. Fiedler, called the July report "a mixed bag of information on recent price developments."

Fiedler said at a news conference that the 0.4 per cent increase was higher than recent months and too high to meet President Nixon's goal of reducing inflation to 3 per cent or less by the end of this year.

But taking a longer view, he said, consumer prices have increased at an annual rate of only 3.3 per cent during the past three months and at a 2.4 per cent rate over the past five months, compared with a 6.1 per cent increase in 1969, 5.5 per cent in 1970 and a 3.8 per cent annual rate for the first eight months of 1971.

"Thus, over the past three years the inflation rate for prices paid by the consumer has been cut in half," Fiedler said. "Looking ahead over the remainder of 1972, we expect to see further signs of a cutback in the pace of inflation, he said.

"One such sign is visible now: prices paid for cattle on the hoof are down moer than 10 per cent from their peak in mid-July.

"This decline at the feed lot should soon be translated into lower prices for steaks, chops and hamburger at the meat counter," he said, but quickly added "that if housewives across the country are like my wife —and I am sure they are —they will take a 'seeing is believing' attitude toward that last statement."

While food prices were shooting upward, prices for commodities other than food remained unchanged in July, the first time in six months there had not been an increase. Nonfood commodity prices, however, normally decline in July. Prices for services went up 0.3 per cent, about average for the past year.

Prices for fruits and vegetables went up 0.9 per cent last month. But not all food prices increased. Dairy product prices went down 0.2 per cent and prices for cereals and bakery products declined 0.1 per cent.

In nonfood items, prices rose for gasoline, houses, used cars, alcoholic beverages and some house furnishings such as carpets, table lamps and dinnerware.

But while used car prices were increasing 0.6 per cent, new car prices declined 0.3 per cent although this was a smaller decline than usual in July.

The BLS said price declines resulted from summer clearance sales on furniture, textile house furnishings and clothing. Prices for men's and boys' clothing went down 1.2 per cent, women's and girls clothing prices 1.1 per cent and shoes 0.1 per cent.

There were also higher prices for rent, medical and dental services and transportation.

Novato Hits Joint Use Of Hamilton

the rustic-rural atmosphere and you have to look at what happened to San Jose."

Chairman William W. Schwartzer of the Marin County Aviation Commission was met with groans when he said that "no one has come up with any evidence that the proposed use will have adverse effect on the environment."

Audience murmuring and a few boos cropped up when Robert Harrison of the Marin County Planning Department told of a study indicating that noise pollution would be minimal and no air pollution problems were anticipated.

Mayor Sartain rapped his gavel and Quesada said: "This isn't going to be a mob or rabble. This is a democratic hearing." The mayor declared that if order wasn't kept, the room would be cleared.

Schwartzer said that commercial flights would take about 500 cars off the roads between Marin and San Francisco airport, would be a "major economic asset" to Marin, and would provide "strong justification" for maintaining the base as a military installation.

Schwartzer said: "Don't take a 'no' position and turn your back on it," and advised against "depriving yourself of the opportunity of working with the county."

George Galvin of Hughes Air West, one of the two firms seeking to run West Coast flights from the base, said the firm has proposed only four flights a day, two to Los Angeles and two to Portland and Seattle. Hughes Air West would install passenger handling facilities, he said.

There was strong public protest against the proposal for 20 flights a day from the base, as compared to the original proposal for four commuter flights.

Former Mayor Joseph D. Gargiulo said he was sorry the "door was opened" by the council when it approved the four flights.

Some of the comments from the residents opposing joint use were:

Gail Wilhelm, representing the Novato Branch of the American Association of University Women: "It would be in conflict with the express desire of the community to maintain its semi-rural character."

Lester Shorter, president of Bel Marin Keys Homeowners Association: "The existing proposal could only be the foot in the door."

Jerry A. Cannon, representing the North Marin Chapter of the Marin Conservation League: "We need an environmental impact statement."

Joseph Seminario, representing Marin Alert and saying he had 34 petitions signed by residents of other Marin communities: "I feel Peter Progress and his wife sold all his pollution to San Jose and has moved to Marin County."

Guthrie R. Greene, president of the North Marin Federation of Homeowners, presenting petitions circulated by homeowners throughout Novato: "Last year we went along on four flights a day and put trust and confidence in local government, city and county, and find this doesn't work all the time."

The council heard similar protest from representatives of the Black Point Improvement Club, South Novato Homeowners Association, and received resolutions against joint use from the city planning commission, city environmental quality committee and city airport study group.

John A. Trumbull, presenting a minority report from the city's airport study committee, said there were many unanswered questions, but he would be "loath to write off an unknown amount of sales tax, revenue and air support jobs."

Two speakers, Benjamin R. Ostlind of San Rafael, former aviation commissioner and aviation enthusiast, and Phillip Coady of 747 Bradley Avenue, Novato contended the information that has been getting to the public is inaccurate.

Ostlind said the 20 flights (40 operations a day) wouldn't be a 100 per cent increase in flights as sometimes stated, but a 22 per cent increase.

Coady said the physical limitations at the base "make it impractical if not impossible" for it to become a major airport as some people fear.

The Air Force has only approved four flights, and "might not even" approve the 20 flights proposed. In any case, he said, 20 flights would have "little environmental or ecological impact."

The council adjourned to its regular meeting at 8 p.m. today at the Novato Community House.

Avenue. He said the Marin Municipal Water District had not budgeted for its matching share of the project.

But several Manzanita Avenue residents rose to protest. Harold and Gloria Bartlett said they had not even been aware the fire line was inadequate.

Joan Vaughn, who said she lives next door to the Lutheran Church on Manzanita, voiced her concern at the lack of increased fire protection, while Edward Bland told the council it did not need a "slush fund" since it could get emergency money from other sources.

One solution to the problem, that there be no reserve fund at all, got the approval of councilmen Colthurst and Herber C. Leney, while Flahive, Mayor Holmes S. Norville and Harold B. Wagstaff opposed the motion.

Harvey asked the council to consider taking some of the $59,000 budgeted for "conferences, training, dues subscriptions and contractual services" to provide a reserve fund.

In the end councilmen reached a compromise when Flahive proposed that the Manzanita fire line project be left untouched and that the $4,000 curb ponding project be deleted and put into a $5,000 contingency reserve fund.

Norville and Wagstaff voted in favor, Colthurst and Leney dissented.

Asked where the extra $1,000 would come from, Wagstaff said from the conferences and training account — to loud applause by the audience.

Metzger Trial Date Scheduled

Despite protests of his attorney, who wanted the case postponed at least until next year, a trial date yesterday was scheduled for the week of Oct. 30 for Michael H. Metzger, an attorney accused of having drugs and narcotics at his Sausalito home.

Judge Samuel Gardiner of Marin Superior Court in scheduling the date ignored requests by William O. Weissich that the case be continued until Metzger completes trials he has scheduled for clients.

Weissich said today he still plans to appeal a decision by former Judge Thomas F. Keating, who refused to dismiss charges against Metzger, a formgrounds an informant in the case may have lied.

Attorneys for etzger, a former federal prosecutor, have claimed narcotics agents were so eager to arrest Metzger that they committed perjury.

Metzger was arrested after an intensive search of his hillside home in December. He has admitted LSD, cocaine, marijuana and hashish found in a safe belonged to him but said agents planted some marijuana before they came upon the cache.

The attorney has claimed agents were after him because he had embarrassed several by calling them perjurers during trials.

spite the Nixon victory they anticipate.

Clark MacGregor, Nixon's campaign manager, said gifts of money from Republicans were slowing down because party members were so confident of victory they believed Nixon did not need money.

Today's late-morning demonstration, led by distaff members of the Students for a Democratic Society, was announced as a protest against sexism, as well as other grievances.

Dixie School Signups Listed

The Dixie School District will register new students from Aug. 28 through Aug. 31 at each of the 10 district schools.

Hours of registration are 9 a.m. to 12 noon and 1 p.m. to 3 p.m., according to Supt. Clifford W. Campbell. Minimum age for admission to kindergarten is four years, nine months and for first grade, 5 years, nine months on or before Sept. 1, Campbell said.

The law requires all children must be immunized against poliomyelitis, rubella, and diphtheria-pertussis-tetanus, he noted.

Rec Board Eyes Food Sales Offer

The Strawberry Recreation District board last night appointed a committee to look into a money-raising proposition by McDonald's Restaurants, according to Manuel K. Lahua, board secretary.

Jane Brown and Thomas Miller, board members, were named to study a proposal that the board sell, for $1 apiece, food tickets usable at McDonald's, splitting the take with the restaurant chain, Lahua said. He said McDonald's does this nationwide as public relations.

The board agreed to send out a newsletter reminding possible candidates to the board that Sept. 1 is the deadline for filing for one of two positions at the Nov. 7 general election. Lahua and Mrs. Brown's terms are up and they have filed for re-election, he said.

lic are in very substantial agreement" that the land use will be compatible with the new general plan.

He described the moratorium as a "screening process" useful for reflecting current community standards in the new general plan. He added that the city on Saturday would be interviewing consulting firms to prepare the new plan.

Two of four commissioners present at the 45-minute briefing said they believed the moratorium was unnecessary.

Commission chairman Joseph J. Garbarino said he would have preferred a ban on rezoning rather than an outright moratorium.

"Why didn't we just raise the lot size needed for development?" wondered Commissioner Thomas R. O'Toole. Such an action "would have given the property owner a better break from the tax assessor," he said.

Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner said a lot increase would have neglected problems of traffic, distribution and view. "It just wouldn't have done the job," he said. He predicted that the new general plan would be completed by late 1973.

New Students Can Register On Thursday

Appointment times can be arranged by telephoning the school, he said.

An orientation and "get acquainted" day for all seventh grade pupils will be held at the school from 9 to 11:30 a.m. Sept. 6, Moore said.

Pupils will meet teachers, receive handbooks and locker assignments, tour the school, attend an assembly and have a shortened schedule of classes. Pupils are to receive copies of their class schedules by Sept. 1, Moore said.

Fischer Opens With Surprise

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Bobby Fischer arrived almost punctually today for the 17th game in his world championship chess match with Boris Spassky after threatening to quit the match.

Leading Spassky 9½ to 6½ and only three points short of the title, Fischer replied to the champion's pawn to king four opener with a shock pawn to queen three.

Experts thought the challenger had never before played this line — the Pirc.

Jury Trial Set In Auto Burglary

A jury trial has been set for the week of Oct. 2 in Marin Superior Court for Richard James Giakovmis, 19, and Vincent J. Holsten, 21, who are accused of burglarizing a car in San Anselmo in June.

DEMOS

ucation, conservation and other domestic areas.

His conciliatory language, designed to heal the breach in the Democratic party resulting from its takeover by McGovern partisans, stood in sharp contrast to the atmosphere at the Democratic National Convention in which Johnson's name was barely uttered in the fulsome praise by speakers for former party leaders.

McGovern's Texas trip was part of a week-long courtship with Democratic regulars and other establishment figures, which will see a meeting in Chicago with Mayor Richard Daley Wednesday and speeches to the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Johnson and McGovern have had little use for each other since the former president sent a half million troops into Indochina before McGovern and other war critics forced him into retirement in 1968. Johnson has never publicly forgiven McGovern for hie role in that episode, although he endorsed the nominee last week. He reserved, however, the right to criticize him in the national interest.

Monday night McGovern acknowledged his differences with Johnson over Vietnam but said, "We are going out there to recognize that this is a country where diversity is part of our strength."

Trial Is Set In Heroin Case

A jury trial has been set for the week of Oct. 2 in Marin Superior Court for John Lee Bailey, 35, of San Rafael, who has pleaded innocent to charges of felony assault and possession of heroin.

Bailey was arrested May 26 by sheriff's deputies on a traffic warant who said they found four balloons of suspected heroin when searching him.

He is also accused of being the person who fired at a man in a Bermuda Palms Motel room in San Rafael on May 23.

Trial Set On Felony Assault

A trial has been set for the week of Oct. 24 in Marin Superior Court for a 50-year-old San Francisco man charged with cutting a former girl friend at her Marin City home.

He was arrested June 29 after an argument with Flora Sample, during which he is accused of attacking her with a razor. She was hospitalized with wounds on her chin and arm.

Cotati's Mayor Sells Her Store

Cotati Mayor Annette Lombardi has sold her bookstore, saying politics has hindered the business.

Miss Lombardi and her partner, Paula Douglas, agreed to sell the Eeyore Bookstore since most visitors come to talk politics rather than buy books. The business has been sold to Andy Ross of Palo Alto who plans to remodel the store and reopen it next month when classes resume at Sonoma State College.

Miss Lombardi will continue working part-time at her father's clothing store in Petaluma and Miss Douglas plans to move to Idaho.

A goal of $81,400 has been set for the Petaluma United Way Campaign for 1972, according to board president James Keegan.

The goal for the entire North Bay Region of Sonoma and Mendocino counties was set at $516,290.

Funds will benefit 34 agencies including Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Red Cross, Camp Fire Girls, Children's Home Society, Salvation Army, Sonoma County Drug Abuse Council, Big Brothers, Visiting Nursing Service, Family Service Agency, Council on Alcoholism and Council on Aging.

Cash totaling $564 was taken between 10:15 and 10:25 a.m. yesterday from Winton's News and Liquors at 1149 Fourth Street, San Rafael, owner Winton Hall reported to San Rafael police.

Hall told police that he was counting the money when a customer came in for some popcorn. While he was getting it, several other customers came into the store and when he returned to complete counting the money, it was gone, according to police.

Trio In Cocaine Extortion Case To Stand Superior Court Trial

Three men yesterday were ordered to stand trial in Marin Superior Court in connection with an extortion try in a San Rafael apartment last month in which a young couple and a telephone repairman were held at gunpoint.

Judge Robert A. Smallman of Municipal Court bound the three, Edwin McCulloh Walsh, 22, and Robert Thomas Kent, 24, both of Hawaii, and Terry Lee Smith, 28, of Seattle, over to superior court after a preliminary hearing.

During the hearing, Nikki Bigelow, a petite, dark-haired 23year-old, testified how she and her common-law husband, Stephen, 22, had arranged an $8,000 sale of cocaine to Kent and Walsh on July 6.

Then on July 13, she said, Smith burst into the Bigelow apartment, carrying a gun under a blanket and demanding the $8,000 back for Kent and Walsh as well as an additional $2,000 "for his trouble."

Kent and Walsh, who had been waiting outside, joined Smith in the apartment, she said, after she told Smith she didn't believe he had been sent by the pair.

Mrs. Bigelow said she was told her husband and the telephone man, Richard Weiss, whom Smith had tied up with a lamp cord at one point, would be killed if she did not obtain $10,000 from her father.

Mrs. Bigelow said Kent Walsh claimed they had been "burned" in the cocaine deal by a third person, who had cut the drugs with a harmless substance.

Before testifying yesterday, Mrs. Bigelow was granted immunity from prosecution at the request of Deputy Dist. Atty. Jerry R. Herman. The immunity, granted by Superior Court Judge David Menary Jr., came over the objections of Mrs. Bigelow's lawyer, Theodore Lachelt, and his associate, William O. Weissich, who represents one of the defendants.

They argued the court could not guarantee Mrs. Bigelow she would not be prosecuted in a foreign country such as Peru, where Lachelt said much cocaine is produced.

Menary, however, said the lawyers seemed more concerned with the fate of the three accused men than of Mrs. Bigelow.

The three, charged with attempted armed robbery and extortion as well as felony assault stemming from the abortive attempt to rob Mrs. Bigelow who managed to get help, are to appear in Superior Court Sept. 5.

43-Month-Old Commune Drug Charges Dropped

Forty-three-month-old drug charges against Donald C. McCoy Jr. and 10 of his erstwhile followers were dismissed yesterday by Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court for lack of a speedy trial.

"Even though the defendants may be held responsible for some portion of the delay . . . it is apparent that the defendants cannot now be brought to trial without totally disregarding the constitutional requirement of a speedy trial," the judge wrote in an order dismissing the case.

McCoy and his followers were arrested in January 1969 during two raids on Rancho Olompali, an old mansion north of Novato in which a commune had been set up.

Since that time the ranch has been sold and the colony "scattered to the winds," in the words of a defense attorney.

McCoy, onetime well-to-do businessman who reportedly spent a good part of a $500,000 fortune on the commune, was given a guardian to administer his remaining funds.

Wilson noted in his order yesterday that there were other problems with th case and that, in any event, probably only three or four of the defendants could have been brought to trial. He said the majority of them had not been firmly enough linked to drugs found in the house.

He cited the history of the case, which had gone up on appeal in late 1969 after Wilson threw out the evidence, saying the prosecution should have named the person who tipped off agents there were drugs in the house.

They had been charged with possessing drugs.

Fires Take 4.3 Million Acres In '71

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Forest fires in the United States last year ravaged an estimated 4.3 million acres, about 1 million more than in 1970, the Forest Service reported yesterday.

As usual, man was to blame for most of the destruction, according to a report bearing a somber-faced picture of Smoky Bear on the cover.

The report said lightning fires accounted for over one-third of the acreage burned.

But it added:

"In the heavily populated eastern half of the U.S., man-caused fires continue to be a threat to natural resources and property. Between 98 and 100 per cent of all fires in the East were man-caused. A large part of these were caused by persons burning trash and other debris near wooded areas . . ."

The heaviest fire damage last year came in Alaska and Florida, which together accounted for over half the U.S. total of burned woodland. Florida, with fires in the Everglades and Big Cypress Swamp, had what was considered the worst fire season in two decades.

The report added that "incendiary" blazes—fires deliberately set by arsonists on other persons' property — accounted for over half the damage in Southern states and over one-third in the East.

Schools Ask Different Class Setup

Lagunitas School District trustees last night authorized Supt. Harry F. Roche to request state permission to deviate from the state course of study next school year.

Roche said the district will have five open, or loosely structured, classrooms this year "and they are not going to strictly follow the state course of study and use all the required texts."

Of the district's total of 500 children, 150 will be in multigrade open classrooms. There was one open classroom last year and Roche said the expansion of the program is "entirely due to community interest and approval."

He will write Wilson C. Riles, the state Superintendent of Public Instruction, and request the district be granted permission for the deviation.

In addition to the open classrooms, the district will offer children two other programs — a traditional program," and another falling between that and the loosely structured open classes.

The Lagunitas School District also:

INTERN HOUSING — Heard a plea from Roche for housing for 10 University of Massachusetts teaching interns due to start work in September, and for 14 more interns who replace them for the second 16 weeks of school. The students, all in their junior year, will work at no cost to the district, which will pay $2,000 toward the cost of program supervision.

WORKSHOP — Was told that as part of the pre-school orientation program, district teachers would take part in an individualized instruction workshop all day Sept. 6 on reading, mathematics and science.

SCHEDULES — Received class schedules which include a slip session for reading in grades 1 through 6 in existing and ABC programs.

NEWSLETTER — Agreed that 17 items submitted by Roche should be incorporated in a district newsletter to be mailed to parents before school starts Sept. 11. Bus and class schedules will be included.

PROGRAM COORDINATOR — Approved a job description for the three teachers who are program coordinators.

Venetian Blinds Being Planned

The San Rafael Library board last night voted to install Venetian blinds to reduce glare and help control temperature in the library reading rooms at a cost of $1,032.

Librarian Vivian Smith reported that an engineering investigation of the library's safety against earthquake damage is to begin this week.

Trustee Richard Bradshaw III was absent.

Finesses Are Hard To Win, But Sometimes One Comes Free

I once knew a man who claimed he was very lucky with finesses. (He also went to his dentist four times a year and enjoyed paying his taxes.) The rest of my friends are completely normal: They can't win a finesse to save their lives. The only reason they're still alive is that they occasionally force an opponent to hand them a "free" finesse. Study South's technique in today's hand if you want to prolong your own life.

EAST SIGNALS

West opened the queen of hearts, and East began an encouraging signal by playing the seven. South shrewdly refused the trick.

West led another heart, and South took the ace. Declarer led a trump to dummy, ruffed dummy's last heart and led another trump to dummy. This sequence of plays drew trumps and stripped out the hearts from both the North and South hands.

Declarer next led a diamond from dummy. East played low, and South finessed with the ten. West won with the jack and now had to give South a free finesse.

NO ESCAPE

There was no escape, since if West led hearts South would ruff and discard the losing diamond from dummy. This was the reason for South's eagerness to strip out hearts from the dummy as well as from his own hand.

FINE PLAN

Declarer's fine plan would fail if he took the first heart. East would win the second heart and lead a diamond. West would be able to win one diamond trick and exit safely with a third heart. Now there would be no way to force West to make a favorable lead.

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Photo reconnaissance aircraft will be used to plot the safest bicycle routes for cycling school children in Petaluma this year.

The high-flying study will be funded by a $16,000 grant from the state Office of Traffic Safety, according to Frank J. Walton, secretary of the state's business and transportation agency.

Film obtained from the aircraft will also be used to teach children safe pedestrian and bicycling habits.

The pilot program, part of a statewide project aimed at reducing traffic accidents, will be exapnded to other cities if successful, Walton said.

Fairfax To Eye Teacher Policy

The Fairfax School District board will consider a teacher evaluation policy when it meets in White Hill School at 7:45 p.m. today.

The district must adopt a teacher evaluation policy in accordance with the Stull Act, according to Supt. H. Reginald Hammond.

The board also will hear a report on science programs for school districts and review an interdistrict attendance agreement and a student teacher agreement with San Francisco State College.

Deadlock Votes On Housing

The San Rafael City Council last night failed to reach agreement on a 170-unit subidvision in Peacock Gap after deadlocking on one vote to approve and another to deny a permit. (Other San Rafael City Council stories, page 1.)

Consideration of American Savings and Loan Association's proposed Peacock Gap Unit 5 subdivision was continued to 8 p.m. Oct. 2.

The stalemate developed as Mayor C. Paul Bettini first sided with Councilman John A. Miskimen in opposing the use permit, then switched to vote with Councilman Fred E. Jensen in approving it. Councilman Harry A. Barbier also swtiched from permit approval to disapproval in the voting shuffle. Councilman Lawrence F. Mulryan was absent.

Attorney Julius Selinger had earlier told the council that the subdivision proposed for McNear and Peacock drives would be a "good, well-kept development" acceptable to homeowners.

He said the development was similar to one that had been approved in 1964 and wguld be a "repeat of the type of development that already exists in Peacock Gap."

He said the proposal should be exempted from the city's moratorium because plans were filed prior to the June 19 moratorium ordinance.

Selinger claimed the moratorium was illegal because only one roll call vote was taken on the ordinance and not two as he said was required by state law.

He urged the council either to approve the use permit or buy the land as open space. He said the property was worth $1 million.

Lawrence T. Simmelink, president of the Peacock Gap Homeowners Association, said his group did not oppose the subdivision but objected to permit approval "at this time."

"We want assurances of a high-quality development and we don't have those assurances yet," he said.

Simmelink said his association wanted architectural control over the proposal through its architectural review committee.

"Are we going to judge this subdivision by 1964 standards or are we going to be guided by enlightened concept?" one resident asked.

The council asked the homeowner association and the developer to "work out the differences" and return Oct. 2.

The San Rafael City Council also:

MYRTLE AVENUE — Rezoned a 6.2-acre parcel at Myrtle and Glen Park Avenue from single-family residential to planned unit development residential district. The action allows owner Frank Merz to construct a 28-unit townhouse on the land.

LOCUST AVENUE — Put over until Oct. 10 rezoning several parcels at Locust Avenue and Gold Hill Grade.

APPEAL FEE — Instructed staff to investigate the possibility of an appeal fee to cut down on nuisance appeals.

PUMPER — Authorized purchase and called for bids on a new 1,250-gallons-per-minute fire pumper destined for Terra Linda duty.

BAHIA DE RAFAEL — Approved final subdivision maps for Bahia De Rafael Unit 2.

PARKING — Restricted parking on Grand Avenue between Fourth Street and Fifth Avenue to two hours between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m.

BOYD MUSEUM — Budgeted $2,500 for the Boyd Museum.

REDEVELOPMENT — Adjourned as the city's redevelopment agency and learned from redevelopment Executive Director William J. Bielser that preliminary redevelopment plans would be submitted to the planning commission on Sept. 13.

CLOSED SESSION — Agreed to meet in closed session at 8 p.m. Aug. 28 to discuss employee salary negotiations with the council's negotiator.

$8,000 City 'Contract' For San Rafael Chamber

The council voted 3-1 to pump $8,000 into the city's ailing chamber of commerce for the chamber's services as a "public information agency."

Though the city is limited by its city charter to spending no more than $1,000 for promotion and advertising, the council skirted the stipulation by granting the allocation for a specific service on a contractual basis.

Charter amendment proposals to delete or increase the $1,000-a-year limit were defeated by San Rafael voters in June 1970 and April 1971.

The $8,000 public information funding came as a compromise after City Mgr. James H. McCown recommended that the council grant only $5,000 of chamber president Jack E. Bucknum's $15,000 request.

Bucknum presented a list of chamber services and said that without additional funding the organization would have to halt its aid to new businesses and residents in San Rafael.

McCown argued that some of the expenditures on Bucknum's list benefited businessmen more than the city, and pointed to a $3,000 allocation the chamber sought for the publication of its annual business directory.

McCown said city departments could handle other chamber expenses, such as answering mailed inquiries which are sent to the city.

"You don't buy something you don't need," McCown declared, adding that the city's redevelopment agency might be able to share the burden of chamber support.

City Atty. Fred C. Robbins urged that the chamber provide a more complete breakdown "in dollars and cents" before the council acts on the funding proposal.

Mayor C. Paul Bettini said the city was collecting about $70,000 annually from a hotel-motel tax and that "the tax was clearly intended for promotional purposes," although it is currently put in the city's general fund.

"But we can only contract for those services which we feel are beneficial to the city," Bettini added.

"All we want is the same support other chambers get," Bucknum said, noting that other California cities comparable to San Rafael give local chambers an average of about $23,500 per year.

The county chamber of commerce gets about $30,000 a year, and Novato's chamber gets about $8,000, he said.

"We want a contract for services, not a subsidy," he said.

Space Scope Copernicus Gets Ready

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)— Copernicus, the most powerful observatory ever launched, settled down in orbit today for what astronomers hope will be five years of inquiry into the secrets of the stars.

Its record-size 32-inch diameter telescope was ordered to spring together automatically in space on command from ground stations 11 hours after launch Monday. Project officials will have to wait until Friday to find out if it worked as planned, but they said everything appeared to be working normally.

Dr. James E. Kupperian, project scientist, said the in-orbit telescope assembly operation was the first for the space program. The telescope was launched in three pieces and the radio commands were to release springs and allow the units to snap together. This way, the delicate quartz mirror and light analyzing apparatus were able to be cushioned during launch.

Copernicus will undergo several more days of system-by-system checks. Its big telescope, designed by Princeton University to study ultraviolet starlight, and three smaller X-ray telescopes will be turned on Thursday for the first time.

But officials said the 4,900-pound orbiting astronomical observatory won't be ready to begin its formal observations until late next week. Project manager Joseph Purcell said the stargazer should work for five years.

The first target for the 32-inchtelescope will be the hot young star Zeta Ophiuche in the constellation Ophiuchus, some 500 light years away. A light year is 6 trillion miles.

Pleads Innocent To Pot Charge

A jury trial was set for the week of Oct. 2.

Berrigan Brothers Begin Vigil To Speed Brother's Sentencing

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Anti-war priest Daniel Berrigan camped outside the federal building today to protest a four and one half month delay in sentencing for his brother Philip, who he claimed was a political hostage of the Nixon Administration.

"It is our belief that our brother is being held hostage by the Nixon war administration," Berrigan said Monday as he and another brother, Jerome, began a fast and vigil as an "act of brotherly love."

Philip Berrigan, currently serving a prison sentence for destroying draft records, and Sister Elizabeth McAlister were convicted last spring of smuggling letters out of a federal prison in Lewisburg, Pa.

However, the federal government failed to win a conviction on charges they and the other members of the "Harrisburg Seven" plotted to kidnap presidential advisor Henry Kissinger and blow up heating tunnels under buildings in Washington, D. C.

Federal Judge R. Dixon Herman, who presided at the trial, has been deliberating 19 weeks on post trial motions regarding the smuggling convictions.

"We will leave these steps when the judge says Philip will be sentenced for those two infamous letters," Daniel said. He said Herman had told him a date would be announced sometime in August.

The Jesuit priest, paroled in connection with the same draft record case for which Philip is imprisoned, said the delay was a political plot to keep Philip silent about the Southeast Asian conflict.

"He is being held hostage because I am free and speaking out against the war. The administration doesn't want two of us speaking out at once."

Philip, a Josephite priest, requested parole but according to his defense attorney, Terry F. Lenzner, the parole board refused to render a decision until the Harrisburg Seven case was completely closed.

Lenzner said the delay was "unprecedented in American courts."

"In courts which have been twice as busy, the time between conviction and sentencing is normally no more than one month," he said.

Herman must rule on a series of defense motions, including several calling for a complete dismissal of the verdict and all other charges.

Father Daniel said he and Philip had "no hope" that Herman would rule in their favor.

"He ruled against us all during the trial," Daniel said. "Why should he change now?"

The shaggy haired priest said a New York parole board had given him permission to stay in this central Pennsylvania city for only two days. He said he would ask for a continuance if Herman does not rule by Wednesday.

Discipline Meted Marin Attorney

Attorney Duncan P. Davidson of 35 Mitchell Boulevard, San Rafael, has been publicly reapproved by the disciplinary board of the State Bar of California.

The board found that Davidson, acting as attorney in a dissolution proceeding, received a check payable to his client, endorsed it as attorney in fact and placed it in his trustee account without the knowledge or consent of his client.

The attorney then withdrew from the trustee account the amount of a disputed billing his client had refused to pay, and kept it. He forwarded a cashier's check for the balance of the check to his client, later returning the appropriated funds, plus interest, to the client.

Daley Predicts McGovern Will Make 'Last Spurt'

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mayor Richard J. Daley, scoffing reports he had snubbed Sen George S. McGovern by failing to meet with him in Illinois last week, predicted Monday that McGovern will be "coming from behind on that great last spurt."

He said he thinks McGovern's presidential campaign is "doing fine" and denied reports he was angry at the South Dakota Democrat.

"I never get angry at anyone," Daley told a news conference. "What's the use of getting angry."

Daley reportedly had become miffed at quotes about him attributed to McGovern in a news magazine. Observers believed it was the reason Daley stayed away from the "Democrats' Day" appearances at the Illinois State Fair last week in Springfield and a meeting with McGovern.

Daley said he would meet with McGovern Wednesday in Chicago when the senator arrives to address the American Legion convention. It is possible Daley also will be seeing President Nixon when he flies into Chicago Thursday to address the Legionnaires, Daley said.

What Has Become Of The Booster?

Whatever became of the Booster?

You remember the Booster. He was the "100 per cent American," also the "100 per cent Californian" or "100 per cent San Anselman" or whatever.

To the Booster, the particular plot of land in which he happened to put down roots was the greatest place in the world. His philosophy was shouted in city slogans: "The Biggest Little City in the World," "America's Best Town By a Damsite," "Climate Best by Government Test," etc.

NO MATTER how remote or primitive his place of abode, to the Booster it was a metropolis of the future, an embryonic center of culture and commerce.

And, to a surprising extent, through enthusiasm plus hard work — through "boosterism" — the Booster often helped push his community toward the status he envisioned for it.

He was the civic leader, the shaker and mover, admired and widely emulated so that his ranks kept growing. His motto was shared by the millions: "Boost, don't knock."

WE NEVER HEAR of the Booster any more — except, perhaps, a slurring reference in some book by a sociologist.

In a national mania for masochism, we hear only of what's wrong with the hometown, with the home state, with America. The Booster is debunked, downgraded, and despised. And he is discredited by semantics.

The Booster has been lumped in, semantically, with the quick-buck real estate operator and the phony promoter, under the label of "developer." And "developer" has been made a dirty word — although without development, we would all be lighting our homes with candles and running our sewage down open ditches.

In our national masochism, the philosophy of boosterism has been replaced by that of collective guilt and despair. Because some of the Booster's projects went awry, all that he did toward progress and improvement is damned.

TO THE BOOSTER, all things were possible, and whatever was needed, we could do for ouselves. In today's prevailing philosophy, we can do nothing for ourselves. We must always import outside "experts" to tell us what our community needs, for we are incompetent to make our own decisions. And when these experts decide what is needed, of course we cannot provide it from our own resources; we must ask the federal government — although knowing in advance that it will fail us.

Despite all this discouragement, the Booster has not disappeared. He is still with us, although in diminished numbers and with muted voice. You find him, here and there, scrounging up funds to establish a Boys Club, providing a meeting place for senior citizens, getting new uniforms for the high school band, and in other acceptable "good works."

The Booster is capable of bigger things than these, if encouraged. Accomplishment arises from confidence. But it is hard to be a Booster when told constantly, by those with sophistication but without knowledge, with education but without intelligence, that all is wrong with your town, your state, and your country.

WE NEED tha Booster. He can help us overcome our current national malaise, as he helped overcome the destitution and lawlessness of frontier America.

Boost him; don't knock him.

"You're going to be on nationwide TV. Can't you just frisk around a bit?"

Call For Educational Reform Hits California

By EARL G. WATERS

A most enlightening objective and surprising report on education has just been released by President Nixon's Commission on School Finance.

It is surprising because of the number of professional educators who served on the commission. At least 14 of the 18 members are directly connected with education and seven are from the ranks of public education, two from California.

Although the commission was assigned to study the finance problems of education, it titled its report "The Need for Educational Reform."

THE REPORT is of great significance to California and is extremely timely. For, this state is caught in the throes of financial disaster with respect to its public educational programs. So confused have the educational problems become that the Legislature has seemingly become helpless in finding solutions.

Caught between court decisions, demands of the school administrators, and angry reactions of the taxpayers, the lawmakers have thrown up their hands after more than 18 months of debate and gone home to consult with their constituents.

Its most significant finding is that "class size has an important or even a measurable effect on educationl quality cannot presently be supported by evidence."

What this means to the layman is that the taxpayers have been misled for years by school administrators clamoring for more and more funds to hire more and more teachers to reduce class uizes.

THE REPORT further suggests taxpayers have been forking out ever-increasing amounts to the public schools without ever questioning the results. "We have been concentrating for too long on the resources going into the schools," the report states, "giving only minimal attention to the outcomes."

"Public functions, such as education, health, welfare, environmental control, transportation, and public safety are placing increasing demands on the public treasuries. Education therefore can only seek to share in the total funds which become available for all purposes. If education is to compete successfully with these other functions, its proponents must be able to demonstrate that whatever funds are provided are achieving desired results."

In a blow to the professional image that educators like to project, the report leveled at both teacher and administrator incompetence. "Educators," it read, "are expected to perform functions which impart to students the knowledge of basic skills such as reading, writing and arithmetic, and they can, and should, be held accountable for their ability to teach those skills."

"WE RECOMMEND that states reexamine their policies and procedures regarding the selection, education and certification of persons in the education professions with the objective of encouraging entry into the professions of those people who are uniquely qualified to teach or administer schools and school districts."

It also recommended weeding out the incompetents by "the development of appropriate plans for dealing with the problems of less able teachers" and suggested, among other things, early retirement.

Probably its most important recommendation affecting property owners, who have historically footed the public school bill, is that state governments should assume responsibility for financing "substantially all of the non-federal outlays or elementary and secondary education, with local supplements. . . not to exceed 10 per cent of the state allocations."

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Military Family Lacks Representation

Recently our family due to military orders had to leave California to arrive here in the state of Texas. Since we have been here at Laredo AFB I wrote to Congressman Clausen to help me with a problem on the base, and the reply I got was that he no longer was my representative in Congress. I have sent him another answer back telling him we are residents of California, and that we will be voting there.

I am wondering why he has tried not to be our representative now that we have left our home state. Have other military families got this kind of representation once they leave California?

This has me concerned, because there are many matters that come up in military living that the solution has to come from our representatives and if they try to pawn us off to other state representatives we end up with nothing.

He states in his letter that he turned my letter over to my new congressman, which should be a Texan, and I don't want him getting his nose into any of my business. I am a Californian, and right now one without anyone representing me. I, and my family, love California. Especially Marin, and that area. We file our state tax there, all our vehicles are registered there, and in a few short years we will be coming home to stay. One thing for sure, we will think twice come his re-election time.

McGovern Now Has Support Of Hanoi

Senator McGovern has finally received an unequivocal endorsement from the Hanoi regime. This comes via Ramsey Clark who was assured that if there is a change in administrations to one which will forsake all support to Southeast Asia then the prisoners will be released in less than 90 days. This has to be true, according to Clark, because the Communists said it was. I wonder if all of this was accompanied by a promise of financial support to the McGovern campaign.

It is no accident that the dike bombing propaganda campaign was launched coincidentally with McGovern's nomination. It is no accident that Jane Fonda and Ramsey Clark were invited to join the propaganda team. Thier credentials were already well known to Hanoi.

Let us hear a few utterences from the Clarks and the Fondas and, yes, even the McGoverns about the misery the South Vietnamese have suffered at the hands of the Hanoi regime. Then perhaps their latest pronouncements might carry a shred of credence. Clark may be a qualified lawyer but as a judge his bias rules him out.

Richardson Bridge Bike Path Possible

At a time when bike paths are needed all over the state, it is interesting to note that the State Division of Highways voted down funds for a bike path to be included in the widening project on Richardson Bridge. This seems to be a vital link between San Francisco/Southern Marin and the Tiburon/Belvedere Peninsula.

I was originally under the impression that the Marin County Board of Supervisors was responsible for voting down the funds, but as can be seen from the following letter from Supervisor Wornum (which I received permission from his office to quote), this is not the case:

"At no time did the board of supervisors vote down funds for a bike path across the Richardson Bridge. On the contrary, they have on three separate occasions urged the State Division of Highways to include a bikepath in the widening project.

This is a state highway and a state responsibility and we are extremely unhappy that they presently are not fulfilling it . . ."

I therefore urge all those interested to write a letter to the State Division of Highways and your state senator, or circulate a petition, requesting that funds be alloted for a bike path across Richardson Bridge. Completion of the widening project is not scheduled until late December, I have been informed, so there is still time. So much better to have it done now, rather than have the highway torn up later and tie up traffic for another six months.

Waldheim, At Peking's Bidding, Makes Formosa A Non-Country

(Reprinted from the Christian Science Monitor)

It is right and proper that United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim should visit Peking. His journey there is the last of a series of visits he is making to the capitals of the five permanent members of the Security Council.

But the price he has apparently had to pay for getting an invitation to the People's Republic of China is too high.

China originally opposed the choice of Mr. Waldheim as U Thant's successor. Whether or not because of this, the new secretary-general has been carefully nurturing his relations with Peking ever since he took office last January.

AS A FIRST concession he endorsed U Thant's expulsion from the UN of two correspondents of the Nationalist Chinese news agency, ignoring the vigorous protests of the UN press corps.

Then, in a more sweeping concession on the eve of his trip to Peking, Mr. Waldheim ordered the elimination of all reference to Taiwan from UN documents and publications. Even such standard reference works as the UN statistical yearbook will in future contain no mention of Nationalist China. In the years when Peking was excluded from the UN, the year book published what date it could about Communist China. Now it will deliberately ignore the existence of an independent country of 14 million people whose industrial growth rate in recent years has been second in Asia only to that of Japan. Does this mean that Mr. Waldheim has accepted the Communist argument that Taiwan is an integral part of China?

THE CROWNING TOUCH of absurdity is the removal from the walls of UN headquarters of a plaque recording that the "Republic of China" was the donor of a marble tablet engraved with sayings of Confucius.

We deplored the explusion of the two Chinese newsmen at the time. We considered that they had every right to be present at the UN as representatives of the world's press. The latest measures taken at Peking's bidding are both petty and unrealistic.

Nixon Backers See Schmitz As Threat In California Vote

SAN FRANCISCO — With overconfidence a dire threat, the Nixon people are looking anxiously at their candidate's own home state. Seasoned Republicans long familiar with the crosscurrents in this great mixing bowl of an empire are fearful the Democrats will carry California in November.

The reason is not the pull of the McGovern-Shriver ticket. It is the menace of a third party on the far right with a candidate made to fill the bill of the rightists in Southern California. John G. Schmitz, the lame-duck congressman from President Nixon's own congressional district in Orange County, was nominated as the presidential candidate of the American Independent Party in convention assembled in Louisville.

Veterans of the scrambled Republican politics of California believe Schmitz will poll 400,000 votes on the American Independent line. That may be enough to tip the balance for the Democrats and put the state with its 45 electoral votes in the Democratic column.

THE REASONING is as follows: Right-wing Republicans, going to the polls in November supremely confident Nixon is going to win, will decide to register a protest vote. Schmitz is their man.

Somewhat to the right of Louis XIV, he listed membership in the John Birch Society among his other accomplishments when he was elected to Congress in 1970. He is for abolishing the Federal Reserve Board, returning to the gold standard, and in almost every other respect repealing the 20th century. As for the President's consorting with Moscow and Peking, that is unholy converse with America's enemies.

In short, he makes Gov. George Wallace look a bit dangerous with a populist-liberal taint. When Wallace formally declined to run, giving as his reason the need to recover from the wound he received at the hands of Arthur Bremer at a political rally in Maryland, the curious collection of malcontents and doctrinaire dissenters in Louisville turned to Schmitz, who was defeated in his own Republican primary.

He is no untutored rabble rouser. An instructor in philosophy, history and political science at Santa Ana College, he was elected to the California State Senate in 1964 at the age of 34. He served as a Marine Corps jet fighter and helicopter pilot from 1952 to 1960. Currently he is a lieutenant colonel in the Marine Corps Reserve.

IN GOLDWATER country, which embraces a good part of Southern California, there are a lot of people who share the Schmitz creed. Convinced that any measure of control over private ownership of guns is a step to turn the country over to the Communists, they barricade themselves in their own homes with an arsenal of weapons. Even the Saturday-night specials, the $15 handguns such as assassins so freely use, are sacrosanct. For them, it is hardly necessary to add, Sen. George McGovern is a dangerous radical. But their prejudices are likely to override any random thought that a protest vote could help to put McGovern in the White House.

What happened to Richard Nixon when he ran for governor of California in 1962 is the precedent that scares thoughtful Republicans who had a part in that campaign. Nixon lost by something more than 200,000 votes to the Democratic incumbent, Edmund G. (Pat) Brown. Right-wing republicans did not vote for Brown; they stayed home. That cost Nixon the election in the view of those who carefully analyzed the returns.

THE SAME overconfidence can work on the other side of the continent in New York with a similar threat from a third party. Sober observers believe that 200,000 votes cast on the Conservative party line is not impossible. It could swing the state for the Democrats.

The Conservatives in New York have a senator, James L. Buckley, who consistently votes with the Republicans and lists himself as Conservative-Republican. But will he campaign for President Nixon's re-election rather than the nominee of his own party? This will take some pondering, since Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, who stoutly opposed Buckley two years ago, will be directing the Nixon campaign in New York state.

Third parties figure not at all in most states in contrast to New York and California where the choice on the ballot is between the right, the Nixon center, and the McGovern left. But the rightists can stay home on election day and that could prove as decisive as a choice in the polling booth.

Forests Not Just Beautiful; They're Also Air Conditioners

A forest is a more efficient air conditioner than any gadget man has devised.

If you've never thought of a forest in this light, consider these facts, attested by professional foresters:

One acre of healthy young trees will consume 12 tons of carbon dioxide and give off four tons of fresh oxygen a year.

This is the most important kind of air conditioning there is. In fact, it is essential to the survival of all human beings and animals. We need oxygen to live. And with each breath we draw, we remove some of the oxygen in the air and replace it with carbon dioxide. Obviously, if this process continued without any offset, we'd rather quickly exhaust the oxygen in the atmosphere.

BUT THANKS be to God (or nature or chance or whatever explanation you prefer), plants use the air in a manner exactly the reverse of the way animals use it. They inhale carbon dioxide and exhale oxygen. So all forms of plant life —and especially the forests —are continually engaged in what is from our viewpoint a cleansing and renewal of the air.

In contemporary usage, "air conditioning" means not only cleansing but also cooling. And forests are extremely efficient at that, too. If you've ever walked in a forest on a hot summer day, you must have noticed how much cooler it is in there than it is out in the open. You may have thought that this was simply the result of being in the shade instead of in the sun. But there's lots more to it than that.

A tree continually carries on a process called transpiration, in which moisture evaporates through its leaves or needles. Evaporation, as you remember from high school physics, results in cooling.

FOREST SCIENTISTS have calculated that the net cooling effect of one healthy young tree is equivalent to that of 10 roomsized air conditioning machines.

It is not uncommon for the temperature under a tall canopy of trees to be 20 degrees lower than a thermometer reading taken in the open in the same general area at the same time.

If there is a moral to this dissertation, it is that trees not only are beautiful, they also are useful. Indeed, we literally couldn't live without them. This fact would seem to override all other "practical considerations" —even our great and growing need for timber in home construction —in all national decisions about conservation of our forests.

Utility Managers Feel Barbs Of 'Population Control' Groups

Individuals and groups seeking to curtail growth by limiting expansion of water and sewage services apparently are getting under the skin of utility managers.

Eugene S. Churchill, manager of the North Marin County Water District, who has managed generally to keep cool through wet and dry, sounded a note of resentment against such actions in his letter of resignation last week.

Churchill, who resigned effective Nov. 15 for a job with the World Health Organization, said:

"MY CONCERNS and frustrations over doing an adequate job for the district have recently grown due to the increasing pressures of certain groups to stop all community growth with the leverage of a lack of proper water supply and sewage disposal facilities.

"I firmly believe that it is illogical and against the best public interests to delay, complicate and compound costs of needed public service projects. . .as this drains off available money resources that are badly needed to correct present environment deterioration problems."

Churchill isn't likely to face that problem, since he has a choice of three jobs with the World Health Organization, and two are in areas seeking to organize national water and sewage agencies, not curtail activities.

IN THE NOVATO Sanitary District, Mgr. Charles A. Joseph has been more outspoken against those who would take what he called the "back door" approach to curtailing growth.

Persons who believe they can curtail population growth by controlling utility service apparently lack "an understanding of the basic planning and economics of most utilities," Joseph said before the Novato City Council last week.

Utilities plan "on an area of service," and providing a small sized facility wouldn't necessarily provide "control for a particular development in that area," Joseph said. "One parcel could use the full capacity of the smaller facility."

ABOUT 160 YOUTHS from Marin had a bonus adventure last week at the San Francisco Boys Club camp between Willits and Fort Bragg when they were nearly marooned by a severe rainstorm.

With the road so bad, buses couldn't take them out on their way home after a two-week stay. Lester Anderson, executive director of the San Francisco club chartered three railroad passenger cars, which were hooked on the end of a freight train to Willits.

Anxious parents who had expected the boys home at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday were notified and the boys arrived back at about 2 a.m. Thursday.

Four parents had an anxious moment when they couldn't locate their children among the debarking passengers. They were asleep in the bus.

Breathless Play-By-Play Of GOP Convention Race

MIAMI BEACH — "Ladies and gentlemen, from our booth high above the Miami Convention Center we bring you the Republican TV Roller Derby. The first event is about to start, featuring the derby teams of NBC, CBS, ABC and PBS floor correspondents. The object of this race is for the news teams to get from one side of the convention floor to the other with their microphones in order to interview Tricia Nixon Cox in the presidential box. The first one who gets there and manages to stick a mike up to Tricia's face wins the race.

"The correspondents line up at the starting line. The gavel goes down and they're off! Douglas Kiker of NBC is in the lead, Dan Rather of CBS is pulling up on the side, Herb Kaplow of ABC has just elbowed NBC's Garrick Utley in the kidney.

"CASSIE MACKIN of NBC has leaped over three chairs, and now she is out in front. Wait a minute. Kiker has triphed, and Roger Mudd of CBS has tripped over Kiker. Frank Reynolds, the ABC sprinter, has just grabbed Cassie Mackin by the leg, and she has been slowed down.

"Mike Wallace of CBS is making his move now by cutting through the North Dakota delegation — actually he's crawling across their laps. But he's been stopped. Someone is asking for his autograph.

"Tom Pettit of NBC has suddenly appeared out of nowhere. Pettit is only 50 yards from Tricia. Hold it! Sander Vanocur of Public Broadcasting is holding on to Pettit's throat. They've disappeared underneath the Alaska delegation chairs.

"Kiker and Mudd are both up again, and they are now neck and neck, not more than 35 yards from the finish line. Kiker has just thrown his mike wire around Mudd's neck, and Mudd is strangling. But wait! John Hart, the CBS man, has kicked Kiker in the shins. Kiker is down on his knees. Mudd is untangling the wire from around his neck. I don't see Cassie Mackin. There she is, struggling through the Wisconsin delegation! Her cameraman is now lifting her over to the Minnesota delegation. She can't be more than 25 yards from Tricia.

"Sam Donaldson of ABC has pushed Cassie back to Wisconsin. She has lost her balance and is falling into the laps of the Puerto Rico delegation.

"DAN RATHER has taken over the lead. No, Garrick Utley has just stabbed Rather in the thigh with his portable head antenna, and Rather is receiving first aid. Utley is now in front.

"Something's happening now! I can't make it out. The ABC team is being called off the floor! Yes, ladies and gentlemen, the ABC team is being called off the floor. We have just received word that ABC, who covered the convention for 12 minutes, is now going back to local programming.

"It now seems to be a race between NBC and CBS. Vanocur and MacNeil of Public Broadcasting have just been sent to the penalty box by the White House television adviser and have been told to stay there.

"Tom Pettit has overtaken Utley, but John Hart has body-checked him and Pettit is sailing across the floor into Bebe Rebozo's arms.

"Mike Wallace is two yards from Tricia, Doug Kiker has just slipped under Wallace's legs and is a yard away. Wait a minute, Cassie Mackin is coming in on Kiker's blind side. Ohhh, she sent Kiker flying into the podium! Roger Mudd has now got his mike a foot away from Tricia's mouth. He gets a karate chop on the arm from Tom Pettit. Mudd has dropped his mike.

"Now here comes a question."

"Tricia, what do you think of the convention?"

"Oh, I think it's just hunky-dory."

"Thank you, Tricia, and now back to Walter, John and David in the booths."

Visit Turns Out To Be Permanent Thing

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Felix of Tamalpais Valley were moving from Belgium to New Zealand when they stopped in the United States to visit.

That was eight years ago and they never left. They were among 12 Marin residents who became naturalized U.S. citizens in July.

The Felix family is very international. Felix hails from New Zealand, his wife from England. Their son, Mark, 10, was born in England, their daughter Yolanda, 15, in Canada and their other daughters, Tess, 14, and Anne, 8, in San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Felix met in England where she was a hairdresser. She styled his mother's hair and was invited to their house for dinner. That started a courtship which resulted in marriage.

The Felixes live at 451 Marin Drive. Felix commutes to San Francisco where he is an advertising artist.

Other Marin residents naturalized last month were:

The Brown Pelican On The Increase

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The endangered California Brown Pelican, whose reproduction has been curtailed by pesticides and other pollutants, produced substantially larger numbers of young birds this year than last, it was reported yesterday.

The Department of Fish and Game announced that the state's only nesting colony of the birds in the Santa Barbara Channel Islands had hatched 57 young this year compared to seven for 1971. One bird was hatched in 1970.

Earlier this year the department had declared that the colony was "incapable of reproducing." Six hundred nesting attempts were counted in 1971 but only seven birds were produced.

The department said that a survey last week of west Anacapa Island showed 150 nests and 26 young. Another 112 nests and 31 nestlings were counted on a small island off the Santa Cruz Island, six miles west of Anacapa.

The agency reported however, that it discovered indications of "substantial nesting failure" —seven nests with addled eggs or ones with broken or thin shells.

Tests were being conducted on the eggs to determine "the relation of pesticides to reproductive distress in birds nesting in the colony."

A June survey of the coast from San Diego to Ft. Bragg counted 2,500 pelicans with 700 on Anacapa. Another check later that month showed 1,800 of the big-beaked birds on Anacapa and Santa Cruz.

CAMPAIGN HEAD — Walter Zurcher, owner of the San Rafael Toy Shop, has been appointed to head the Marin campaign of the United Bay Area Crusade, according to Galen Foster, crusade chairman. Zurcher will also handle the publicity for the campaign.

Fired Trainer Takes Tiger Cub

Boyd was an animal handler with the Ringling Brothers Barnum and Bailey Circus until he was fired Friday. He was accused of stealing a Siberian tiger cub on his way out, filching the 11-week-old cub, worth $1,500, from the side of its sleeping mother.

Boyd was arrested during the weekend at an apartment, where he was allegedly keeping the cub. He was charged with burglary.

Parking Lot To Remain Bargain

Tiburon's bargain parking lot will remain a bargain — at least for the next few months — the Tiburon City Council ruled last night.

The lot at 1691 Tiburon Boulevard costs 25 cents per 12 hours weekdays, or $5 a month. It is operated by the Metropolitan Parking Corp. of San Francisco on land owned by the Northwestern Pacific Railroad.

In 1968 the railroad was granted a temporary use permit which must be renewed every year by the city.

Planning Director Richard G. Arjo said this year the parking operator had finally met most of the conditions attached to leasing the land. These included maintaining landscaping around the lot, spending $1,000 annually on resurfacing, and repairing damaged fencing.

Despite pleas by a railroad representative that the cost of doing business had gone up in four years, and that nearby lots charged 50 cents, the council refused to approve a 10-cent an hour rate hike.

Mayor Albert H. Sennett said that Tiburon would eventually have its own parking district to coordinate and manage parking in the city.

In the meantime, he said, "We want to discourage it (the parking lot) from achieving any sense of permanency."

Sennett said the railroad could reapply for a higher rate at a later time.

The council last night held off final action on a cluster housing project the planning commission had approved with enthusiasm in July.

By a 4-1 vote, with Councilman M. Carlisle Becker dissenting, the council approved first reading of an ordinance permitting rezoning of a 3.7-acre parcel of land on Round Hill Road from RO-2 to RO-2-C.

The rezoning would allow Tiburon resident Leo Bodian to go ahead with plans to develop a cluster of eight single-family dwellings on one portion of the property.

Mrs. Bodian said the project, designed by architect Raphael S. Soriano, would preserve the site's 50 mature oak trees and save the creek which runs through the property.

The cluster proposal would use a smaller portion of the total site than a conventional subdivision, she said.

Vice Mayor Allan N. Littman said the council wanted more time to study the site and its relation to nearby developments.

"We don't want to allow cluster zoning to increase density over conventional zoning," he said.

The Tiburon City Council Also:

TRIBUTE — Read resolutions of appreciation and presented plaques to former planning commissioners Victor C. Banks, Peter Macgowan, and Allan Thompson, and former parks and recreation commissioner Donald K. Loomis for their "valuable public service."

ZONING — Passed the first reading of an ordinance to modify regulations for the R-3 (multiple residential) zone. The amendment increases minimum parcel size from 6,000 square feet to 10,000 square feet, reduces maximum building coverage from 35 to 30 per cent, limits the ratio of total floor area to 75 per cent of the lot area, and adds requirements for usable open space.

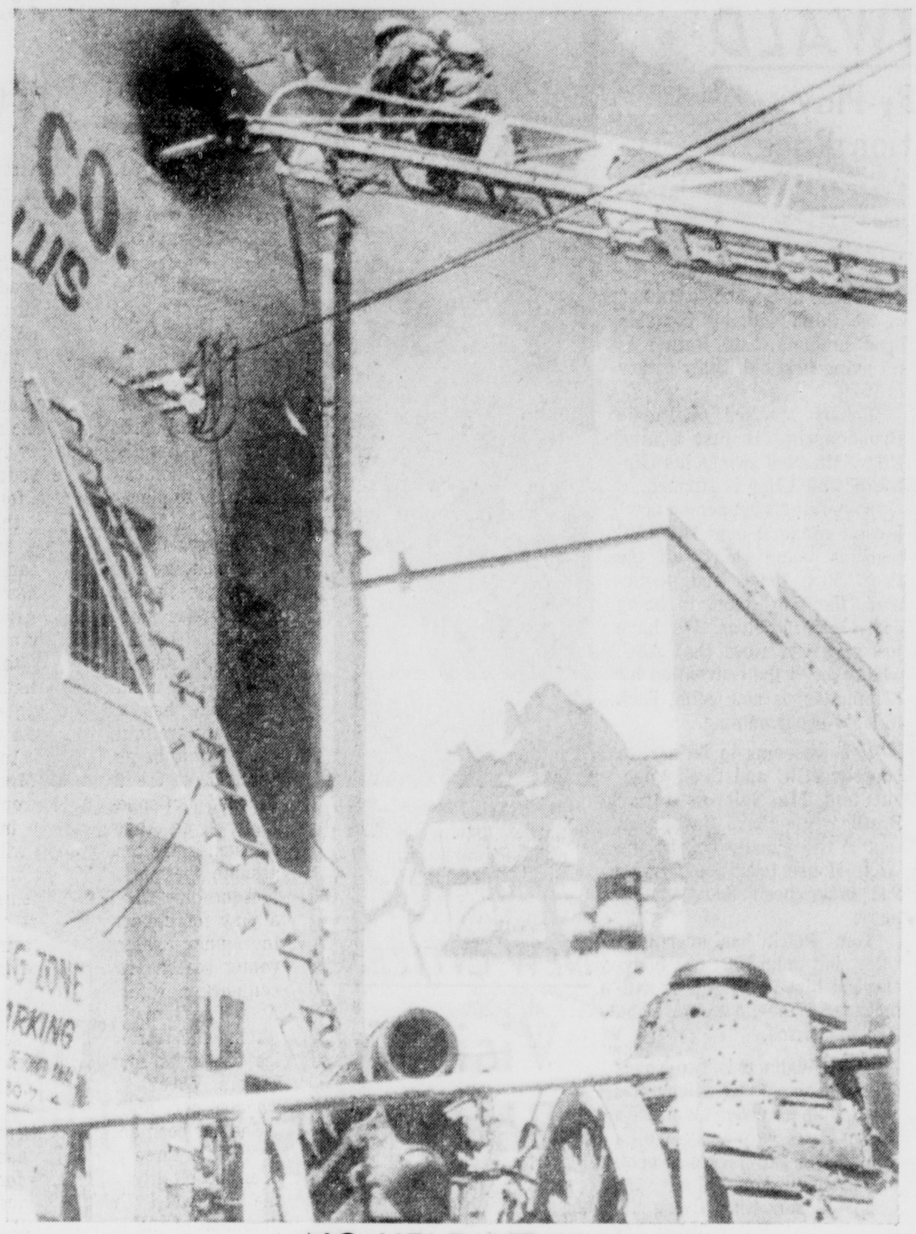
OPEN SPACE — Deferred action on an offer by Kenneth Frankel to sell the city eight lots for open space since they were not in a "high priority" area.

BAY PLAN — Held off approval of a contract agreement between Tiburon and landscape architects Sasaki, Walker Associates, Inc. of Sausalito for preparation of the Richardson Bay Lineal Park Master Plan. Gary Gray, parks and recreation commissioner, told the council the contract should be more explicit about a timetable and certain fees. Language will be added to contract.

PARKING — Established no-parking areas on Lyford Drive near Davis Drive, and on Tiburon Boulevard, west of Beach Road.



NO HELP AT ALL

A fireman gains the high ground as he aims a water cannon into the "heart of the enemy" as a cannon and truck stand at the ready mark on the perimeter of the Jack Frost War Surplus Store in West Los Angeles. Belvedere's Worry: Substandard Building

Belvedere city councilmen agreed last night they must "bite the bullet," as one councilman said, and make their own decision on what to do about more than 100 substandard building lots in the city.

The council met jointly with the Belvedere Planning Commission for almost three hours. It was mostly a rehash of previous debate on the lots, during commission hearings on the Belvedere planning study prepared by consultants Livingston and Blayney.

The concultants urged restricting future growth of the island city by imposing stiff variance requirements to build on any substandard lot. Many of the lots were recorded years before the city placed a 7,500-square-foot minimum lot size on the lowlands and lagoon area and a 15,000-square-foot minimum on the slopes of the island.

Most controversy centered on so-called "contiguous substandard" lots adjoining developed property owned by the same person.

Consultant Lawrence S. Livingston Jr. and the planning commission had recommended against allowing new construction on such lots.

Property owners and their attorneys filled the council chamber last night, to present widely differing views on whether building should be restricted.

There was not even agreement on how many lots were involved, although the most official estimate was 137 parcels.

Several property owners protested they had paid taxes on their property for many years, and should not be prohibited from development because the city minimums had changed since the lots first were recorded.

The 'financial hardship" of not being able to build on a substandard lot next to a residence owned by the same person "definitely is not" proper grounds for a variance, Livingston replied.

"I think we ought to say, 'no, period, no,'" to all variance requests, argued planning Commission Chairman Leslie W. Graham.

Steinau said the council "accepted the (planning commission) report (on restricting development of the small lots) with disappointment. We had hoped you'd find a solution."

"We've just got to bite the bullet ourselves," declared Councilman Willard G. Pittman.

He also cited stock market fluctuations as a parallel to the value of the substandard lots. There is no guarantee that stocks will not decline, and "if the lots were buildable" when purchased, "that would have been the time to build," he added.

The council adjourned to Sept. 11, after briefly discussing a proposed environmental review board with the planners and Livingston.

Pay Board Faces First Big Protest

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "We are denouncing this for the farce that it is!" yelled one demonstrator as the federal Pay Board faced what chairman George Boldt called its first protest demonstration.

Three persons were booked for investigation of assaulting a guard after a demonstration by some 200 persons at the Federal Building yesterday. They were released on personal recognizance bonds of $5,000 each.

Demonstrators said the board was unfair to labor and asserted that the 13 witnesses called before the hearing were all businessmen and that the meeting was deliberately held during working hours so working persons could not attend.

Boldt, a retired U.S. District Court Judge from Tacoma, Wash., told newsmen only that the protest was the "first incident of any kind that we've had."

"But I don't condemn them," he said. "We live in a free country."

He said the hearing here was to elicit "constructive criticism and suggestions toward perfecting our regulations to insure equity and fairness for all concerned."

"Why don't you go down to the factories?" asked another demonstrator," before he was hustled out.

"I think they should be heard," said a woman. She, too, was shown the door.

Later, two demonstrators were allowed to address the board.

THE SUBURBAN SCENE

Leonard M. Sperrys Set Musical Evening

By MOLLY MARIN

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard M. Sperry Jr. have invited some 75 guests to a musical evening Wednesday, beginning at 8 o'clock at their home in Belvedere.

Performing will be the young violinist Carol Tomlinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Tomlinson of San Rafael, who has been heard in many performances with the Marin Youth Orchestra and Orchestra Piccola. A winner of many musical honors, she received a four-year scholarship to the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia, Pa., and will be leaving soon to continue her musical education there.

Carol will play a Bach unaccompanied sonata, the Beethoven Kreutzer Sonata and "Tzigane," rhapsody for violin and piano by Ravel.

She will be accompanied at the piano by Shirley Bracco.

JUST RETURNED to San Rafael after a Caribbean cruise are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Scott Thomas and their children Robert Jr. and Heidi. They sailed on the cruise ship, the Nordic Prince, which put into ports in the Bahamas, Puerto Rico and Trinidad.

GUESTS FROM Belgium, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Vanhaeverbeke, were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Aleksei Zaitzeff of Tiburon last week. The couple have been touring national parks in this country with the foreign diplomat travel program. Vanhaeverbeke's assignment is in Washington, D.C. The Zaitseffs took the Belgian pair to luncheon at the Spinnaker restaurant in Sausalito and gave them a tour of the county Aug. 15, then invited friends to their home at Greenwood Beach in Tiburon to meet their house guests.

JOINING TRAIL-RIDERS for a 100 mile week-long horseback ride in the Black Hills of South Dakota were Amelba Thompson of Woodacre and Roseanne Carlton of Cotati. They were among 180 riders from 15 states to participate in the 21st annual Black Hills Trail ride. They visited Mt. Rushmore National Memorial, viewed the wild buffalo herd in Custer State Park and rode up the 7,242 foot Harney Peak.

A PEDIATRIC HOUSE officer, the baby's exclusively assigned nurse and another nurse to help adjust equipment, care for a critically ill baby in a radiant warmer, as electronic monitoring equipment monitors his life signs at the University of California, San Francisco's newborn intensive care center. The new methods have cut infant death nearly 75 per cent in the last four years.

Infant Mortality Rate Down 75% In Four Years

By PAT BALMES

The newborn survival rate and, more important, the quality of those survivors is improving greatly at University of California, San Francisco's newborn intensive care center.

Using new techniques, U.C. has cut its infant death rate almost 75 per cent in the last four years, according to the center's director Dr. Roderic Phibbs of Mill Valley.

Local hospitals such as Marin General send their sickest premature and term newborns to newborn intensive care centers such as U.C.'s.

"The best transportation is in the uterus. If we can get the high-risk mothers moved to us before delivery, we can do better with their babies born in our hospital," said Dr. Phibbs.

"WE WAIT with a whole team of people. We can begin monitoring and treatment of a really sick baby 30 seconds after birth, and sometimes before birth to abort a process or modify it," he said. Equipment from the adjoining center can be wheeled right up to the delivery table.

Dr. Phibbs, an associate professor of pediatrics, was interviewed at his Mill Valley home where he lives with his wife and four sons. Two of his boys were born with hyaline membrane disease, a major killer and producer of handicaps in the newborn.

Not a rare disease but a common one, it is one of the most important medical problems in the United States. The stiff, immature lungs tend to collapse and the baby can't get his breath, Dr. Phibbs said.

ANESTHESIOLOGIST Dr. George Gregory of Larkspur, working with the center's staff, invented a new system of treating hyaline membrane disease called "Continuous Positive Airway Pressure" which keeps a small constant pressure on the lungs, allowing the baby to breath on his own. Perfected three years ago, it is now used throughout the country.

Now the survival rate among hyaline membrane babies born at UC is 90 per cent and 75 to 80 per cent of babies transferred there. Published nationwide statistics are only 40 to 50 per cent survival.

Emphasizing that U.C.'s center is reducing handicaps as well as the death rate, Dr. Phibbs cited a State Department of Public Health supported follow-up study on 200 sick newborns from all over the Bay Area who were treated at U.C. over the last six years.

"RIGHT NOW we should be seeing many more bad handicaps developing than there are," he said. Compared with statistics of 10 years ago, these children have only one third as much mental retardation and one fifth as much cerebral palsy.

"We must have a bigger impact on reducing handicaps than on increasing survivors. We are coming very close to a very tough ethical question — At some point the quality of life is not worth saving," he said.

Hopeful for those parents who only have one or two chances of getting alive baby, he said that the vast majority of three pound premature babies are now being saved with no mental retardation. Intra-uterine transfusion babies now being followed in studies average IQs of 110, with some up to 130.

WHAT WE could do for premature babies before 1956 was relatively little. We did not understand what the life and brain-threatening problems were. In the last seven or eight years there has been an explosion of knowledge in this field. Now we have tools to make some differences.

You began to do more to premature babies — measure respiratory and circulatory systems. When we measured blood pressure we found babies in shock, so we started treating them for shock. You started treating things you did not know were there until you did the research and made the measurements, he said.

The big change coming is that neonatologists are doing more for the fetus than for the new born. Now they can follow the fetus heart beat and measure the chemistry of the blood.

NOW THEY can tell most of the time if the baby is going to have hyaline membrane disease by testing the amniotic fluid. Results fall into three categories. Expectant mothers who test in the worst category should deliver in a hospital with a newborn intensive care unit," Dr. Phibbs said.

"In the future when we find a fetus with immature lungs, we hope to be able to treat the mother with hormones so her fetus' lungs will mature and when he is born he won't have hyaline membrane," he said, but research on this treatment is still incomplete.

"U.C.'s center is staffed by people who care intensively. And for one or two of us that's a full time job. We are always running over the Golden Gate Bridge at 2 a.m. The demands on your time are totally unpredictable. You are always at 75 or 150 per cent of capacity," he said.

"TO OPERATE a full-scale maximum intensive care program for newborns, a unit must have a population with 4 to 5,000 deliveries a year. High risk mothers should be delivered there, while moderate or low risk mothers should be delivered in community hospitals.

"Even community hospital delivery services must combine into fewer, larger units so that they can provide temporary maximum care for the unexpected delivery of a critical infant and intermediate care of moderately sick babies," he said.

The center's three open rooms can accommodate five maximum-care babies each requiring a specially trained nurse, 10 interim-care babies who need a nurse for every two of them, and nine recovery babies who can be cared for by three nurses.

The maximum care baby costs $240 a day and requires $6000 worth of monitoring equipment.

The well and sick infant nurseries' staff consists of two pediatric residents, three pediatric interns and three technicians exclusively assigned there. Five faculty members and specially trained nurses also work there.

"One of those interns, if he ever gets to sleep, sleeps in the small room next to the sickest baby," Dr. Phibbs said.

Dr. Phibbs is assisted by Dr. Gregory, Mill Valley pediatrician Dr. Joe Kitterman and the center's founder, Dr. William Tooley of San Francisco.

THEY DO regionalized training in the Bay Area, giving 30 to 40 lectures a year to pediatricians groups and they train nurses for hospitals who will care for moderately sick newborns in their hospitals and send the most difficult to special centers such as U.C.'s.

Asked why the United States ranked 14th in the world in 1969 in neonatal deaths, Dr. Phibbs said that good obstetrical and neonatal care are not readily available throughout the United States.

The countries with the best survival rates such as Sweden, Norway and Denmark, do not have as many sick newborns. They have a better cared-for and nourished population. They do not have large poverty populations which always have a much higher neonatal death rate, he explained.

HE ALSO commented that different systems of reporting, such as calling newborn deaths "abortions or stillbirths," can distort figures.

Other parts of this country need more newborn intensive care centers, but not the Bay Area which has several very good intensive care nurseries, he said.

Such care is incredibly expensive. Much of it is not covered by insurance policies which disenfranchise the newborn, Dr. Phibbs said, mentioning a bill before the state legislature which would make the sale of such policies illegal.

Mrs. Abbott To Preside Over Two Organizations

A busy year lies ahead for Mrs. Robert Lynn Abbott of Belvedere who will be president of two organizations.

Her interest in community service is reflected by her leadership of the Driftwood Unit of the Marin Foundation. The Marin Foundation, formerly the Friends of Arequipa, provides a group home for adolescents, whose family problems make it impossible for them to stay in their own homes or adjust successfully to placement in a foster home. In September the residents will move from an apartment to a home in Larkspur, where they will have more space and a yard and garden. The Driftwood Unit assists with fund-raising for the home. The annual Christmas card sale has already begun and plans are in the works for a fizz party to be given at 11 a.m. Sept. 15 at the home of Mrs. Richard McConnell in Tiburon.

Marialyce Abbott is also interested in the theater, and will assume the presidency of the Masque Unit. The Unit presents a play for children as part of the Junior Theatre of Marin winter season program, and in conjunction with the Youth in Arts Program. "The Wicked Witch of Endor" has been selected for presentation at the Marin Veterans Memorial Theater next March.

She has been active with both groups for three years. She has been hospitality chairman for the Driftwood Unit and vice president of the Masque Unit.

She is a past president of the Marin County Alumnae chapter of Delta Gamma, and a member of the Belvedere Sailing Society and the Tiburon Peninsula Club.

Mrs. Abbott is a native of Bismarck, N.D., and grew up in South Dakota. She received the bachelor degree from Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill. She also studied at Yankton College, S.D., the American Theater Wing, New York City, and California Institute of Fine Arts in San Francisco.

MRS. ROBERT L. ABBOTT
Elected twice

She is married to Robert Lynn Abbott, a real estate developer. They have lived in Marin County for seven years. They have two daughters, Tara, 10, and Kia, 6, and a son, Tane, 9.

The double president will have help with both organizations. Members of the incoming board of the Driftwood Unit are the Mmes. Joseph Veit, vice president; Mark Noble Jr., recording secretary; Harvey Rogers, corresponding secretary, and Benjamin Okulski, treasurer.

Officers of the Masque Unit are the Mmes. Gordon Dunn, vice president; Robert B. Rorick, secretary, and Kenneth A. Hulme, treasurer.

Hair Styles

Gone from the style scene is straight hair, hanging limp and lifeless. New on the fashion horizon are hair styles with body and shape. Curved curl and curly curl are the newest hair shapes, given body by permanent waves.

Controversial Proposal Would Hurt Consumers

By ROBERT P. HEY

The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Labels — that tell plainly, not in code, the date meat is packaged ("Open dating").

These are among a host of proconsumer proposals concerning meat and meat products that have been introduced into state legislatures in recent months. In a few areas some proposals have become law; in the vast majority they have not, but consumer advocates vow to keep the pressure on.

YET IF an almost unnoticed bill now on the verge of congressional passage becomes law, all the consumer pressure in the world can't help. The proposal now awaiting action by the full House of Representatives effectively would prevent states from requiring stiffer labeling, marking, and packaging laws for meat and meat products than the federal government now does.

The controversial provision is part of a bill to amend the Wholesome Meat Act, originally passed into law in 1967. This year's bill already has passed the Senate, although it then did not contain the anti-consumer provision.

However, if it passes the House in present form, as is expected, it will go to a Senate-House conference where the controversial provision is almost sure to be accepted in the final version of the bill.

In its present form this section of the bill says that the Secretary of Agriculture "shall withhold funds" with which the United States ordinarily would reimburse states for meat inspection, from any state with requirements different from the federal government's for the "marketing, labeling, or packaging of federally inspected carcasses, parcels, meat, or meat food products."

A SHOPPER ponders her selection of meat at the supermarket while Congress ponders whether to prevent the states from requiring stiffer meat labeling and packaging standards than the federal government does.

SOME CONSUMER advocates here are deeply concerned. In the first place, they say, stiffer laws governing meat packaging are necessary to provide consumers with information they really need. They hold that federal laws are insufficient. Specifically they mention the need for open dating of meats and unit pricing. (However, some firms voluntarily do provide unit pricing.)

These consumer sources say specifically that passage of the bill would negate the present stronger meat-packaging laws in Michigan and the state of Washington. Last month a consumer-oriented delegation from Michigan came to Captiol Hill to lobby against this providion on just these grounds.

More important, charge some consumer sources, the controversial section of this bill would slam the door on states at the very time they are considering stepping into the area of proconsumer meat-packing laws. They see this congressional action as stemming from the reaction of some members of Congress from meat-producing and packaging areas to the concern shown by the meat-producing industry over the prospects of state packaging laws.

However, there are some consumer interests here in Washington who view the burgeoning controversy as merely academic. Says one consumer source bluntly: "Virtually all of the states have lousy programs" in the consumer-packaging area.

He says that in a few states better programs than the federal government's exist "on the books" but they're "not enforced." As to the future, he isn't hopeful: "The states generally react to the producer and the distributor, rather than consumer interests."

You may be right, say his consumer colleagues who nonetheless differ with the assessment. But they don't like at all the prospect of consumer interests being prevented from achieving state action, without being able to have their views judged on their merits.

Advice To Girl With Two Dates - Wait And See Which Is Which

DEAR RAP:

When a guy treats you like his kid sister, you really work to make him fall. I thought I was really in love with Gar so I asked him to our homecoming dance this November. I was real surprised when he said "Okay."

It's the biggest dance of the year outside of the senior prom and I wouldn't feel right unless I went with someone I truly loved.

Well, now I've discovered I only "like" Gar — well enough to be friends but not like I LOVE Tony, who came into my life two weeks ago.

Last night Tony asked me to the homecoming ball. He's the one I want to go with so I didn't tell him about my date with Gar. Instead I put him off with "Let's wait a month and see if we still feel like this about each other." I should have been truthful, 'cuz now I'm in a mess. Whichever boy I go with the other will be mad. I don't want to hurt Gar (whom I've known for five years) but if I lose Tony, I'll DIE.

Should I tell them both I've sworn off dancing or something? — THREE MONTHS TILL HOMECOMING

DEAR TMTH:

If you're just a "kid sister" to Gar, don't you suppose he'll understand? A Homecoming Dance is very special and a girl should share it with the guy in her life, not the former guy in her life.

Wait a month and see which is which — SUE

DEAR TMTH:

. . . And don't be surprised if it's neither!

The moral of your letter is: girl with changeable heart should not plan three and one-half months ahead. — HELEN.

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

My mother had this wild crush on Tom Jones and when my grandmother teased her about it she laughed and said, "Remember how you mooned over Liberace — and he was 15 years younger than you!"

Anyway, I thought it was ridiculous, going crackers over TV stars. And then, Donny Osmond came along, and I guess it runs in families.

My father calls me wacky. My brother-in-law asks "Who's that good looking girl?" when he sees Donny's picture on my bulletin board. My mother says I'm "moony," and I don't dare remind her of Tom Jones.

My sister sympathizes but she says I'll never get to meet him so why bother? No one seems to realize I'm in love and you can't turn that off just by being practical. Besides I'm not lonely when I'm thinking of him.

I write his name all over my books and I've even carved it in a tree, along with mine. I'm jealous when I see him smiling at someone else (on TV). When other boys are stupid and childish, I pretend I'm talking to Donny and he understands and always says the right thing.

Am I crazy? If there's no hope (is there, just a little?) then will I ever get over it? — DONNY FOREVER

DEAR D.F.:

No, you're not crazy and, yes, you'll get over this crush. But meanwhile, it's helping you through what may be a rough time in your life. When a girl is vaguely lonely and not quite ready for real boys, it's comforting to have a "hero" who always says the right things, never makes her feel awkward or dumb, and will be "Donny on the spot," whenever her imagination calls him.

The world would be a sad place for young teenagers (and older people, too) if they could never daydream.

When will you outgrow Donny? — When a real Johnny, Pete, Dick, Tommy comes along. You'll see. — HELEN AND SUE

The Differing Views On Twins

The phenomenon of twins, which occurs a little more than three times in each 1,000 births, was looked upon differently in every culture. According to Greek legend, twins were magic or gods of healing. Castor and Pollux became the Gemini or twin constellation.

Other cultures considered twins a threat. A curse of disease was responsible, they believed, for this strange occurance and one twin was sacrificed. Some tribes of American Indians put all second-born twins to death, believing that these unusual creatures were not real people but instead, carriers of bad fortune and ill luck.

Still other Indian nations thought of Iwins as favored children, capable of supernatural acts. If the children were not pleased here, according to these tribes, they'd simply leave the earth the return to the heavens. To insure their favor, the Indians set twins apart, insisting that they dress alike in bright, colorful clothing. They were afforded very special care.

Bad Ceramics Can Produce Poison Food

There has been considerable concern in recent months about the risk of lead poisoning from eating food prepared in or served from improperly processed ceramic tableware.

The hazard is present when food acids react with the glass coating or glaze used on tableware. This glaze is applied to seal the ceramic surface and make it smooth and easy to clean. If the glaze is finished at too low a temperature in the final stages of the manufacturing process, it is not resistant to acid. The action of the acid in the food to dissolve the lead in the glaze results in a leaching effect, allowing the escaped lead to contaminate the food.

The foods which cannot be safely used in dubious tableware include substances which are sour or tart to the taste, such as vinegar, fruit juice, sauerkraut, soft drinks, tomatoes, etc. The danger of the food being lead-poisoned is increased if you eat these foods repeatedly, since lead can build up in the body. If the food is kept in the ceramic tableware overnight or if it is heated, the danger is further increased.

Symptoms of lead poisoning include cramping pains in the abdomen, constipation, fatigue and nervousness. If these symptoms appear and if you have been using lead or cadmium-glazed vessels, take these to your doctor and request that they and you be tested for lead.

Children Learn, Develop In Foreign Care Centers

By FLORENCE MOUCKLEY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

BOSTON, Mass. — Centers where children can learn and develop, not just a place to park the baby — this is how child day care is evolving in many countries with established public programs.

A Monitor survey of Sweden, the Soviet Union, China, Israel, Britain, France, and Japan shows the trends in day care are toward:

—Developing children's mental capacities.

—The placing of children in day-care centers at age 2 or 3 rather than when they are infants.

—A short day-care day for children if at all possible.

—More specialist training for personnel working directly with youngsters.

In Sweden, the feeling is that the child-care center should have two main functions: It must be an extension of the home where the child receives warm, loving care — and it must be a stimulating place for children to learn through playing.

Sweden, which has one of the most advanced and best systems of child care in the world, is examining every aspect of its program.

SWEDISH JOURNALIST and child-care expert Marrianne Karre, in an article in a booklet entitled "Before School Starts," published by the Swedish Institute, writes that "Materially speaking, the children are very well looked after. Intellectually and emotionally, a great deal more could be done, particularly for the youngest children and those 2 or 3 years. . .

"The idea that day nurseries and nursery schools are needed for the sake of the children themselves, for their development, has begun to gain acceptance only recently — although it has been held by preschool teachers themselves for more than half a century."

Mrs. Karre says that more could be done in other areas. She cites:

—"Shiny new child centers" throughout Sweden, which she feels impose a ready-made environment because they are built according to detailed plans laid down by central authorities. This tends, she asserts, to hamper new educational ideas and new "unforeseen activities."

—The division of children into age groups by government regulation. "The youngest children also have a need to meet older children, and the 3-to-6-year-olds like to help looking after the younger ones; they in their turn need contacts with schoolchildren, teen-agers, and other adults."

—The absence of father figures. More male personnel are needed. According to the Swedish Government this fall 62 men (of 275 applicants) were accepted among the 1,067 students for the two-year training courses for pre-primary school teachers compared with none last year.

—The very limited parent involvement.

FINALLY, MRS. Karre questions: What is the aim of the preschool?

"What sort of people do we really want our preschools to turn out? What does it mean for the preschool child to 'be adjusted to society'?. . .To what society? Today's society? To a utopia of A.D. 2000?"

Monitor special correspondent Francis Ofner reports that in Israel the major problem in urban day-care centers is manpower. The workers are too few and mostly untrained.

"There are some child centers where we must take the cleaning woman to watch the children," says the head of WIZO (Women's International Zionist Organization), Dr. Hanna Gelber. (Day-care centers in Israel are organized and run mostly by two women's organizations: WIZO and the Pioneer Woman. The rest are set up by the Women's National Religious Movement, municipalities, and private persons.)

THE RATIO of teachers or nurses to children is about 1 to 12. Of the total staff, about 71 per cent are either nurses or teachers who come in direct contact with the children. Twenty-nine per cent are household workers.

This is still a far cry from the Ministry of Welfare's regulations, namely that two workers are to be assigned to any group of 10 infants up to the age of 18 months; and two teachers for any group of 25 children at the age of 2 or 3.

The Ministry of Education has recently launched programs aimed at providing more skilled personnel in day-care centers.

As in Sweden, experts in Israel agree that children in centers need a substantial amount of intellectual stimulation as well as skilled handling of their emotional needs. This is why the need for highly trained staff is felt to be so urgent.

In Israel, with immigrants coming from both advanced and underdeveloped countries, day-care centers have also had a hand in bridging the occasionally enormous culture gap.

Dr. Gelber went so far as to declare that "the level of Israeli universities is dependent on the level of the day centers."

How do Israeli parents who send their children to the centers feel about them? As in other countries, there are mixed reactions.

Those who send them of their own accord, rather than out of need, view them as a blessing: "In the center, the child has many other children to play with. There is no need to run around looking for company. I fully recommend the place, both in terms of care and cost. . .," said one mother.

ANOTHER MOTHER: "The care received at the center is much better than the child would ever get from a private child nurse, even if the staff here are to a large extent unskilled."

On the tentative side: "More teachers per child — and better training for the staff —is what I would like to see," pitched in another parent.

"If my wife didn't have to go out and work, I would have preferred for my child to stay home; not because the center is necessarily bad, but it cannot be expected to replace the individual loving care which only a mother can give," said one father.

In China, reports Jonathan Unger, an American mother might well feel almost at home visiting a day-care center. The atmosphere is relaxed. The teachers try to use encouragement, not punishment, as their basic teaching technique, keeping the children happily at work at creative activities —even though the emphasis is on the common good, rather than individual achievement.

In former times, the teachers of even very young children were taskmasters who taught by rote and punishment. The new environment is a dramatic break with 2,000 years of education tradition.

Chinese parents are highly concerned with their children's nursery schools, and Unger says interviews indicated they were quite well informed. They apparently have regular conversations with teachers and, if general Chinese practices prevail, parents are free to make suggestions and criticisms.

PERIODICALLY COMPLAINTS are raised in the Soviet press about the neglect of children in Russian child-care centers, largely because of overcrowded conditions. (Some 9.4 million children receive day care.) But pedagogues claim that — at their best — these centers provide for excellent physical and mental development of children.

After a study in 1969 of 25 nurseries that were conducting a special program of games and lessons, a highly placed educator wrote that the children were "self-reliant, active, and organized. They sleep and eat better," he asserted, "and they have stronger daily hygienic habits than their home-grown counterparts."

Some Soviet parents, especially from the intelligentsia, shun the nurseries, however, charging that they sap a child's individuality and do not provide intellectual challenge for the gifted youngster. Many other parents search far and wide before selecting a nursery school which they fell is up to par.

Some Soviet experts are saying that children should not be placed in child-care centers until they are 2 or 3 years old. (Soviet nurseries accept babies at two months of age.)

According to Dr. Joan Bergstrom, an American child-care expert who has visited facilities in Sweden and the Soviet Union, each kindergarten in the Soviet Union is said to have a parent-education program.

"In Kindergarten 406, Moscow, the teachers work six days a week. Since most of the parents work five days a week, this facilitates parent-teacher meetings.

A LIBRARY GOES PLASTIC

Party Boots Film Boss; New Image

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Communist Party fired the chairman of its cinematography committee today and said the Soviet film industry was shirking its ideological role.

One party complaint: not enough devoted Communist heroes on the screen these days, but too many smatterings of Western cinema actions that are "alien" to Socialist realism.

Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper, published a decision by the Central Committee to tighten discipline in the Soviet film world. It also announced that Filipp T. Yermash had replaced Alexei V. Romanov as chairman of the state committee for cinematography.

The Central Committee decision indicated why Romanov lost the job he had held since 1965:

"The committee for cinematography weakly exercised the state supervision of the development of cinema art, did not guarantee a purposeful repertoire policy and did not make proper ideological and artistic demands."

The decision complained that Soviet film makers failed to fully use opportunities "to intensify the international and patriotic upbringing of the working people."

"Some films lack ideological purposefulness," it said. "There is no clear class approach in covering the social phenomena. Instead of truthful showing of life from the position of Lenin... such movies give a superfluous, unilateral and sometimes wrong interpretation of events and facts."

The decision said "there have been attempts at noncritical borrowing of the methods of foreign cinematography which are alien to...Socialist realism." The term "Socialist realism" refers to the Soviet contention that art's chief task is to assist the state in building communism.

"On the screen we rarely see heroes who would attract us by their human charm, their devotion to Communist ideals," the decision said. "At the same time, exaggerated attention is paid to personages which lack deep social interests and firm moral standards."

The decision told new committee chief Yermash to "take necessary measures to eliminate the shortcomings."

Petaluma's Growth Under New Policy

The Petaluma City Council last night approved a residential development control policy it hopes will keep reins on growth.

The policy reaffirms the council's previous limitation of growth to 500 new living units per year and calls for a balance of development on the east and west sides.

The council also approved a 17-member development control board after haggling over its number and membership. Councilman Fred V. Mattei said he thought a group of 17 may be too large, but other councilmen insisted a large amount of public input would be necessary.

The board will screen applications by developers and will recommend to the city council which developments should be built under the 500-home limit. No developer could get permission to build more than 100 units in any one year. Developments will be weighed on the basis of what school and city facilities are available, whether they meet the needs of the community, open space allotments and attractiveness of design.

The council will include two city councilmen, two planning commissioners, three business or professional representatives, four school district representatives and six citizens at large. The businessmen and citizens will represent east, west and central Petaluma.

Mayor Helen Putnam asked that the council submit names for the board at the council meeting next Monday at 7:30 p.m.

The Petaluma City Council also:

PARK'NG — Established a parking and business improvement area to collect fees from businesses to buy parking lots and promote downtown stores.

PARK — Heard Councilman Richard W. Clecak report that phase one of Shollenberger River Park adjacent to the city boat-launching ramp has been funded with $34,000 from the county and $25,000 from a federal grant and will include four acres of turf, picnic areas, play area, landscaping and fencing. He said the city in conjunction with the county is working on plans to develop the other 16 acres of the park.

HOUSING — Scheduled a Sept. 5 public hearing on the proposed housing element.

DEMOLITION — Called for estimates of costs to demolish a city-owned house at 303 Post Street to determine if the building should be torn down or repaired.

CAB — Denied the application of Yellow Cab Co. for a taxi service permit since no representatives have been available to answer questions.

TAX RATE — Introduced an ordinance setting the city tax rate at $1.89 per $100 assessed valuation and scheduled discussion on it for Sept. 5. Vice Mayor John W. Cavanagh Jr. said he may protest the tax rate, but gave no reason.

MEETING — Adjourned to next Monday at 7:30 p.m. to consider the planning department project schedule for next year.

'IT'S KINDA FUN'

'Mills Administration' Takes Over Sacramento

SACRAMENTO (AP) — "Would you like to be really, really governor?" James R. Mills was asked as the president pro tem of the state Senate held his first news conference as acting governor of California. "Yeah," the San Diego Democrat said grinning. "It's kinda fun."

That set the tone yesterday for what he called the beginning of the "Mills administration" which is scheduled to include a 19-gun salute and the first time a governor has signed a bill he authored in the state legislature.

The Senate president pro tem is third in line of ascendancy to the office of governor, and next is the speaker of the Assembly — currently Van Nuys Democrat Bob Moretti.

Mills said he will sign his bicycle lanes bill into law Wednesday at the city library in Davis. He also reported he plans to ride his bicycle from his residence in Davis to the state Capitol one day this week — a distance of 14 miles.

He is anavid bicyclist and pointed out the signing will mark the first time California has appropriated money — $720,000 in Mills' bill-toward bicycle land construction in yet-to-be-designated areas.

Bicycling is good exercise and it makes the rider feel he's moving around without contributing to pollution, Mills says.

The balding 45-year-old hosted reporters yesterday in his spacious gold-carpeted, paneled office. He said he was offered the use of the regular governor's office.

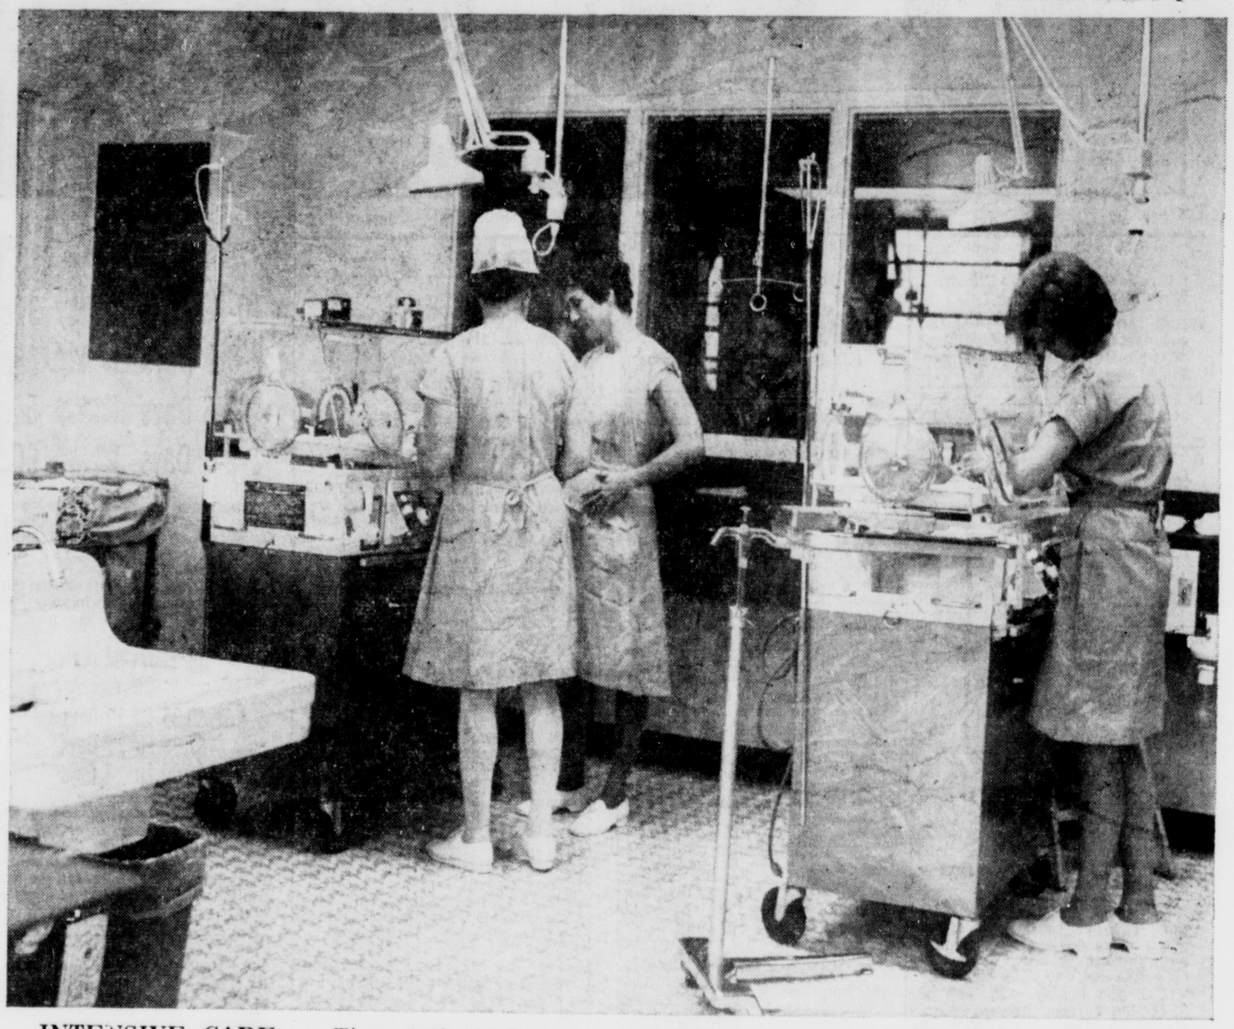
SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY
THIRD SECTION SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, TUESDAY, AUGUST 22, 1972 17

NEWLY BORN— Kristi Lynn Brown seems to be attempting a smile following her Caesarian birth last week as she is lifted inside an isolette in the intensive care nursery. The daughter of Edward and Judith Brown of San Rafael, Kristi was reported to be "thriving" this week.



INTENSIVE CARE — Tiny patients lying inside highly sophisticated isolettes are constantly watched and treated by nurses in Marin General Hospital's new intensive care nursery. Anxious parents can watch through glass windows and visit their ailing babies as often as they like.

New-Look Care For The Newborn

By PAT PERRY

Marin General Hospital's new intensive care nursery is in operation after a $27,000 remodeling program that has centered care for acutely ill newborns in a single section of the hospital.

The nursery's space has been doubled to accommodate eight babies, and includes new cardiac monitoring equipment contributed by the North Bay Chapter of the National Foundation, March of Dimes.

"We've been offering this kind of service for some time," explained hospital administrator Ray K. Bolinger, "but we've zeroed in on the problem."

He said two pediatricians specializing in neo-natology share the responsibility for the intensive care unit on a 24-hour basis.

"Most infants will not need the intensive care nursery," he emphasized, "but it is a vital backup to obstetrical and pediatric services."

At $70 a day, the unit's rates are one-third the cost of comparable facilities in San Francisco, he said.

In addition to the familiar isolettes, which enable nurses to handle baby patients in a womb-like environment, the unit has a heated treatment table, which Gail Moore, clinical nurse specialist, said makes it possible for nurses and doctors to treat babies outside the isolettes.

She estimated there are about 3,000 births a year to Marin County mothers, with 1,200 to 1,300 of that number at Marin General.

At a time when the birth rate is dropping nationwide, why did the hospital district enlarge its nursery facilities?

"We looked at it from the standpoint of trying to serve the total needs of the community," said Bolinger.

Contact with their ailing baby is completely different from the look through a glass window that parents once were limited to.

For a start, parents get teaching sessions.

"We really do encourage liberal visiting," said Miss Moore. "We try to get the mother to do some of the feeding at least once during the day. And she can wash the baby, for instance."

"When it's twins, we get the father in for the teaching sessions so the couple can function as a team at home."

Miss Moore or a public health nurse make a pre-discharge visit to the baby's home, checking temperature and location of the baby's sleeping quarters and answering worried mothers' questions.

"And we tell them to discourage visitors for the first month," she added, "because the babies don't have the resistance to disease."

Perhaps the biggest role these teaching sessions and home visits play is giving the parents confidence in their ability to look after their child once it's well enough to leave hospital, Miss Moore explained.

And after the baby is discharged, another home visit is made on the second day. "Usually the mother has lots more questions by then," Miss Moore said.

No additional fee is charged for the home visiting service, Bolinger said. "It's all part of our intention to integrate health care into the community."

San Anselmo Planners Talk But Don't Act On Moratorium

The San Anselmo planning Commission last night discussed halting "upward" zoning and lot splits of more than an acre until the city adopts a new general plan, but took no action on a proposed moratorium.

Under consideration at a public hearing attended by about 25 persons was a suggestion that a four-month emergency ordinance be adopted to prevent more density than is now permitted, and which could be extended to last as long as two years.

Planning Commission Chairman Duane C. Ragan emphasized "this is not a moratorium on building, only on density," but David Greenlee, executive manager of Marin Builders Exchange, said he was opposed to "any type of moratorium."

He called present zoning tools adequate to control density and lot splits and pointed out that only six apartment buildings and 31 homes were built last year in San Anselmo.

Others in the audience, however, including resident Mia Cassady, supported the proposal. She called it a "relatively mild moratorium" compared to those in other cities.

City Engineer Charles R. Leitzell said the moratorium would provide "a chance to get the answers to questions such as open space and pollution" and would give time for a citizens group to complete a new general plan for the city.

The commission agreed to discuss the matter again at a special meeting at 8 p.m. Monday in the city council chambers.

The San Anselmo Planning Commission also:

COMPLAINTS — Heard reports of noise and traffic problems around the Lion's Share nightclub on Red Hill Avenue, but took no action.

DENIAL — Refused to allow Michael Gallagher to split a lot at 80 Butterfield Road into two parcels because to do so would have created an R-2 zoning on a single residence lot.

No Action Taken On Lot Sizes

The Fairfax City Council last night held its sixth public hearing without action on a proposed zoning ordinance that would require larger minimum lot sizes for development.

At issue last night were the city's commercial zones, according to Mayor Albert E. Gately.

About 40 residents attended the hearing, many of whom argued that the new commercial zones would reduce property values, Gately said.

An attorney for Max Friedman, owner of the 26.78acre Marin Town and Country Club property, said that the historic parcel should either be bought by the city or rezoned for multiple-residential development, according to Gately.

"The attorney said that it was no longer profitable to run a swimming club there," the mayor reported.

Under the ordinance, property now zoned commercial, limited commercial or industrial would be rezoned to limited commercial, highway commercial, central commercial or commercial recreational zone. Friedman's property would be zoned commercial recreation, which would bar residential uses, Gately said.

The council decided to hold another public hearing on the ordinance on Sept. 18, at which time zoning definitions and procedural steps will be reviewed, Gately said.

Rohnert Park Council Pro School Tax Idea

The Rohnert Park City Council last night endorsed a Cotati School District plan to collect extra fees from subdividers to provide temporary classrooms.

City Mgr. Peter M. Callinan said the council accepted the plan by the school district to collect $75 per home from developers. Funds will be used to lease portable classrooms to accomodate the projected overflow of students until a new building can be constructed.

Callinan said developers had agreed to the plan, but had suggested the fee be lowered to $50 per home.

The council had earlier rejected the district's request that the city collect the funds or provide temporary schools that could later be used as recreation centers.

The Rohnert Park City Council also:

TAX RATE — Set the 1972-73 tax rate at $1.69 per $100 assessed valuation, the same as last year.

PLANNER — Hired Thomas Cordill, former Marin County zoning administrator, as a planner to work 80 hours per month at a salary of $725 per month.

SUBDIVISION — Approved the final map for Unit Three of Country Manor subdivision with 85 homes.

MOBILE HOMES — Heard William Phillips report he has plans to upgrade the appearance of Rancho Feliz mobile home park and to meet the council requirement for a maximum of 30 per cent units with children.

FENCING — Approved plans for a portable fence at Alicia Park baseball diamond at a cost of $1,100.

MEETING — Adjourned with the next regular meeting on Sept. 5 at 7 p.m.

Coastal Planning Hearing Is Set

A proposed master plan for the Bay Area's 246 miles of ocean coastline will have its first public hearing at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the supervisors chambers in the Marin Civic Center.

The plan calls for halting virtually all development in West Marin and proposes creation of a new regional agency with broad powers to enforce the plan.

The plan was drafted by consultants to the Association of Bay Area Governments. The hearing will be by the association's ocean coastline planning committee, chaired by Marin County Supervisor Michael Wornum.

If approved by ABAG's executive committee, the plan will be a basis for review of projects using federal funds for transportation, water and sewer facilities and open space acquisition.

Do You Want
A BETTER Deal
On The SAME New Car?

All new car dealers have the same models, styles, colors and optional equipment on their new cars. What is the difference between dealers on the same make of car?

THE ANSWER IS IN THE COST OF DOING BUSINESS IN ONE AREA AS AGAINST ANOTHER

Marin County new car dealers have a much lower cost of doing business that the dealers "over the bridge." This is why your new car will cost less in Marin County. WHY DON'T YOU CHECK AND SEE!

Viet Cong Says Nixon Missing A Peace Chance

PARIS (UPI)—The Viet Cong said today that President Nixon is missing a chance to settle the war in Vietnam "within several days" by maintaining, even in the Republican platform, his support of South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Ly Van Sau, official spokesman for the Viet Cong delegation to the peace talks, also said the Nixon administration is attempting to "trick American opinion" into the belief that its program of Vietnamization of the war is succeeding.

"The Republican party platform glorifies the policy of Vietnamization of the war, repeats President Nixon's May 8 ultimatum and reaffirms support for puppet Nguyen Van Thieu at all cost," Sau told a news conference at his delegation's headquarters.

"We reaffirm that if President Nixon wants a just and honorable peace, if he responds to our legitimate demands and negotiates seriously, peace can be achieved within several days," Sau said.

He said optimistic statements by U. S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers about the possibility of a settlement around the time of the U.S. presidential election Nov. 7 were not realistic.

"Mr. Rogers' aim is clear," Sau said. "On the eve of the Republican convention in Miami, he was trying to trick American opinion into thinking that Vietnamization has succeeded."

The Viet Cong have said that President Nixon's Vietnamization program is designed to maintain U.S. domination of South Vietnam and has failed.

The White House said Monday that Rogers' statement in a newspaper interview about a possible negotiated peace before or soon after Nov. 7 was not a prediction but expression of a hope.

Sau said the only conditions acceptable for peace were those set forth in the Viet Cong's seven-point plan that was proposed 13 months ago and from which the Communist delegations have never publicly wavered.

"In the last few days American government leaders have made statements aiming to convince that President Nixon, during his term in office, has only sought peace and that, if peace has not come, it is the fault of the Vietnamese," Sau said. "Such statements are absolutely false."

"We don't want to humiliate the United States or make the United States capitulate as President Nixon always pretends," he said. "But if President Nixon continues his same policies of the last four years, then peace cannot be achieved," Sau said.

Reds Storm From Citadel; Reel Back With Heavy Casualties

SAIGON (UPI) — Tank-led North Vietnamese units stormed out of the Citadel in Quang Tri City today and attacked South Vietnamese marines but were beaten back with heavy losses, front dispatches reported.

In the Da Nang area, a force of 7,000 South Vietnamese hit Communist positions menacing the city from the south.

Storm clouds masked much of North Vietnam and U.S. fighter-bombers and B-52s carried out attacks in Quang Tri and against Communist armor and artillery south of Da Nang. One F4 Phantom was shot down over Quang Tri with its two-man crew lost and another was badly damaged.

The marines said they hit several tanks with American-supplied disposable LAW anti-tank rocket launchers but were unsure whether the tanks were destroyed. They said that when the North Vietnamese came out to retrieve their dead they were hit by artillery fire and that at least 100 must have died.

UPI reporter Ed Basset said the 7,000-man ARVN force below Da Nang moved to within two miles of Base Camp Ross, which was overrun Sunday by North Vietnamese forces who captured nearby Que Son City.

He said the ARVN column killed a dozen Communists today and freed two South Vietnamese captured Sunday.

The South Vietnamese said fighting had swirled to within one mile of Que Son and that in three battles one to six miles from the town the Communists lost 31 killed and four captured. Five South Vietnamese were wounded. The South Vietnamese said the Communists had not captured the Que Son Valley itself but only the area around Que Son town.

Meanwhile the South Vietnamese Foreign Ministry today denied that Saigon had accepted peace proposals drawn up last week by the five member countries of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN).

The communique said the ASEAN plan stipulated only a "simultaneous cease-fire" between North and South Vietnam which would not be internationally supervised. South Vietnam's eight-point proposal demands a cease-fire for all of Indochina, including North Vietnam, under international supervision.

Fired Tam Teacher Files Writ

Fired Tamalpais High School teacher Kenneth A. Anderson yesterday tried a new legal tactic to get his job back, at least until his case is heard in court.

A petition for a writ of mandamus was filed in Marin Superior Court on Anderson's behalf by Carl B. Shapiro, who maintained Anderson has a right to be reinstated while the case is pending.

Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino, who represents the school district, today said Anderson has not yet had a hearing on the charges because it is not required by the education code. He added that Shapiro has raised a constitutional question, saying Anderson is entitled to such a hearing.

In June, the Tamalpais High School District board filed suit aimed at firing Anderson, who has been suspended since April on moral charges.

The suit accused Anderson of encouraging and participating in illegal acts with a student who was linked to three bombings in Southern Marin last year. He also was charged with "engaging in inappropriate conduct with a female student."

Earlier, Anderson had been given a nonteaching job for "refusal to follow school rules." He then was suspended from his English teaching job in April when the new charges were added.

Anderson has appealed his firing but no trial date has been scheduled.

Another Try Slated On Manzanita Center

The Sausalito School District board agreed last night to ask the Marin City Community Services District to reconsider its recent refusal to become the agency to coordinate use of the vacant Manzanita School by private groups in Marin City.

If the services district board does not change its mind, the school board indicated it may have to call for bids on the facility and lease it to the highest bidder, according to Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg.

He said a call for bids might result in making the school inaccessible to many organizations in Marin City wanting to use it.

Last week the services district board said it was not interested in leasing the facility — which has been closed since last September — from the district. The services district board instead suggested that Manzanita be leased to the Bethsaida Mission, a Marin City church group.

But Lindberg said the district cannot legally turn the school over to a private organization, including a church, without calling for bids to give all private groups an equal chance to lease the building.

He said the Marin City Learning Center's request to obtain the school for its private classes next year was turned down for that reason.

A special committee of the school board — Trustees Warren K. Hansen and Betty Times — had recommended the school be leased to a public Marin City organization which could oversee its use by other community groups. The services district is the only public agency in Marin City.

Last night Dr. Hansen said he did not believe the learning Center (a private school started by parents dissatisfied with the education their children were receiving in Sausalito schools) should be allowed any use of Manzanita. But Mrs. Times thought the center should be treated like any other private group and permitted some use.

In asking the services district to reconsider, the school board said the district is willing to assist the district by setting up guidelines for use of the building.

Mystery Will Makes Panthers Jackson Heirs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Photostatic copies of a one-page will purportedly signed by convict author George Jackson the day he was shot to death at San Quentin Prison are circulating in the San Francisco Bay Area.

Turner was an important member of the Black Panther Party at the time Jackson, three guards, and two "honor" inmates were killed during what prison officials described as a breakout attempt. But Turner is reported to have split from the party since that time.

Attorney Ed Bell, who is representing the Jackson family in the matter of Jackson's estate, said he had "no comment" on the purported will.

Jackson's only visitor on the day of his death was attorney Stephen Bingham, scion of a wealthy Connecticut family who dropped from sight hours after the escape and has been missing ever since.

Bingham is accused of smuggling a gun to Jackson in a tape recorder during that last visit and has been charged with five murders in the incident — the three guards and two "honor" inmates.

San Quentin Warden Louis S. Nelson said Jackson did not have access to a typewriter in his prison cell, adding:

"If the so-called 'will' is legitimate, and I'm not prepared to say that it is, it was brought in for signing and taken out by Bingham, who was found among Jackson's personal effects."

The probate court in Marin County has already recognized Jackson's mother, Georgia, as the administrator of his estate. The estate is believed to consist primarily of certain publishing rights plus letters, documents and manuscripts found in Jackson's cell.

The 29-year-old black revolutionary author was best known of the three Soledad Brothers. At the time of his death, Jackson was awaiting trial on charges of murdering a Soledad Prison guard in January, 1970.

Local Relief Rolls Decline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federally financed relief rolls continued to increase during April but state and local charity cases declined, the Health, Education and Welfare Department (HEW) reported today.

More than 15 million Americans received welfare money during April, the latest month for which national statistics are available. This represented a decline of 3,000 persons from the previous month.

But the number of mothers and children in needy families, and blind and disabled persons —all federally supported—was up 8,000 to 14.1 million.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Tips Given To Older Persons On How To Avoid Accidents

It is not necessary to slow down with age, but the person with poor eyesight, arthritis, or cardiovascular disease has no choice.

Those who reach 65 in good shape might learn that being more graceful is a means of remaining active and avoiding accidents. Safety practices are important because each year almost 30,000 persons 65 and older have fatal accidents in the home. Half of these involve falls.

TOO MANY senior citizens are more active than they should be. They hustle up and down steps, clean house, hurry to the store, and lift heavy objects. There is no harm when the oldster is accustomed to this routine, but the majority forget they are getting older until an accident occurs.

Meanwhile, they are careless and refuse to be sensible — possibly because they do not want to look or act their age.

There are several hazards in the home that are especially bothersome to oldsters. Falling is common, so keep all stairways lighted and keep one hand on the railing.

INSERT NIGHT LIGHTS in bedrooms, halls, and bathrooms. Avoid scatter rugs or carpets unless they rest on non-skid mats or are fastened to the floor. The bathroom is also a booby trap; have it fitted with hand holds and rubber mats, especially inside the tub or shower. Keep the floor dry.

NEVER TURN suddenly and only move in the direction you are looking. With age, everyone should learn to walk with the feet farther apart. This stance broadens the base. Small, run-down heels lack proper support and encourage falling.

Good health and good safety practices are inseparable. A healthy body is better able to take stress and an active mind is less forgetful. An oldster who thinks he is over the hill soon will be there.

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.
Carbon Monoxide, light air pollution.
Smoke particles, clean air.
Other areas:
San Francisco, light air pollution.
San Jose, significant air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial courses, while the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Bad Check Is Called A Mistake

The attorney for rock musician Buddy Miles, 28, has claimed that a bad check charge against Miles stems from a mistake.

The lawyer, Marvin Cahn, asked for and received a pretrial conference in Marin Municipal Court, scheduled for Sept. 6 at which time, he said, he hopes the matter can be taken care of.

Miles had earlier failed to show up in court, Cahn said, because he misunderstood the date of his court appearance.

Cahn said he was released from jail in a hurry earlier this month "because 5,000 screaming fans" were awaiting his appearance at a Sacramento concert.

Cahn said when Miles learned his moving bill had not been paid by his manager, he wrote out the check on an account in a Massachusetts bank which he did not realize had been closed.

Cahn said his client had many more times the sum of the bad check in other accounts.

Campaign Limit Set At $7,500

Supervisorial candidate Barbara Boxer of Greenbrae has announced she will limit her campaign spending to $7,500 and suggested her opponent, incumbent Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. of Fairfax, do likewise.

Mrs. Boxer, who issued the same challenge before the June primary, spent $6,090 to Arrigoni's $12,006. She outpolled him in the primary, 6,430 to 6,135.

She also announced she will disclose all contributions monthly, a practice only she followed in the primary contest, and urged Arrigoni to do likewise.

Mrs. Boxer, in a letter to Arrigoni, said their campaigns should appeal to the intelligence of the voters instead of trying "to buy their votes with the usual expensive public relations techniques."

$175 Raised At Novato Carnival

She estimated that approximately 200 persons attended the carnival at their home at 55 Gustafson Court. Last year the carnival netted $120 for Muscular Dystrophy, she said.

A marathon on roller skates to raise money for the same cause will be held from 1 to 10 p.m. Sunday at Marin Skateland at 863 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, and not yesterday as reported Friday in the Independent-Journal.

Statement By Rogers Clarified

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The State Department says Secretary of State William P. Rogers was not predicting a specific date for settlement of the Vietnam war in an interview he granted last week.

Knight Newspapers Inc. quoted Rogers in an article published Sunday as saying there would be a negotiated settlement before or "very soon after President Nixon's reelection."

Department spokesman Robert J. McCloskey said at a briefing Monday that Rogers was speaking "in terms of months" and that it "was not an effort on his part to make a flat prediction."

Political Writer Views Convention

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

At 9:45 p.m. EDT, Monday a very pretty girl of the young voter age group politicians are trying to woo this year asked wistfully:

"Isn't there anything else on television tonight?"

I had to tell her all three networks were devoting prime evening time to coverage of the Republican National Convention in Miami Beach.

She responded to this information by slipping quietly out of the room.

This is the first time since 1948 I have watched the national political conventions over TV instead of covering them in person from the noisy, sweaty, crowded confines of the convention press box.

All these years, I've had the idea a convention would be far more interesting if you saw it on TV than if you had to sit through it in person. I was wrong. The only difference is that if you're watching it from your own living room, you don't have to walk five miles through subterranean passages to reach the men's room.

No, take that back. There's another difference. On TV, you get to see Walter and David and Howard and Harry and John and all the other big TV stars telling you what you're seeing—or what you would be seeing if the camera were focused on the rostrum instead of on them.

I did not find this an improvement.

Neither did the charming lady who watched the opening GOP session with me. She has a thing about John Hart, and remained furiously frustrated throughout the evening because CBS never showed Hart's handsome profile. At the risk of appearing more neutral than the hardnosed reporter ought to be, I must confess I could not detect much difference in the presentations of the three major networks even though I kept switching channels with perfervid devotion to duty.

I did, however, observe one big change from the Democratic convention which took place in the same hall five weeks ago.

The Republicans obviously have a much clearer understanding than the Democrats of the main purpose of a national convention. The Democrats have this quaint idea that a convention is primarily intended to nominate candidates and settle issues. So they droned on far into the night with protracted arguments and dreary roll calls.

The Republicans know that a convention is a chance to get millions of dollars worth of free TV time to launch a political campaign—and they are using it with magnificent efficiency. Their opening TV show was tightly scheduled and on time from start to finish. All of the speakers fed the audience the red meat of unabashed partisanship. There was one booboo when they showed one movie on the air while the delegates in the hall saw another, but who cared about that?

On the whole, it went very smoothly and I suspect even Democrats watched because, as the pretty girl brought out, it was the only game in town.

Guilty Plea Entered In Marijuana Case

Mark Edward Estrada, 21, of no fixed address, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Superior Court to a charge he possessed a pouch of marijuana on June 16.

Estrada also admitted to an earlier conviction of a similar crime, which could affect his sentence.

He has been promised, though, under the terms of a plea bargain that he will receive a $250 fine and a jail sentence of 10 days.

Estrada was arrested by a sheriff's deputy who saw a pouch of pot on Estrada's car dashboard after the youth was stopped for a defective taillight.

San Quentin Strike Vote Is Shelved

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A strike vote by San Quentin and other correctional officers has been shelved, a spokesman for the California State Employees Association announced today.

The employees committee of CSEA voted Saturday in Sacramento to postpone the vote pending outcome of negotiations with representatives of Gov. Ronald Reagan, according to spokesman Richard Martin.

The main points of disagreement between the state and the correctional officers concern safety on the job, working conditions and more pay, he said.

The association says it represents 551 of San Quentin's 650 employees and 5,000 of the 7,200 correctional workers throughout the state.

Five Die In Crash Of 10 Vehicles

GILROY (AP) — Five persons were killed and eight others injured in a grinding 10 vehicle crash on the Pacheco Pass about 22 miles east of here.

East and westbound traffic was halted for four miles in each direction for more than six hours yesterday in the area of California 152.

The California Highway Patrol said it took rescue workers up to four hours to remove victims pinned in the wreckage of their vehicles.

Although details of the accident remained sketchy, those at the scene said a 10-wheeled semitrailer truck loaded with peaches went out of control going down the long west side of the pass.

The vehicle jackknifed, wrecked another large truck, sliced a pickup in half and rolled over onto a car, officers said.

In all, three large trucks, two pickups and five passenger autos were reported involved in the accident.

Killed in the crash were Roy Hifner, 53, of Tulare; Henry Hifner, 3, his grandson, of Campbell; Bobby Ray Smith and Robert Bruce Barnes, both 25 and of Stockton, and Richard Bunting, 34 of Santa Clara, the Santa Clara County coroner's office said.

Two persons, one listed in critical condition and the other in serious condition, were being treated at Wheeler Hospital in Gilroy. Four other persons were treated for minor injuries and released, a spokesman at the medical facility said.

Two other persons were reported treated and released at Los Banos Community Hospital.

The three people in the crushed car were believed among those dead.

Name of the driver whose truck went out of control was not immediately available.

Carl Schneider, a truck driver from Mitchell, S.D., told a reporter he was driving up the pass "when I saw this semitrailer bearing down on me on the wrong side of the road. As he overturned and hit me he went on top of a passenger car," Schneider said.

Schneider's truck was shunted into an embankment.

Marinwood Vote On Land Purchase

The Marinwood Community Services District board last night scheduled Jan. 23 for a bond election to finance open space acquisition, but set no amount for the bond.

"We decided to hold public hearings and seek community guidance to see how much people are willing to pay," said board member Frank Solomon Jr. He added that the bond issue might be in "the $400,000 range".

Board member Ellis D. Jaquette and open space committeemen James Winter and Michael Laughlin were appointed to a priority committee charged with contacting property owners and developing a priority list of open space parcels, according to Genevieve T. Bolding, district manager.

She said the board also authorized a $2,500 expenditure to appraise and conduct a title search of about a dozen undeveloped parcels in the district.

The board will schedule a public hearing on the bond issue election at its Sept. 18 meeting, she said.

The open space action comes on the heels of a district poll which showed that 89 per cent of 824 residents queried favored open space acquisition.

The Marinwood Community Services District board also:

CADET — Extended the employment of fire cadet Gary Sosa for three weeks at a wage of $1.55 an hour. A federal program that financed the cadet ended last week, Mrs. Bolding said.

CENTER RENTAL — Adopted a revised rental schedule for Marinwood Community Center. The board abandoned its $15-per-hour charge for use of the building and instead decided to charge outside groups $35 per event for building use. The charge will vary according to tha activity planned, Mrs. Bolding said.

LIGHTING — Agreed to pay Pacific Gas and Electric Co. $4.11 more per month when it learned that the firm had not been charging for a street light.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Sept. 18 in the community center.

Natural-Type Flood Control Due Study

A Novato Creek Flood Control plan that would leave the creek channel in its natural state will be aired at a meeting of the Novato Flood Control Zone Advisory Board at 8 p.m. Thursday at the Novato Community House.

Reagan Signs Bills Adding Smog Seats

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Bills adding two "public" members to the hearing boards of air pollution control districts and extending the jurisdiction of the Bay Area district to motor vehicles have been signed into law by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The first, AB 1084 by Assemblyman W. Craig Biddle, R-Riverside, will add two members to the three-member hearing boards. One of the new members must be an officer of a private, nonprofit organization devoted to environmental concerns. The other will be selected from the public.

The classification of the other three will be changed from two attorneys and an engineer to one engineer, one attorney and one doctor.

The other bill, AB 2019 by Assemblyman Richard D. Hayden, R-Sunnyvale, authorizes the board of directors of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District to enforce air pollution control laws contained in the vehicle code. This is done now on a haphazard basis by the California Highway Patrol.

Still No Solution To Olympic Dispute

MUNICH (UPI)—The Executive Board of the International Olympic Committee wrestled for hours today on the Rhodesian dispute that has rocked the Olympic Games without seeming to come any closer to a solution.

However, Monique Berlioux, director of the I. O. C.'s Secretariat said, "I think we'll have a decision by this evening. The position of both parties is well known."

The nine-man Executive Board, which is charged with putting together a proposal that will be presented to the entire 73-member Congress, met with the Rhodesian delegation shortly after breakfast and then returned to the conference room to meet with the whole Congress.

The Board invited representatives of both Rhodesia and the African nations which are calling for the expulsion of Rhodesia to speak before the Congress. Meanwhile, Cuba, Haiti, and Yugoslavia have joined the Africans in opposing Rhodesia.

The I. O. C. is walking a tightrope between the two sides, trying to find an area of agreement which would avoid a threatened walkout by some 32-35 African countries from the Games which are scheduled to open Saturday.

The Supreme Council for Africa Sports (SCAS) decided Monday its 30-plus members will go home if Rhodesia is not expelled, according to Abraham Ordia of Nigeria, president of the council.

"It's them or us," Ordia told the IOC. passions are too high.

"There can be no compromise on this issue," Jean-Claude Ganga of The Congo said. He is secretary general of the National Olympic Committee of Africa (NOCA).

After the IOC received the African ultimatum, they called in the Rhodesians. The chief of the Rhodesian team, Ossie Plasket, returned to his apartment and promised to do anything the IOC wanted, even leave.

"It's in their hands," a harried Plasket said from an 18th floor apartment in the Olympic Village. "We'll abide by whatever the IOC says. We've always gone by every little rule."

The IOC, after almost 24 hours of nonstop discussions ending early today, resumed its deliberations at mid-morning in a downtown hotel with the Rhodesians in attendance again.

"We wjnt to talk to them and gain clarification on a few points," an IOC spokesman said.

The IOC executive committee was asked Monday to draw a resolution on the situation which could be presented to the IOC Congress for a vote today. But it didn't.

"Gentlemen, I'm tired," one committee member said. "It's been a long day. We have an early start. We were unable to agree among ourselves."

Willie Daume of Germany, president of the Olympic Organizing Committee, said he would not ask the Rhodesians to leave.

"You cannot invite somebody and kick him out a few days before the games," Daume said. "No I will not consider asking them to help us by leaving.

A high IOC source said if the Africans win, politics will have entered the games, contrary to Olympic policy.

The major problem is the Rhodesian travel document, an identification card issued by the organizing committee. The Africans insist the Rhodesians did not furnish proof of their identity in the form of a British passport and thus broke the agreement reached last year in Luxemburg.

But the United Nations has a sanction on Rhodesia, meaning they cannot use passports in any country belonging to the UN, including Germany. The sanction committee of the UN Security Council Monday asked the Germans to explain how the Rhodesians entered the country.

Pirates' Mockery Of Old Baseball Adage

For the second straight season Pittsburgh's Pirates are making a mockery of the old baseball adage that pitching is the name of the game. Power, not pitching, is taking the Pirates to their second straight National League pennant.

The Pirates powered their way to the pennant in 1971 and they're doing it again. They haven't got one pitcher even close to being a 20-game winner this year. Dock Ellis almost made it last year with 19 wins — and a 3.05 earned run average.

A pitcher who allows an average of three runs or more a game usually winds up a loser but not with the Pirates, the best hitting ball club in the majors. Ask the ex-Bronco Nelson Briles from Santa Clara University about that.

BRILES IS 11-5 with the Pirates this year on a 3.50 ERA. Bob Moose is 9-7 with a 3.00 ERA. Ellis has his ERA down to 2.75 this year, considerably better than his 3.05 of last season. Ellis, now 10-6, is the only Pirate pitcher in the starting rotation with an ERA under 3.00 other than Steve Blass.

Blass is the best pitcher on the Pirate staff, 13-6 with a 2.60 ERA. But that's no surprise. Blass was a two-time winner in the 1971 World Series. He got the series turned around for the Pirates after Baltimore's Orioles took the first two games. He beat them 5-1 in the third game and won the seventh game 2-1 to make the Pirates world champs.

Blass is the one pitcher for whom the Pirates don't have to score a bundle of runs. But they've been making it relatively easy for him this year, just as they have for the rest of the Pirate pitching staff. A pitcher feels very comfortable with a club whose team batting average is .279.

THE PIRATES HAVE six .300 hitters in Manny Sanguillen, Richie Hebner, Al Oliver, Willie Stargell, Roberto Clemente and Vic Davallilo. Rennie Stennett has been a solid .290 hitter. Gene Alley and Dave Cash contribute a couple of hot .270 bats for a shortstop and second baseman.

With that kind of power, it's understandable why Pirate pitchers, with earned run averages of three or more a game, don't get panicky if they happen to fall behind by a couple of runs.

LEFT-HANDED PITCHING was supposed to stop the Pirates this season. At least, the Giants thought so. That's why they traded away Gaylord Perry for Sam McDowell.

When McDowell faced the Pirates for the first time in Candlestick Park June 3, the Pirates were 8-0 against lefthanders. They kept their record perfect, running it to 9-0, when they beat McDowell. And it was Oliver, a lefthanded swinger, who roped a two-run double to left center in the seventh inning to beat Sudden Sam 4-3.

TO HIS CREDIT, McDowell beat the Pirates in Pittsburgh June 14 when he faced them a second time. But it wasn't an easy 3-1 victory for him. Tito Fuentes speared three line drives in that game, turning two of them into double plays.

When the Pirates pay their final season visit to Candlestick Tuesday night and Wednesday afternoon, McDowell won't get a chance at a rubber match with them. He's on the disabled list now.

END OF THE LINE

Baltimore Colts running back Don McCauley (23) was flipped over and down after gaining 40 yards last night by Kerry Reardon (15) of Kansas City, but not before he made it to the three-yeard line. Baltimore won the game in Kansas City's new Arrowhead Stadium, 23-17.

45 Aides Needed For Dispea Race

No, the number of people on hand to administer the Dipsea race doesn't exceed the number of runners. It just seems that way.

Upwards of 45 people were lured, persuaded or coerced into helping the sponsoring Mill Valley Junior Chamber of Commerce run the famous footrace, according to director John Drew.

And that doesn't even count members of such organizations as the Amateur Athletic Union, Marin Amateur Radio Club and San Francisco Ski Patrol.

The race will begin Sunday at 10 a.m. at the flagpole in Litton Square in downtown Mill Valley and will traverse the tortuous, 6.8-mile Dipsea trail to Stinson Beach. About 1,400 are expected to compete.

The day will begin earlier for race officials, who will set up shop at about 8 a.m. in the City Council chambers on the second floor of the City Hall, half a block up Corte Madera Avenue from the square.

"We have about five people working on early registration, 12 on late registration, three at the starting line, seven along the route, 15 at the finish line, and two or three on miscellaneous problems," Drew said.

Early registration involves merely giving out numbers to runners who entered before race day but after last Saturday. Numbers have been mailed to the approximately 465 runners who entered before Saturday.

Late registration will involve complete processing of the expected 400 or 500 entrants on race day. Entry fee will be $3. AAU officials will be present to issue AAU cards to those needing them, at a cost of $1.50.

The Marin Amateur Radio Club will be standing by at various checkpoints along the trail, Drew said, relaying information and coordinating activities.

The San Francisco Ski Patrol, which will be on hand for the first time, will provide first aid if needed en route. Patrol members will be on foot, presumably.

Individuals wishing to beat the last-minute crush in the council chambers and get a couple of extra hours of sleep Sunday morning may pick up applications at the Mill Valley Chamber of Commerce, 85 Throckmorton Avenue, or the San Francisco AAU office, 942 Market Street, or by writing the Jaycees, P. O. Box 30, Mill Valley 94941.

New Ski Club In Marin Slates Meeting Tonight

A newly-founded ski club, for single adults, will hold its second meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at Sam's Anchor Cafe in Tiburon.

The meeting will be held, for among other reasons, to pick a name for the new club. A first meeting last week drew 37 people.

Charter membership dues will be collected to represent the club in the Bay Area Council — Far West Ski Association Snow Queen Contest.

Pirates Share 2nd After Cage Victory

John Channell scored 20 points yesterday to lead the Pirates to a 68-54 victory over the Wildcats and a share of second place in the final Drake Summer League high school basketball standings.

The Pirates and Shaw's Ice Cream tied for second (9-2) behind the Crusaders (11-0). In other action yesterday, Mike Dinehart scored 20 points to lead Gilmore Photo to a 67-48 triumph over the Vikings, and the Bulldogs beat Chuck Moore, Insurance, 38-29.

Marin Girl Wins

Lucy Sokoloff of Los Ranchitos won first place in the 50-yard swim (44.6 seconds) and second in the 25-yard swim (18.7) last Wednesday in the International Special Olympics for handicapped children held on the University of California at Los Angeles campus.

FIFTH GOLF CLASH

Women Champs' Tourney In Mill Valley Tomorrow

Defending champion Mrs. Lawrence Gapinski and two-time winner Mrs. John Cann will head a field of six golfers tomorrow in the fifth annual Marin County Women's Tournament of Champions golf event at the Mill Valley Golf Course.

Handicapped at six and seven strokes respectively, Mesdames Gapinski, from San Geronimo National, and Cann, from Meadow Club, figure to make a two way battle of the tourney, which pits the representatives of Marin's six regulation courses against each other in scratch medal play.

OTHER ENTRIES

The other entries are Mrs. Harold Baer, 13-handicapper from Peacock Gap in San Rafael, Mrs. Roger Williams, 11, of Indian Valley in Novato, Mrs. Joan Wheeler, 10, from Mill Valley, and Mrs. Charles Gondak, 9, of Marin Country Club in Novato.

Rated the best chance at pulling an upset is Mrs. Wheeler, who will enjoy the home course advantage. "Joan has an edge over all of us," Mrs. Cann said last week. "Local knowledge counts very much on that course." The course, a par-67, 4,400 yard layout, is the hilliest, and some say the trickiest in Marin.

ADVANTAGE

Mrs. Wheeler admits to having "maybe a little advantage. It's a funny little course and I'm fairly down the middle, which helps. Accuracy is going to count more than distance here."

Last year, at Peacock Gap, Mrs. Gapinski fired an 80 to edge Mrs. Gondak by two strokes. Mrs. Cann, winner in 1969 and '70, was off in Europe last summer, and did not compete.

VETERANS

All the players except Mrs. Wheeler and Mrs. Williams have played in the tourney before. Mrs. Baer and Mrs. Gapinski each have played four times, Mrs. Cann and Mrs. Baer twice each.

The tourney will get underway at 8:30 a.m. Admission is free to the public.

Injured Raider Is 'Improving'

There were early fears of total paralysis from the neck down, but surgery after the game and again Monday in a Southern California hospital on a dislocated neck vertebra and bruised spinal cord have resulted in more optimistic reports on the condition of the 225-pounder from Memphis State.

Warriors' Thurmond Seeks Raise

The 6-foot-11 center will be entering the option year of a contract he signed two years ago with the Warriors. But Thurmond is rumored to have been offered a contract of $1 million or more from the Carolina Cougars of the rival American Basketball Association.

Thurmond reportedly is making in the $150,000-$200,000 range with the Warriors and would like to perhaps double that figure.

CHICAGO IDLE

A's Trim Tigers To Regain Lead

DETROIT (UPI) — If this is a preview of the playoffs, the first game turned out just as Manager Dick Williams of the Oakland A's hoped it would.

Oakland won the meeting of the American League division leaders Monday night by getting three runs in the first inning and easing to a 5-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

"Playoffs? I can't think that far ahead," Williams said after his team increased its edge over the idle Chicago White Sox to a half game and chopped Detroit's margin over second-place Baltimore to the same distance.

Williams had predicted Oakland and Detroit would win their respective division races when the two teams met in Detroit earlier this season. Oakland held a comfortable margin at that time while Detroit looked stronger then than it does now.

"We can't watch the scoreboard," Williams said. "We have to do it ourselves. I don't know if you've been looking at our club lately," he said, "but we've had some injuries. We cooled off with the bat and the White Sox got hot. Mike Epstein got hurt, then, the day he got back, Reggie Jackson went out. Our pitching's been great—it's kept us in there," Williams said.

Jim Hunter started the first game of the "playoff preview' and was excellent in recording his 16th victory against six losses with the aid of Rollie Fingers' 15th save. Fingers had to come on to retire the side in the ninth after Norm Cash and Jim Northrup opened the inning with singles.

Bert Campaneris started the contest with a string of six games in which he'd gotten at least two hits. He made it seven with a double, single and triple, scoring twice.

His leadoff double led to the first A's run off Woody Fryman. Campaneris stole third and Joe Rudi singled. Oakland added two more runs in the same first inning when Sal Bando singled and Mike Epstein doubled.

Reliever Lerrin Lagrow was touched for runs in the eighth and ninth. Bill Voss singled, Tim Cullen doubled and Hunter hit a sacrifice fly. Campaneris tripled and scored on Angel Mangual's single.

Rudi had four hits in five at-bats to hike his average to .320, good enough to take over the league lead from Rich Scheinblum of the idle Kansas City Royals.

Hunter was nicked for Northrup's eighth home run in the seventh with nobody on base.

First Pick Beasley Back In Camp Drills

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — Rookie wide receiver Terry Beasley has rejoined the San Francisco 49ers' drills here for the first time since breaking one of his big toes at the start of training camp.

"I couldn't bend it like I wanted to," he said Monday, "and I have to watch it because not being able to bend it puts more pressure on the rest of my foot, and I could hurt my arch or something."

The first-round draft choice from Auburn has yet to play a minute in an actual game. The toe is still swollen.

"I'm hoping I'll be able to play against Denver this Sunday, although I know I won't be at my best."

That he can even suit up is good news to the 49ers, whose casualty list after Saturday's game against the San Diego Chargers resembled Custer's after the Little Big Horn.

The 49ers lost half their starting defensive backfield, Jimmy Johnson and Mike Simpson, for four to five weeks with shoulder separations, and running back Ken Willard for up to four weeks with a wrenched knee.

Also among the walking — or hobbling — wounded are running backs Larry Schreider and Jimmy Thomas; linebackers Frank Nunley, Ed Beard, Skip Vanderbundt, Dave Wilcox, and rookie Mike Green; tight end Ted Kwalick; defensive tackles Bob Hoskins and Earl Edwards; and offensive linemen Len Rohde and Forrest Blue.

McDowell Returns; Giants Host Pirates

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Pittsburgh, playing like the World Champs they are, calls on San Francisco tonight in the opener of a two-game set with Nelson Briles (11-5) hurling against Juan Marichal (5-13) of the Giants.

San Francisco, idle Monday, lost one player and gained one when first baseman Ed Goodson was put on the disabled list and pitcher Sam McDowell was brought off it.

Goodson will undergo surgery Wednesday on an injured knee that has hampered him all season. He still managed to hit .282 despite the injury.

"The damage is not extensive," said Dr. E.C. Sailer of Burlingame. "There is painful tendonitis of the knee cap and a rough spot on the bone, but we won't have to probe deeply."

McDowell has been on the injured list since Aug. 3 with a sore shoulder. He returns to the fray with an 8-7 record.

San Francisco is only 2-5 against Pittsburgh, the team that beat the Giants in last year's division playoff.

Youngest Male Olympian

Marinite Has U.S. Distinction

(First in a Series)

Only 16, and a senior at Terra Linda High, DeMont's rise to the top of the distance-swimming world was crammed into a year-and-one-half period that culiminated in his world-record setting performance at the United States Olympic Trials three weeks ago.

He'll swim two events in Munich — the 400-meter freestyle on Sept. 1, and the 1,500 free on Sept. 3-4. He qualified second in the 400, at the U.S. trials and won the 1,500 en route to his world record.

He gave promises of greatness, despite a chronic asthma problem, from as early as age 10 as the holder of national age-group records.

His successes temporarily tapered off for a couple of summers, while going through a rapid change of coaches, until he became settled with Don Swarts of the Marin Aquatic Club in June, 1970.

Hard winter training with Swartz finally produced tremendous improvement in the late spring, but the young coach admitted, "I knew how good he was, and I triedto force myself and my methods on him. I overcoached him." Finally, though, DeMont was well broken into the Swartz training technique, and times started to drop.

That summer, DeMont surprised some with his first National Amateur Athletic Union short course (25-yard pool) National AAUs in Dallas in April — DeMont placed third behind John Kinsella and Burton, dropping his 1,650 time in the process from 15:55.8 to 15:36.5, according to Swartz.

From then on, there was little doubt in anyone's mind that he could do it, and triumphs in the Santa Clara International and Los Angeles Invitational gave him more confidence. The only question in any doubter's mind was: would he withstand the tremendous pressure at the Olympic trials, holding off top efforts by Kinsella, Burton, and other seasoned performers?

Larry Lack, coach of the Petaluma Swim Club, stated flatly two weeks before the trials: "He can win in Munich."

Some, though, perhaps still had doubts, among them many major U.S. Newspapers, who still raved about world record holder Kinsella, listing him the one to beat.

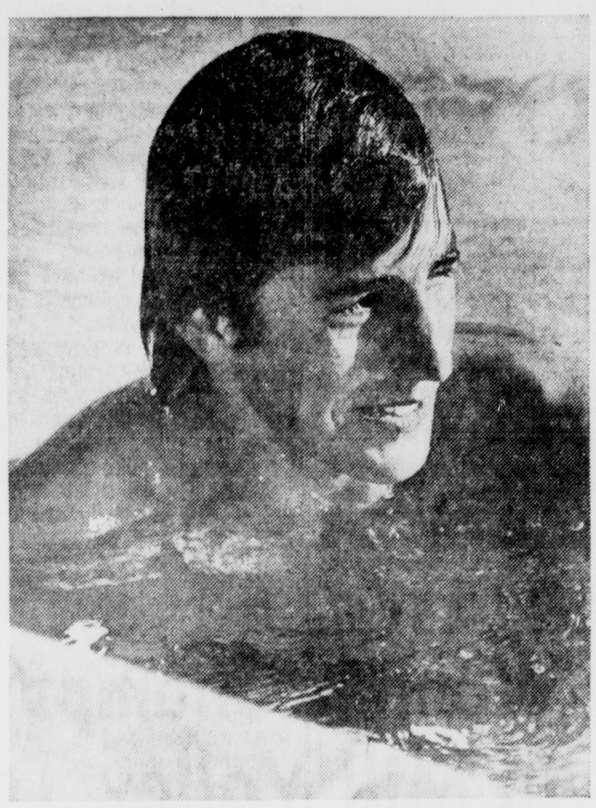
DeMont answered these challenges with a vengeance in Chicago, bettering his 1,500-meter time from 16:03.5 to 15:52.91, cracking the old world record of 15:57.1.

As an extra, he threw in a second-place finish in the 400, lowering his best from 4:06.0 to 4:01.2.

In Munich, he'll face two outstanding Australians in the 1,500, Brad Cooper (best of 15:57.6) and Graham Windeatt (16:03) as well as his U.S. teammates, Doug Northway and Burton.

The Aussies will have the advantage of not having "peaked," psychologically or physically, and not having yet "shaved down" this summer.

But somehow, one feels DeMont will answer this challenge the same way he's answered all the rest of them — with a victory.



GUNNING FOR GOLD — Sixteen-year-old Rick DeMont of Terra Linda, who went almost overnight from age-group star to world record holder, will be the youngest member of the U.S. Olympic team when he competes in the 400 and 1,500-meter freestyle swimming races in Munich.

qualifying time — a clocking of 17:06 in the 1,500-meter free. At the AAUs, he placed 14th in 16:44, and was on his way.

A weight-training program put added muscle on his lean frame this winter, and in early season meets, he showed phenomonal time drops in all his races. But still, to make the Olympic team he would have to be in the top three in his event for the whole United States — it seemed very far off.

Back in February, one team member mentioned to Swartz, "You know, Rick's probably got a good chance to win in the 1976 Olympics." Swartz replied, "Let's get him on this year's team first."

Throughout the spring season, DeMont surprised many people by clobbering highly-regarded stars: Mike Burton, Rex Favero, Hans Fassnacht, and Robin Backhaus, meanwhile dropping his 1,650-yard time in leaps and bounds. The big turning point came at the

PRO FOOTBALL

Defensive Colts Stop Kansas City

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Ray May finally broke the ice and there was no stopping the Baltimore Colts after that.

May, a linebacker, scored Baltimore's first touchdown in three pre-season games Monday night when he scooped up a fumble and ran 16 yards for a touchdown. The score apparently lit a fire under the Colts, who were manhandled in their first two games, and they went on to upset the Kansas City Chiefs 23-17 in National Football League action.

SCORING

May's touchdown came after Baltimore took a 9-3 lead on two field goals by Jim O'Brien and one by Boris Shlapak. Norm Buliach plunged two yards for another score late in the game after Marty Domres set it up with a 42-yard pass to running back Don McCauley.

Both Kansas City touchdowns came in the last four minutes of play. John Huarte passed 52 yards to Jeff Kinney for the first TD with 3:52 remaining and Jim Otis dove over with a second left after a 26-yard pass interference penalty put the ball on the Baltimore one.

CAMPS

In news from the camps, running back Calvin Hill and tight end Billy Truax sat out Monday workouts but were expected to be ready for the Dallas Cowboys' Saturday night game against the New York Jets. Hill suffered a bruised elbow and Truax a bruised knee in Saturday night's victory over New Orleans.

Jets' Coach Weeb Ewbank plans to realign his defensive secondary after struggling to a 31-31 tie with the New York Giants Sunday. A four-way battle for the two safety spots is expected between W.K. Hicks, Gus Hollomon, Chris Farasopoulos and Phil Wise.

The Los Angeles Rams trimmed three players, including veteran quarterback Jerry Rhome.

WATSON GONE

Curt Watson, New Orleans' sixth-round pick from the University of Tennessee, was one of two players dropped. The Saints also reported that cornerback Dee Martin and kicker Charlie Durkee worked out for the first time in two weeks Monday.

Defensive tackle Mike McCoy suffered a broken bone in his foot and will be lost to the Green Bay Packers indefinitely. McCoy's foot will be in a cast for three weeks.

BUTLER HURT

The Atlanta Falcons lost runnng back Jim Butlar with a fractured cheekbone but regained the services of another back, Harmon Wages, who had missed the two previous preseason games with a knee injury.

Lee Bougess suffered a sprained knee and will be lost to Philadelphia for two weeks

HAVERFORD, Pa. — Mal Anderson of Australia fought off two match points in the third set Monday to defeat Dick Dell of Bethesda, Md., 3-6, 6-1, 7-6, in the opening round of the 73rd Pennsylvania Lawn Tennis Championships.

Three contract pros from Lamar Hunt's world Championship of Tennis also were in the field of 64 players competing for top prize of $2,000. They were Tom Okker of Holland and Mark Cox and Roger Taylor, both of England.

Okker, seeded first here, made the second round by defeating Dale Ogden of Ft. Worth, Tex., 6-1, 4-6, 6-3.

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. — Defending champion Clark Graebner, of New York, who had reached the finals here six times, was bounced out in the first round of the 46th Eastern Grass Courts Open tennis championships Monday.

Graebner was stunned by the aggressive play of Bob McKinley of St. Ann, Mo., in the opening match of the seven-day tourney at the Orange Lawn Tennis Club. McKinley, 20-year-old brother of former national ranking star Chuck McKinley, surprised Graebner in straight

Phillies' Pitcher Carlton Has 15-Game Triumph String Ended

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Steve Carlton is an old fashioned kind of hero.

He makes no excuses, he has no complaints. He suffers defeat with the same good grace that he enjoys victory.

Pitching for the Philadelphia Phillies, who might be kindly called a pathetic team, Carlton rolled up 15 consecutive victories. On Monday night, before an enthusiastic crowd of 52,662 fans in Philadelphia, he went for No. 16.

TESTIMONIAL

The crowd—incredible for a Monday night for a last place team in August—was a testimonial to how much Carlton has meant to the club this year. In the end, his teammates let him down.

He held the Atlanta Braves to one run for 10 innings but the Phils scored only one themselves and Atlanta finally pushed across a run in the 11th inning on Mike Lum's broken-bat single with two out. That was enough for a 2-1 Atlanta victory.

Phil Niekro, who allowed the Phils nine hits in 11 innings, got the victory. Carlton, who allowed just seven hits, took the loss and is now 20-7 this year.

NO LAMENT

It was a heartbreaking way for the streak to end but Carlton isn't the kind of guy who laments the lack of hitting support.

'MY NIGHT'

Niekro said, "it was just my night, my knuckleball was better than it has been all year. It was going up, in and down, out, I didn't know what it was doing. Earl (Williams) did a super job back there."

Carlton, who hadn't lost since May 30, was hoping to eventually match the record of 19 straight victories set by Rube Marquard of the New York Giants in 1912.

In the losing effort, he struck out 10 to boost his league-leading total to 252 and he fanned Hank Aaron three times. But after he got Aaron for the second out in the 11th, Dusty Baker doubled. After Williams was intentionally walked, Lum lined his game-winning single to center. The first Brave run came in the second when Felix Millan doubled and Aaron singled.

PHILS RUN

Philadelphia got its only run in the eighth inning on doubles by Willie Montanez and Greg Luzinski. The Phils eventually loaded the bases with two out but Niekro struck out Carlton to end the threat.

In the other games, Cincinnati downed Montreal 4-1, New York topped Houston 4-2, St. Louis blanked Los Angeles 4-0 and San Diego edged Chicago 6-5.

Bob Gibson pitched a seven-hitter and hit a run-scoring double to lead the Cardinals to the victory over the Dodgers. Gibson, who is now 14-7, has won 14 of his last 16 decisions after a rocky start. It was his fourth shutout this season and the 54th of his career, the most for active National League pitchers.

Reserver catcher Bill Plummer drove in two runs with a fifth-inning single as the Reds topped the Expos on Jim McGlothlin's eight-hitter. Mike Torrez went eight innings and suffered the loss. Joe Morgan homered for Cincinnati in the first and Plummer rapped his single in the fifth for a pair of insurance runs.

BIRTHDAY

Orioles Close In On Detroit As Dobson Three-Hits Angels

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

It obviously takes more than the four top starting pitchers in baseball and the best defensive lineup in the majors to lead the American League's Eastern division.

Boog Powell's 17th home run in the fifth inning backed Pat Dobson's three-hit pitching as the Baltimore Orioles topped the California Angels 3-1 Monday night. The victory, combined with Detroit's loss to Oakland, left the Orioles a half-game behind the divisionleading Tigers.

POWELL'S BLOW

Powell shattered a 1-1 tie with a two-run shot off losing pitcher Andy Messersmith, 3-8, after Tommy Davis had walked with two out.

The Orioles main problem this season has been hitting—or rather the lack of it.

"I've pitched much better this season than last," said Dobson, now 14-12 compared to a 16-6 record at this stage a year ago. "The big difference is runs. Our pitching has been equal to the challenge all season. We've scored 150 runs less this season than last," he added.

"Take a look around," said Powell, a 12-year veteran with the Orioles. "We have the four top starting pitchers in baseball. The lineup we put on the field is as good a defensive lineup as there is in the big leagues. Especially the infield, it's the best in the majors. What remains is a little bit of hitting. If we get that then its all over."

DOBSON WINS

Dobson won only his second game in six decisions since the All-Star break. He struck out five and walked two while stranding three Angels.

The victory was only Baltimore's third in its past nine outings.

In other American League games Oakland whipped Detroit 5-1 and Cleveland defeated Minnesota 10-3 in the only games scheduled.

FISH AND GAME

The Ducks Campaign Of Golfer Palacio

By AL GIDDINGS

Early Saturday morning, the phone started to ring, even before the morning news arrived. It was Mat Palacio Jr., noted San Rafael golfer, ready to talk about ducks. Mat, as a member of Ducks Unlimited has been carrying the ball for the bay hunters of Marin County.

He started his campaign for keeping our area open to canvasback duck hunting by writing letters last fall to everyone and anyone he could think of giving his arguments.

Last Friday, when the Fish and Game Commission met in San Francisco to set the waterfowl seasons and limits for this year, Mat was there. But with the framework of duck seasons and limits set by the Fish and Wildlife Service and the Department of the Interior, it had already been established that the canvasback season would be a closed affair, at least for this year.

The Fish and Game Commission has to operate within the federal framework, so even though liberal duck and goose seasons and limits were adopted, the canvasback hunting was kept closed. Mat was crushed, but he feels he made many good points. Thus, if things go well, possibly next year the canvasback season can be reopened. Mat needs all the help you can give him on this project.

THERE WERE A NUMBER of surprise changes in the waterfowl regulations. The California seasons will be split. The first half of the general season will start Oct. 14 and run through Dec. 20. The second half will open Dec. 27 with a bag and possession limit of seven ducks.

In the northeastern part of the state, there will be a straight 93 day season from Oct. 14 through Jan. 14, with a limit of six ducks daily and 12 in possession. Ic Southern California, south of the Techachapis, there will be a split 93 day season with the first half from Oct. 7 to Nov. 18, and the second half from Dec. 2 to Jan. 20. The Colorado River area will also have split seasons with the first half being Oct. 1 through the 23 and Nov. 12 through Jan. 20. Both areas will have the six daily, twelve in possession duck limits.

The goose seasons will run concurrently with the duck seasons with limits of six daily, six in possession, except that no more than three can be of the dark species and only one can be a Ross goose.

IN THE COLORADO RIVER area, the goose limit was set at six also, but at least four must be white.

The Black Sea Brant season will start Jan. 20 and run through Feb. 20 with a daily bag limit of four and a possession limit of eight.

The snipe and mudhen seasons will coincide with the duck seasons in the various areas. The limits on jacksnipe will be eight per day, 16 in possession. The limit on mudhens will be 25 per day, 25 in possession.

WITH THE SEASONS generally opening statewide on Oct. 14, the hunters will be far more scattered than in the recent past. Tule Lake and the Lower Klamath Basin which have always opened a week or so earlier will be relieved of the crowds of from eight to 16,000 people who came from all over the state for this early hunt. I believe it's a good deal for everyone.

Discussions have been held with thoughts of putting these areas in a lottery system. Perhaps, this year with the diminished pressures there, things will get back to normal; and the lottery system won't be needed. Even at Honey Lake, hunters were arriving a full two or three days early, to form lines of waiting hunters.

Incidentally, on Thursday, Sept. 14, Ducks Unlimited of San Francisco is having its eight annual Fall Harvest Dinner and Waterfowl Art auction at the Stanford Court Hotel. The art works of many known wildlife artists will be auctioned off all for the benefit of Ducks Unlimited. These monies have been the crux of maintaining and reclaiming the prairies of Canada for the finest duck and goose breeding areas in the world. If you are not a member of Ducks Unlimited, this is your chance to see and contribute to their efforts.

On Sept. 17, the Pacific Rod and Gun Club of San Francisco at Lake Merced is holding its annual Ducks Unlimited shoot.

Drugs Probe Row On Riva Ridge

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (UPI)—Was Kentucky Derby winner Riva Ridge drugged when he came in fourth in a recent New Jersey race?

The owner of the horse, Mrs. Helen Tweedy, told newsmen at her home in Saratoga Springs that tests she had ordered for the horse after his fourth place finish in the $100,000 Monmouth Invitational Handicap at Monmouth Park Aug. 5 turned up traces of a tranquilizer known as pheno-thiazine.

DRUG TRACES

She said a blood test taken the morning after the race, and a urine test taken one day later both turned up traces of the drug. She added it was "outrageous that anyone could and would get to the horse" before the race.

Mrs. Tweedy said the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the New Jersey State Police and the Thoroughbred Racing Protective Association were taking part in an investigation of the situation. In June, an admitted fixer testified before a House committee in Washington that he fixed races by drugging the favorite and enabling a normally slower horse to win.

TESTS REQUESTED

Mrs. Tweedy said she requested the tests because she was worried the horse might be sick because of his lethargic performance. The owner said she was "astonished" to learn the results of the tests."

Riva Ridge's racing record has puzzled racing observers this year. In eight starts, he has either won or finished out of the money—five firsts and three fourths.

TESTIMONY

In testimony last June in Washington before tha House Crime Committee, admitted horse race fixer Bobby Byrne explained how he took advantage of the fact that only the first two finishers are tested by drugging the favorite to let a slower horse win. He specifically mentioned Riva Ridge.

"I could take a wagon horse today pulling a wagon and administer this drug to Riva Ridge and this wagon horse would beat Riva Ridge on any given day with this drug," Byrne told the committee.

Mrs. Tweedy said that since her father, utilities executive Christopher Chenery, started his stable in 1938, there never has been any evidence that any of their horses have been drugged.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

U. S. Bonds, Notes Offer Fair Income

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. We are interested in a safe, insured investment for $30,000 which we will realize from the sale of our home. A fair rate of return, rather than growth, from investments other than stocks or mutual funds is what we seek. — J.L.

A. There are several choices open to you and a combination of them might be the best solution. First of all, U.S. Savings Bonds Series H yielding 5½ per cent a year (compounded semiannually) for the first 5 years and 6 per cent for the remaining 5, are a safe, guaranteed holding. These bonds are sold at par value and are redeemable after 6 months on written request also at parvalue. Interest is paid by check semiannually. Purchase is limited, however, to $5,000 per person per year.

Marketable U.S. government securities are another choice. Treasury Notes maturing in from 1 to 7 years or Treasury Bonds, which have no limitations on maturity, yield up to 6.2 per cent for the notes and 6.4 per cent for the bonds. These highest returns are available on the 1984, 6⅜ per cent bond and the 6¼ per cent 8/79 note. Unlike the nonmarketable Series H bonds, marketable Treasury notes and bonds are subject to fluctuation in price. Thus, if these are sold prior to maturity, there is no guarantee that you would receive either your purchase price or the face value. On the other hand, if interest rates drop, these securities may trade at a premium over face value.

The third type of investment which fits your requirement is bank term certificates. Two-year term certificates generally pay 6 per cent and are insured by one of the federal or state saving account insurance corporations.

Carl K. Schieck
Banker Retires

Longtime Bank Chief To Retire

Carl K. Schieck of San Rafael will retire this month as executive vice president of Security Pacific Bank, ending a 47-year banking career in San Francisco.

A native of San Francisco and a 53-year resident of San Rafael, Schieck served as president for Pacific National Bank prior to the merger of Security First National Bank and Pacific National Bank in 1968.

He graduated from Mount Tamalapis Military Academy and began his banking career in 1925 with the Ameircan Bank in San Francisco, which subsequently merged with the Mercantile Trust Co. to form the American Trust Co.

He became associated with the former Pacific National Bank through the acquisition of City National in May, 1929. He rose through the ranks and was named president of Pacific National Bank in January of 1962. Three years later, he got the additional title of chief executive officer.

Upon the merger of Security First National and Pacific National in 1968, Schieck was appointed executive vice president of Security Pacific.

Electronic Metering Firms Plan To Merge

Oil Issues Help Market At Opening

NEW YORK (UPI)—Paced by oil issues, the market moved sharply upward during the first two hours today in fairly active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

There was little in the news background to spark the advance. An analyst noted gasoline and heating oil and supplies are shrinking faster than expected and this should make some oil issues attractive, according to a Wall Street Journal story.

Prices were only slightly higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. Dome Petroleum was the most active issue, up 1-8 at 42 5-8 on 38,300 shares.

Other strong Big Board oils included Atlantic Richfield and Ohio Standard, up 3 1-8 apiece; Mobil Oil 2, Jersey Standard 1 7-8, California Standard 1 1-4, Natomas 1, Ashland Oil 3-4, and Phillips Petroleum 5-8.

Some glamors, neglected in the past few days as attention shifted to the cyclicals, were gainers. Corning Glass advanced 2, Polaroid 1 3-4, and Curtiss-Wright 1 1-2. Upjohn, however, lost 2 1-2.

In the electronics and computers, IBM gained 4 and Motrola 1 3-8.

GOP Convention Primed For Gala Nixon Tribute

Reform Still Clouds Unity Tries On Floor

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Confident of victory and already slashing at George McGovern and the Democrats, the Republican National Convention will hand President Nixon renomination tonight with flag-waving exuberance.

Nixon's wife, daughters and sons-in-law and hundreds of delegates were ready to welcome him late today at Miami International Airport. He plans to rest at his vacation home at nearby Key Biscayne and watch on television the roll call of states that will formalize his third presidential nomination in 12 years. (See other stories, page 2; photos on page 2, 3, 28.)

A few hours before Nixon's arrival there were still a few signs of dissent both inside and outside the convention hall.

About 250 antiwar protesters marched a mile and a half along the resort city's strip of whitewashed hotels from their Flamingo Park campsite to the Fontainebleau Hotel, GOP convention headquarters, where they were greeted by a line of Florida highway patrolman stationed across both main driveways.

The protesters were there for a professed peaceful demonstration against a brunch honoring Mrs. Nixon and her two daughters.

The protestors milled about, burned portraits of Nixon and engaged in some minor shoving matches with policemen before heading back toward Flamingo. There were no arrests or injuries.

With the convention itself, some dissatisfaction still boiled among big state party leaders over their so far unsuccessful efforts to dilute rural, conservative domination at the party's next convention four years from now.

Led by New York and Pennsylvania, some Republican National Convention big-state delegations vowed a floor fight today over convention reform, an issue New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller said would "cast the die" for the GOP for decades.

The reformers planned to offer a complicated formula by Rep. Donald Steiger of Wisconsin. It would grant a significant number of bonus delegates to both small states which coted for a Republican presidential candidate and big states which elected GOP senators, senators and many congressmen.

If it were in effect for this convention, the number of delegates would be 2,175 instead of 1,348.

Gov. William G. Milliken of Michigan said his state was seeking a compromise with the reform measure approved by the convention's Rules Committee. But Michigan leaders said they were ready to fight, too.

New York and Pennsylvania, which together have 148 delegates to the current convention, both voted in state caucus to fight on the floor if big states did not win a better break in allocation of delegates for future conventions.

"This issue will cast the die for the form of the Republican Party for the next 20 to 30 years to come," Rockefeller said.

"I don't know how they could come up with a more unequitable plan," said a Pennsylvania leader, Sen. Richard Schweicker. Both he and Senate GOP Leader Hugh Scott said they would back a floor fight.

In developments inside, outside and behind the convention:

Michigan Gov. William G. Milliken urged the third session of the convention to open its doors to more minorities, hinting that such reforms in the Democratic party made it more truly representative of the country. Unless the GOP opens its doors, he said in remarks prepared for this afternoon session, it "faces the danger that the day could come when those who are outside might better represent the country than those who are inside."

But House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, the convention's permanent chairman, said in prepared remarks this year's meeting is more representative "than ever before — 13 per cent young, 5 per cent black, 34 per cent of the stronger and sweeter sex."

—A UPI survey of key people in every state delegation showed that even top Republicans expect Democrats to retain control of Congress, de-

WATERFRONT PROPOSAL — A Texas development firm has proposed this multimillion dollar plan for the 30-acre Schoonmaker property on the northern Sausalito waterfront. A motel, restaurant, marina and commercial area is proposed in the right third of the property while townhouses and condominiums predominate in the remainder. A public promenade sweeps along the waterfront, leading to another marina and boathouse facility at top left.

Novato Hits Joint Use Of Hamilton

By FRANK FARRARA

To cheers and resounding applause from an overflow crowd of more than 250 persons, the Novato City Council last night voted 4-1 against joint civilian-military air use at Hamilton Air Force Base.

Faced with an emotionally charged audience and 4,610 signatures against joint use, the council responded with all-out opposition to commercial flights at the base.

Councilman George C. Quesada, the lone dissenter, objected to the timing of the move and warned the city "could wind up losing the ballgame."

During a three-hour public hearing, rapped to order on several occasions by Mayor F. Wayne Sartain, sentiment was overwhelmingly against joint use.

Residents said the proposed 20 flights a day would destroy the semi-rural character of Novato, bringing noise, air pollution and traffic, about 4,000 trips a day.

About a dozen representatives of local organizations and about a dozen individuals launched a verbal barrage against joint use to spurts of applause and some foot stamping.

The council voted first merely to withdraw its previous approval for four civilian flights daily by a 4-1 vote, with David Price Jones dissenting.

Jones said he felt this was "skirting the issue" and "diluting the effect" of council action. The council should simply "go on record as opposed to joint use at Hamilton Air Force Base," he said.

Then, the council voted 3-2 that the city become the "sole contracting agency for any joint use," a stronger stand than its previous bid for a "joint powers agreement" with the County of Marin.

Sartain, who believed the council "should be forthright and give true feelings," and Jones, who saw further "dilution" of council opposition, dissented.

Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste commented: "If I voted tonight as a member of the city council, I would oppose joint use."

Any chance that the matter would be put before the voters in November apparently faded, when the council failed to call for an election. The deadline for setting an election is today.

Councilman Fred F. Ruegg said it was apparent the "community has been polarized" against joint use and "since I represent the community I couldn't vote for joint use."

He said, however, he didn't think such matters should be decided emotionally, and asked residents "in the future to keep an open mind on issues like this and not be swayed."

Jones said: "I think this is a detriment to Novato to have joint use at Hamilton Air Force Base. I don't think once it started, it would stop at 20 flights a day. It would destroy

Big Sausalito Waterfront Building Plans Revealed

By PAT ANGLE

A Texas development company has announced plans for a multimillion-dollar development on the 30-acre Schoonmaker waterfront property in Sausalito, a project providing residential, commercial and recreational facilities on a vast scale.

Proposed by O'Meara-Chandler, the plan calls for 223 residential units, a motel, restaurant, commercial area and marina on the land between Napa and Spring streets in Marinship.

The firms envisions parking for 1,068 cars and would require 2.1 acres of bay fill.

"I think this development will certainly create a substantial income for the city," said T. L. Schoonmaker, president of the engineering firm which owns the land. "It is in keeping with the environment of the community and takes advantage of our magnificent waterfront vistas.

(Although the Texas company has not yet purchased the property —which includes 10 acres of water area — it has an option on the land.)

The San Francisco architectural firm of Worster, Bernardi and Emmons prepared the plans. The firm is the one which designed Ghirardelli Square in San Francisco and the Bank of America building in Sausalito.

Residential units would be divided into 87 townhouses and 136 condominium units and the motel would have 130 rooms. A 16,800-square-foot restaurant is planned and a 114-berth marina, a boatyard and 77,000 square feet of commercial space.

The plans were to be presented at 6 p.m. today to the Bay Conservation and Development Commission's design review board at 633 Battery Street in San Francisco. It will be the first official viewing of the plans, since O'Meara-Chandler has not yet applied to the City of Sausalito for a permit.

Large developments in Sausalito have stirred considerable public opposition there in recent months, and two — a 204-unit subdivision on Wolfback Ridge and a 380-unit apartment development on the American Distilling Co. site — are currently stalled because of such opposition.

The Schoonmaker Co., designers, assemblers and installers of diesel engine generator sets, has been a landmark on the Sausalito waterfront since 1848.

But the company filed for bankruptcy early last year, not to dissolve the firm but to present a plan to pay off its creditors. The company had been heavily engaged in defense contracts and Schoonmaker said at that time it had suffered substantial losses on Air Force contracts.

Since last March the firm — which once had 450 employees —has operated on the reduced scale concentrating on servicing and spare parts for the generator sets. Approximately 20 persons are now employed.

Schoonmaker said today the firm does not plan to end operations when the property is developed, but instead will move to another location "somewhere in Marin."

San Rafael Ends Ties With EOC

The San Rafael City Council last night unanimously voted to end its participation in the Marin County Economic Opportunity Council. (Other San Rafael City Council stories, page 9.)

The action came after Asst. City Mgr. and EOC representative William J. Bielser said that participation in the agency "no longer benefits San Rafael."

"No direct services are being provided to the poor of Marin County" by the EOC, Bielser declared, adding that the agency "stifles dissent".

The executive director of the EOC last week called for the ouster of Bielser and fellow board member J. Kevin Donovan after the pair sent a telegram to Gov. Ronald Reagan that urged EOC funding be withheld.

Bielser, who was instrumental in sparking the federal investigation into EOC misuse last year of about $100,000, has urged a complete reorganization of the agency.

Bielser, who became San Rafael's EOC representative last January, said he was "glad to be leaving" the agency.

McGovern Visits LBJ To Seek His Blessing

McGovern, the Democratic presidential nominee, and his running mate, R. Sargent Shriver, received the biggest welcome of their campaign Monday night in Austin when they arrived for today's 11:15 a.m. EDT appointment with Johnson.

McGovern barred newsmen from the meeting "in deference to President Johnson's privacy" so the dramatic confrontation between the two men, the first since they parted company over the Vietnam War in 1968, will be unrecorded except for carefully controlled still pictures.

During a brief airport news conference in Austin before flying to the LBD Ranch, McGovern said the meeting was merely going to be "a friendly visit. We're just going to discuss general matters about the campaign."

Though McGovern said he did not plan to ask Johnson to campaign actively for him, he said he thought personal appearances by the former President would help. Johnson also has suffered three heart attacks and possibly would not be able to campaign extensively.

An estimated 10,000 people—most of them students from the University of Texas and other nearby colleges—turned out to cheer McGovern as he warmly praised Johnson's record in ed-

Council Criticized As Increased Corte Madera Budget Passes

By PAT PERRY

The Corte Madera Town Council last night set a 1972-73 tax rate of $1.37 per $100 assessed valuation, an increase of 34 cents over the previous year's rate. (Another Corte Madera Town Council story, page 3.)

But later, sitting as the Corte Madera Sanitary District board, the members set the district 1972-73 tax rate at 35 cents per $100, a drop from 60 cents last year.

So Corte Madera residents will pay a total tax rate of $1.72, an increase of 9 cents over this year's rate.

The final budget total of $1,271,163 for fiscal 1972-73 compared to this year's figure of $1,154,807.

The tax rate was unanimously set by the council after more than an hour of heated interchange with a standing-room-only audience.

Philip O. Sasso, a member of the town's board of adjustments and a director of the Mariner Cove Improvement Association, accused councilmen of "not doing their homework on the budget."

Claiming there were several mathematical errors in the original budget, Sasso said he had 22 years of financial experience and that he and Howard C. Harvey, vice-president of the Larkspur School District board, could not understand the budget.

"And he's treasurer of a major corporation and both of us got lost in allocations and numbers disappearing places," Sasso said.

Town Treasurer Frank Bigley said the working budget was an estimated document and all mathematical errors were corrected during budget hearings.

"I sat through seven or eight nights of budget meetings and they weren't corrected then," Sasso retorted.

The council spent much of its time trying to juggle the budget's figures to provide a $10,000 contingency reserve fund — an action they decided on at their Aug. 7 meeting when they deleted a $4,000 curb-ponding project and discussed adding 2 cents to the anticipated tax rate.

Councilman Edward W. Colthurst, who was absent at that meeting, strongly opposed setting up a reserve fund. Councilman Robert J. Flahive suggested the town ought to have something in hand in the event of an unforeseen emergency.

Their problem was accentuated because the budget total already called for a $1.35 tax rate and, on Friday, Bigley said, he was notified that the county library levy had jumped 2 cents, making a $1.37 tax rate an unavoidable minimum.

Tentative suggestions of a $1.39 tax rate brought forth oyth angry groans from the capacity audience, so the council devoted itself to finding an extra $6,000 in the budget to add to the $4,000 from the axed curb ponding.

Prison Break Costs 13 Lives

TRELEW, Argentina (UPI)— Thirteen terrorist prisoners were killed and six others wounded today in an attempted escape from a nearby military prison, a navy spokesman announced.

All 19 killed and wounded in the bloody episode were involved in last Tuesday's prison-break at the maximum security prison in Rawson, 15 miles away, the spokesman said.

No other details were immediately available.

Eight Die In Bomb At Station

BELFAST (UPI) — A 100-pound bomb exploded prematurely Tuesday as two gunmen were placing it in a Northern Ireland border customs post at Newry. The blast killed the two bombers and six other persons.

In addition to the eight killed, six other persons were injured and the brick customs building was destroyed.

The blast raised to 527 the number of persons killed in three years of sectarian and political violence in Ulster's six counties.

"I wish to God it was all over," said a young man who worked at the devastated customs post. "It doesn't really mean much when you read about it in Belfast. But these were my mates."

About 30 persons worked at the customs post outside Newry, 32 miles south of Belfast in County Down.

San Rafael Extends Building Moratorium

By NELS JOHNSON

The San Rafael City Council last night extended for eight months a building moratorium aimed at halting development incompatible with a new general plan to be prepared for the city.

The moratorium, passed for a four-month period last June 19 as an interim urgency measure, applies to all undeveloped land involving more than two acres or five lots. The extension will halt potentially incompatible development until June 19, 1973, and the moratorium may be extended for another year after that.

The unanimous action followed a joint meeting of the council and the city planning commission to clarify council policy regarding the ban and its companion use-permit procedure.

San Rafael Mayor C. Paul Bettini declared at the meeting thqt "there is not and never was intended to be" a blanket moratorium in San Rafael. The moratorium, he said, does not prevent anyone with an acceptable plan from developing property.

Bettini said that under the moratorium's use permit procedure, development proposals will be heard "when the type of land use proposed will be continued without question in a particular area." The proposal then will be considered on its merits, he said.

Bettini told the commission that any land proposed for development should be flat. "We're not going to be developing hilltops in any case," he said.

Proposed developments should have "substantially" less density than the maximum permitted under existing standards, he added.

Bettini said proposals would be considered "only for those areas where the city council, planning commission and pub-

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Survey Storm Damage

HONOLULU (UPI) — Army decontamination experts land on remote Johnston Island today to determine how the atoll and America's storehouse of lethal nerve and mustard gas withstood the fury of Hurricane Celeste.

An Army spokesman said there was absolutely no indication of any gas leakage during the pounding Sunday by 45-foot waves and 150-mile-per-hour winds.

The Air Force said that photos taken from a reconnaisance plane "show that wind took the roof off the TV-radio studio and a few other buildings," but that otherwise there was no apparent major damage to the storehouse of top-secret military equipment.

Sentenced To Hang

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (UPI) — Black Power leader Abdul Malik was found guilty of first degree murder yesterday and sentenced to hang.

Stanley Abbott, also accused in the murder of Joe Skerrit, a 24-year-old barber who was a member of a Black Power commune whose leader was Malik, was sentenced to 20 years of hard labor, after being found guilty of manslaughter.

No date was set for the hanging of Malik, whose crime was described by Judge Evan Rees as "the brutal, savage slaying of an innocent man."

Mailer Obey Orders

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mailers at The New York Times obeyed a court order and returned to work last night after a one-day work stoppage and the presses began rolling again.

With members of Local 6 of the New York Mailers Union back on the job packaging and routing papers from the presses to delivery trucks, today's editions reached the street on time.

Lawyers for the Times obtained an injunction yesterday, blocking a walkout by the mailers. The paper suspended publication of yesterday's edition after only 1,000 copies had been printed. Normal weekday circulation for the Times in 850,000.

Three Found Slain

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three young men were shot repeatedly and killed last night on a deserted stretch of beach used in the past as a lover's lane.

Detective Sgt. Bert Mills said the unidentified victims, who had apparently been led to the beach by their assailants and then shot, were discovered by two radio car patrolmen who spotted one of the victims, mortally wounded in the chest, staggering along Cross Bay Boulevard.

The officers then found the other two bodies, sprawled on the beach about 100 yards from the road, lying face down and bleeding from multiple wounds.

Non-Delegates Vary Their Miami Pitches

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Demonstrations by non-delegates to the Republican Convention Monday were colorful, sometimes spicy, varied and frequent. There was very little violence.

Highlights included a naked man turning cartwheels, a rock band composed of five women, two nude men with a topless girl, appearances by movie actress Jane Fonda and Black Panther Bobby Seale, and many, many speeches.

The activities got almost no coverage on national television and there was no indication that any of the delegates to the convention were paying attention.

As more than 1,000 ragged demonstrators listened to speeches outside the convention hall early Monday evening, they were watched by a stylishly dressed couple. The man and woman would not give their names but said they were from Paradise Valley, Ariz., and had come to watch the convention.

"This is nonsense," said the man, gesturing toward the protesters. "It's not going to influence anyone here."

The demonstrators themselves apparently were concerned about the image they were projecting, or the lack of it. News media received phone calls from various groups asking if they were going to have reporters at their scheduled events.

Sgt. Pete Corso, information officer of the Miami Beach Police Department, said protest groups "have indicated to us that they do want to be arrested on Wednesday, when they are planning civil disobedience acts."

Corso was asked if the police would make arrests.

"If their desire is to be arrested, we'll accommodate them," he replied.

The first and one of the largest protest marches of the day was staged by the Vietnam Veterans Against the War. A throng estimated at 1,500 persons, led by three veterans in wheel chairs, went to Miami Beach Senior High School where 800 Florida National Guard troops were billeted, on call in case of convention disorder.

The troops stayed inside the air conditioned building, watching through the windows as the demonstrators made speeches with bullhorns. Six protesters were arrested for climbing atop the roof of the four-level building where the guard's communications equipment was located.

The march by the veterans to the school was marked by two incidents. A young man disrobed and, wearing only his shoes, began spinning cartwheels in the street. He was arrested and charged with indecent exposure.

Also on the march, the Rev. Carl McIntire, a conservative and pro-war preacher and 40 of his followers ran into the antiwar group. The protesters shouted antiwar slogans—some of them obscene—at the McIntire group. There was no response from the pro-war group and the demonstrators moved on.

Other groups marched to the convention hall. A woman's demonstration was led by a rock band. A march by Zippies protesting "repression" was highlighted when a braless young woman removed her blouse and two young men stripped completely. Police were in the area but made no move to arrest the disrobers or to order them to put their clothing back on, but after a period of time they redressed.

The antiwar groups gathered in front of the convention hall where in the early part of the evening they were joined by a large group of Cubans — estimated at between 1,000 and 1,500.

Miami Beach police, moving in quickly separated the Cubans and the young people. One brief fight broke out.

Barry Ignites The Old Spark

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—They were here to renominate a President who had steered the party through its sharpest turn to the left. But their hero for the day was a former presidential candidate who gave the GOP a disastrous wrench to the right.

"We want Barry!" the Republican convention delegates roared, repeatedly halting Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater in his delivery of a blistering speech they knew in their hearts was composed by Goldwater himself.

They applauded when Barry said President Nixon was ending the war in Vietnam, and that he could end it sooner if Democrats would quit messing in foreign affairs.

They cheered when he said he was tired of hearing what was wrong with America, and that he wanted Americans to start thinking about all that is right.

Recalling his own past tough stands against Communist aggressors over the world, they may have gulped a little at Goldwater's praise for Nixon's moves "toward building an understanding between the United States and our potential enemies ... Red China and the Soviet Union."

If they were a little surprised also to find Barry Goldwater, now 63, explaining the thought processes of youth, they were reassured at his diagnosis. ("When they say they want to do their own thing," Barry said, "they are telling us that they want to live without being guided by a ring in the nose.")

They heard him, if Hanoi didn't, when he served notice that George McGovern on the war doesn't speak for most Americans. They let loose the applause when he said Ramsey Clark had "almost never been right in his entire life."

Finally he got down to draft dodgers, and the delegates sensed that he was hitting his stride.

"I say to those young people who deserted America, stay where you are!" commanded Goldwater, in a double slap at amnesty talk and at McGovern's "come home America" theme. "You are no longer welcome in this country you turned your back on."

THE TEMPORARY CHAIRMAN

Reagan In The Limelight

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Four years after he battled Richard Nixon and lost, Gov. Ronald Reagan got his chance to address a Republican convention and lavishly praised his one-time foe as a President of "idealism with integrity."

In a tough speech specially aimed fr the ears of disenchanted Democrats watching on nationwide television, Reagan characterized Sen. George McGovern as a naive, impractical idealist and urged viewers to vote for Nixon.

"Our traditional two-party system has become a three-party system: Republican, McGovern and Democrat," Reagan said, emphasizing a theme heard throughout this convention.

Reagan, who ran against Nixon in 1968 for the presidential nomination, delivered a half-hour keynote-styled speech Monday night to the Republican Convention as its temporary chairman.

He was greeted by long applause from delegates before addressing them. The 96-member California delegation, largest in the hall, stood and held scores of handmade signs welcoming the governor to the podium.

Before riding to the hall on chartered buses for the convention's opening session, Californians were urged by delegation vice-chairman Thomas C. Reed of Ross to stay away from Flamingo Park, the demonstrator encampment.

"Keep your cool, keep your wits and don't get into any shouting matches with non-delegates," Reed told a delegation meeting. "They are not hippies, yippies or crazies. They are non-delegates. Leave it at that."

Holmes Tuttle, a wealthy Los Angeles auto dealer and a major Republican campaign contributor, passed the kitty for money and announced the delegation was in debt. He said morning coffee and donuts for delegation caucuses each day cost $1,000 alone.

Reagan, a former Democrat who switched party registrations a decade ago, said "millions of patriotic Democrats were disenfranchised in the takeover of their convention" by McGovern.

In a reference to former President Lyndon Johnson, Reagan said "a former President of the United States became a non-person. His years in the service of the party and nation were unmentioned.

"The former vice president (Hubert Humphrey) was dismissed with arrogant disrespect —unprecedented in American political history."

Reagan said although McGovern advertised himself as an idealist, the dictionary defined an idealist as "one who indulges in flights of fancy. To be practical, idealism must be accompanied by integrity."

McCloskey Monday was denied permission by the convention Credentials Committee to be represented by a New Mexico delegate of his choosing.

"I just have little sympathy with what he's trying to do," Reagan said of McCloskey. "He's just trying to find a forum to again express his disagreement with the administration."

Youngsters Cheer—On Cue, Too

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Republicans have spiced their convention with a goggle-eyed young cheering squad which marches to the GOP beat as avidly as protesters on the outside march against it.

The organizers, in turn, provide them a swimming pool, tennis court, rock bands and games to while away the hours until their next assignment.

Some 3,000 strong, the GOP youths paid their own way to Miami Beach to cheer on President Nixon and in the process, experience a smidgen of national politics.

Israelis, Arabs Exchange Fire Across Occupied Golan Heights

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Israeli and Arab gunners exchanged fire across the cease-fire line on the occupied Golan Heights early today, military sources in Tel Aviv said. No casualties or damage was reported.

The sources said several mortar shells fired from Syrian territory drew an answering barrage from the Israeli side. It was the second incident of its kind in 17 days. A similar exchange was reported from the occupied territory Aug. 5.

In Beirut, a French language newspaper said today relations between Egypt and Syria have become strained because of Damascus' refusal to oust Soviet military advisers.

President Anwar Sadat of Egypt last month ordered some 15,000 Soviets to go home and there was diplomatic speculation Syria would follow suit. However, President Hafez Assad of Syria said in a recent newspaper interview the Russians in his country would not be expelled and the newspaper L'Orient-Le Jour said today his decision caused relations between Damascus and Cairo to become cool.

The paper said relations were further strained when Egypt and Libya announced they would unite into a single nation within a year, excluding Syria.

In Amman, political sources said today Jordan's King Hussein Monday reshuffled his cabinet in a move to revitalize the country's economy and help him create a Palestinian state on the West Bank of the River Jordan..

Seven new ministers joined the cabinet formed by outgoing Prime Minister Ahmed Lawzi and two close aides of the king moved into the key portfolios of the interior and foreign affairs ministries.

The King said in a decree to Lawzi, charging him with forming a new government, that the cabinet should work toward uniting the East Bank and the Israeli-occupied West Bank.

Hussein earlier this year said the West Bank should become a semi-autonomous Palestinian state under his rule, following liberation from Israel.

The Palestinian cause, the king said, "is not a matter of politics to us, but a matter of life or death, existence or non-existence," the sources said.

GOP Fund Violations?

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The General Accounting Office (GAO) has found violations in the handling of nearly $500,000 by President Nixon's re-election committee, the Washington Post reported today.

Quoting "several reliable sources" the newspaper said GAO investigators found what they described as a $100,000 "campaign security fund." From this fund, it said, $25,000 was deposited in a bank account of one of the suspects in the alleged bugging and break-in at the Democratic National Committee.

The Post also said the investigators cited the Committee for Re-election of the President for failure to report all the funds it received after April 7, the effective date of a new campaign fund reporting law.

According to the sources, the $500,000 questioned by the investigators represents about $200,000 in unreported contributions, and "another couple hundred thousand dollars in unreported expenditures".

Kangaroos outnumber the 12 million Australians.

Stop Sign Ruling Is Delayed

The Mill Valley City Council last night postponed decision on a proposal to install a three-way stop sign at Sycamore and Nelson avenues until it could hear city staff recommendations.

Despite lengthy testimony from a neighborhood spokesman and a petition with 150 signatures, the council postponed action until it could hear from Police Chief Dan Terzich, who is conducting a traffic count at the corner.

The spokesman, Ralph Mead, said a stop sign would encourage motorists to go back onto Camino Alto, rather than cutting through Nelson Avenue en route to East Blithedale, would slow speeders and would preserve the "quality of life" in the neighborhood.

Unwilling to wait the three weeks that Terzich said he needed for the traffic study, the council continued the matter to its meeting Sept. 5.

The motion to continue was passed 4-1, with Councilman Gerlad J. Hood dissenting because, he said, he was prepared to vote last night.

The Mill Valley City Council also:

HI HO MOTEL — Heard from planning commissioner John De Becker that illegal filling of Richardson Bay, as recently prohibited by the Bay Conservation and Development Corporation, was being conducted near the Hi Ho Motel, along Highway 101. Hood agreed with De Becker and asked planning director Tom W. Newton for a report at the next meeting.

APPEALS — Defeated a motion by Councilman Robert E. Capron and seconded by Hood to review applications for permits recently granted by the planning commission to a Middle Eastern restaurant proposed at 22 Miller Avenue and for live entertainment at The Office cocktail lounge on Throckmorton Avenue.

SEWER WORK — Opened bids from three contractors for sewer work in the watershed area near Sycamore and East Blithedale avenues but continued the matter until today because the bids were based on inaccurate specifications.

ARCHITECTURAL — Appointed Dartmond Cherk and reappointed Jan Mountjoy, Calvin Platt and Robert Tanaka to the architectural advisory committee.

PARKS, RECREATION — Appointed Phyllis Joseph to a term on the parks and recreation commission which expires March 1973.

PARKING FEES — Decided against raising parking meter charges at this time from five cents to 10 cents per hour, after hearing chamber of commerce president Samuel W. Schneider report that no city in Marin County, except Sausalito charged 10 cents per hour for parking.

SEPTIC TANK — Granted approval to John Ehler to connect a private septic tank to his proposed two-bedroom house at 19 Fern Canyon Road, providing the installed tank meets the inspection requirements of the county health board.

FIRE GATES — Passed a resolution of intent to install fire gates across the openings to several fire trails on the north ridge to prevent cars and trucks from driving up and dumping garbage in the area.

ORDINANCES — Readopted without discussion three ordinances passed two weeks ago which City Mgr. William H. Cunningham said ought to be readopted in order to eliminate the possibility of legal challengers. The council quickly readopted ordinances regulating land fill around Upper Richardson Bay, punishments for violations of the animal code and membership on the youth commission.

NONRETURNABLES — Passed an ordinance requiring merchants selling soft drinks to display a sign reading, "The City of Mill Valley reminds you that buying beverages in returnable bottles saves the environment and may save you money." The council decided that signs must be provided by the merchant and posted within 30 days.

CUSHING DRIVE — Passed an ordinance which prohibits parking anywhere on Cushing Drive.

POLICE — Held a closed session at 7:30 p.m. to confer with city representative in pending contract talks with police employees.

MEETINGS — Adjouned to a budget session at 8 p.m. today in council chambers. Another budget session is scheduled at 8 p.m. tomorrow.

Bremer Is 21

A Surprise For The City Council

To the apparent surprise of the Mill Valley City Council, the proprietor of the bus depot bookstore last night said she would rather forego a 50 per cent reduction in her monthly rent than assume responsibility for the maintenance of the outside of the Lytton Square landmark.

The proprietor, Janice Aranoff, said she wasn't interested in the lease agreement drawn up by City Attorney Leland H. Jordan which would obligate her regularly to paint and repair the outside walls and windows of the depot.

Under the proposed lease, Mrs. Aranoff would have been granted a reduction in rent from $250 per month to $125, for a period of six months. The council had previously stated that during the six-month period, the bookstore was expected to increase its gross sales and become able to afford a rent closer to the building's fair market value.

Mrs. Aranoff told the council sternly that she was not interested in making more profit. She said she resented the council's attitude toward her business and was prepared to look elsewhere for space to rent.

She said the council did not realize the services her business provides to the residents of Mill Valley. Among those services, she included: making change for bus travelers, selling bus tickets, offering information, supplying telephone booths, and staying open Saturdays and Sundays.

Councilman Robert E. Capron said he was greatly disappointed with the decision by Mrs. Aranoff. He said he interpreted her decision as an end to his hope to involve members of the community in a campaign to build the bookstore into a vital and profit-making venture.

Norman Black, a member of a committee appointed to study the depot, made three recommendations to the council. He urged the council to have the exterior repainted and repaired, to have the architectural advisory committee study possible landscaping of a mini-park adjacent to the former Pat and Joe's restaurant on Throckmorton Avenue and to have a police officer assigned to patrol the bookstore area "to make the area more conducive to business."

Black did not specify what he expected the patrolman to do, but it was clear that he expected a policeman to control the youths who frequently congregate near the entrance to the store.

Mill Valley Save-Space Land Deal

In an effort to preserve 23 acres of open space, the Mill Valley City Council last night approved a minor subdivision of a parcel owned by Mill Valley Community Church along the north side of Hillside Avenue between Elinor Avenue and Greenwood Way.

After subdividing its 23 acres, the church intends to retain a one-acre parcel for open air services and sell for $85,000 to Nature Conservancy the remaining 22 acres. Nature Conservancy, in turn, will offer its 22 acres to the city of Mill Valley on a four-year option to buy the property.

The transaction was worked out by Councilman Robert E. Capron as a method of freezing the land in an undeveloped state. If a regional park district is ever formed in Marin, the city can exercise its option, buy the parcel and, in turn, sell it to the new park district.

The plan had been scrutinized and approved recently by the city planning commission.

Councilman Robert E. Burton said he would vote for the subdivision, but was not happy with the complex arrangement. "I'm looking at this deal as a holding action only," Burton said.

Nature Conservancy is an organization that makes such land deals throughout the country in an effort to preserve open space from uncontrolled development.

Magee Back To His Old Court Acts

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — For the third time, Ruchel Magee spat on his court-appointed attorney Monday and for the 13th time he was removed to an adjoining cell into which the sounds of his pre-trial proceedings are piped.

The latest spitting came when Judge Morton R. Colvin ruled that Magee was not competent to act as his own lawyer but that a hearing would be held to determine whether he is competent to take part in his own defense.

Noting that Magee has flooded the court with 50 motions, Judge Colvin said most of them could have been filed a year ago.

"There must come a time when pre-trial motions come to an end and the courts must go about its business of conducting a trial," the judge said.

Magee, a San Quentin Prison convict, is charged with murder in connection with an aborted 1970 escape attempt from Superior Court in Marin County in which four persons, including Judge Harold J. Haley, were killed.

The campout, scheduled for Sept. 2 through 4, will be held at the 900-acre camp La Honda in the Santa Cruz Mountains.

Mill Valley: Wild Dogs Raise Fears

The Mill Valley City Council last night criticized the county humane society's lack of control of ferocious dogs that run loose in the city — particularly a pack of dogs that allegedly killed a Siamese cat and wounded a deer last Tuesday.

The criticism was leveled against the humane society after a group of agitated residents from the Cascade Drive area reported that a pack of dogs has been terrorizing their neighborhood for weeks.

The council was asked to take some action to prevent the dogs from endangering children in the area, but decided to postpone any decision until the city attorney could review a report from the humane society about the dogs.

The council began discussing only the single pack of dogs, but soon took on the broader problem of loose dogs throughout the city.

Councilman Robert E. Burton said the wildlife which had previously roamed around his neighborhood had been scared away by the dogs. "I think it's an outrage," Burton said.

Councilman Gerald J. Hood — who told the council he had recently pulled a pack of dogs off his 2-year-old child — said he has often had a hard time getting assistance from the humane society.

Addressing himself to the general nuisance of uncontrolled dogs, Councilman Edward J. Boessenecker suggested a limitation on the number of dogs in any one household, an increase in dog licensing fees and stricter leash laws.

Councilman Robert E. Capron asked City Attorney Leland H. Jordan to outline methods the council could adopt to restrain the dogs on Cascade Drive.

Jordan said he could seek a court order to have the dogs destroyed, but that he would hesitate to ask the court for such an order without a written report on the situation from the humane society.

He also said the police could be called in case of a real emergency.

The council continued the matter until its regular meeting Sept. 5 and Jordan was asked to report then on progress in obtaining a court order. The council also decided to invite an employee of the humane society to address the council.

Some GOP Delegates Seek Indictment Of Jane Fonda

She is criticized in the petitions for her visit to North Vietnam and her statements concerning the war.

Clarence E. Warner, the Oklahoma state GOP chairman, said Monday night he had 40 to 50 signatures on his petition. He said he got the idea for his petition from the Georgia delegation.

The petitions accuse Miss Fonda of giving "aid and comfort" to "the enemy" in the Indochinese war. Warner said he wished he could "add Ramsey Clark." The former Democratic attorney general also recently visited North Vietnam.

District Stance On School Site Sought

The Corte Madera Town Council decided last night to ask Mill Valley School District for its official position on seeing that a school site is designated by developers of Madera del Presidio. (Another Corte Madera Town Council story, page 1.)

Councilman Robert J. Flahive asked for the action, saying that although it was not the council's legal responsibility to ensure designation of a school site, the builder "is developing a community of over 500 units and a school is part of a neighborhood —it's our responsibility to be sure."

Councilman Edward W. Colthurst endorsed the town planning commission's action of Aug. 14 disclaiming jurisdiction over the problem. "let the school district do it" he said.

Flahive said he was concerned that children from the development would have to be bused into the Mill Valley district.

From the audience, C. William Thomas, chairman of the town's planning commission, said it was advised it had no jurisdiction on the matter, and he understood that the Mill Valley district had no intention of ever building a school in the Madera del Presidio area.

Town Atty. Albert Bianchi confirmed that the town has no authority to require developers to offer a school site.

The Corte Madera Town Council also:

TOWN MANAGER — Authorized Town Mgr. Ronald E. Dietrich Stroh, representing the Marin Municipal Water District said possible solutions would be presented at the district's Aug. 30 board meeting, including interconnection between the present 12,000 and 30,000-gallon water storage tanks, and the possibility of erecting a 300,000-gallon tank on top of Christmas Tree Hill.

BALLOT — Approved a ballot measure argument on making the town clerk and treasurer positions appointive rather than elective; the election to be consolidated with the Nov. 7 general election.

DELEGATES — Designated Mayor Holmes S. Norville and Councilman Herber C. Leney as delegate and alternate to the annual conference of the League of California Cities, Oct. 15 - 18.

Living-Cost Rise In 5-Month High

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The cost of living rose 0.4 per cent in July, its biggest jump in five months, the Labor Department said today. Sharply higher food prices, especially for meat, were blamed.

The department's Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) said almost two-thirds of the increase in its Consumer Price Index (CPI) was caused by a 1.2 per cent jump in the cost of food in grocery stores.

The higher grocery prices reflected recent sharp upturns in wholesale food prices. Meats, poultry and fish showed a 2.8 per cent increase.

The overall increase in July was exceeded this year only by the 0.5 per cent jump in February. It left the index 3 per cent above a year ago.

But the BLS said average weekly earnings of workers increased more than enough in July to keep up with the rising cost of living, with the purchasing power of their gross weekly earnings increasing 0.4 per cent.

Actual average gross weekly earnings increased $1.09 in July to $136.47, due to a 1-cent increase in hourly earnings and a 12-minute longer work week. After adjustment for changes in consumer prices, real weekly earnings were 0.4 per cent above June and 3.5 per cent above a year earlier.

An administration spokesman, Assistant Treasury Secretary Edgar R. Fiedler, called the July report "a mixed bag of information on recent price developments."

Fiedler said at a news conference that the 0.4 per cent increase was higher than recent months and too high to meet President Nixon's goal of reducing inflation to 3 per cent or less by the end of this year.

But taking a longer view, he said, consumer prices have increased at an annual rate of only 3.3 per cent during the past three months and at a 2.4 per cent rate over the past five months, compared with a 6.1 per cent increase in 1969, 5.5 per cent in 1970 and a 3.8 per cent annual rate for the first eight months of 1971.

"Thus, over the past three years the inflation rate for prices paid by the consumer has been cut in half," Fiedler said. "Looking ahead over the remainder of 1972, we expect to see further signs of a cutback in the pace of inflation, he said.

"One such sign is visible now: prices paid for cattle on the hoof are down moer than 10 per cent from their peak in mid-July.

"This decline at the feed lot should soon be translated into lower prices for steaks, chops and hamburger at the meat counter," he said, but quickly added "that if housewives across the country are like my wife —and I am sure they are —they will take a 'seeing is believing' attitude toward that last statement."

While food prices were shooting upward, prices for commodities other than food remained unchanged in July, the first time in six months there had not been an increase. Nonfood commodity prices, however, normally decline in July. Prices for services went up 0.3 per cent, about average for the past year.

Prices for fruits and vegetables went up 0.9 per cent last month. But not all food prices increased. Dairy product prices went down 0.2 per cent and prices for cereals and bakery products declined 0.1 per cent.

In nonfood items, prices rose for gasoline, houses, used cars, alcoholic beverages and some house furnishings such as carpets, table lamps and dinnerware.

But while used car prices were increasing 0.6 per cent, new car prices declined 0.3 per cent although this was a smaller decline than usual in July.

The BLS said price declines resulted from summer clearance sales on furniture, textile house furnishings and clothing. Prices for men's and boys' clothing went down 1.2 per cent, women's and girls clothing prices 1.1 per cent and shoes 0.1 per cent.

There were also higher prices for rent, medical and dental services and transportation.

Novato Hits Joint Use Of Hamilton

the rustic-rural atmosphere and you have to look at what happened to San Jose."

Chairman William W. Schwartzer of the Marin County Aviation Commission was met with groans when he said that "no one has come up with any evidence that the proposed use will have adverse effect on the environment."

Audience murmuring and a few boos cropped up when Robert Harrison of the Marin County Planning Department told of a study indicating that noise pollution would be minimal and no air pollution problems were anticipated.

Mayor Sartain rapped his gavel and Quesada said: "This isn't going to be a mob or rabble. This is a democratic hearing." The mayor declared that if order wasn't kept, the room would be cleared.

Schwartzer said that commercial flights would take about 500 cars off the roads between Marin and San Francisco airport, would be a "major economic asset" to Marin, and would provide "strong justification" for maintaining the base as a military installation.

Schwartzer said: "Don't take a 'no' position and turn your back on it," and advised against "depriving yourself of the opportunity of working with the county."

George Galvin of Hughes Air West, one of the two firms seeking to run West Coast flights from the base, said the firm has proposed only four flights a day, two to Los Angeles and two to Portland and Seattle. Hughes Air West would install passenger handling facilities, he said.

There was strong public protest against the proposal for 20 flights a day from the base, as compared to the original proposal for four commuter flights.

Former Mayor Joseph D. Gargiulo said he was sorry the "door was opened" by the council when it approved the four flights.

Some of the comments from the residents opposing joint use were:

Gail Wilhelm, representing the Novato Branch of the American Association of University Women: "It would be in conflict with the express desire of the community to maintain its semi-rural character."

Lester Shorter, president of Bel Marin Keys Homeowners Association: "The existing proposal could only be the foot in the door."

Jerry A. Cannon, representing the North Marin Chapter of the Marin Conservation League: "We need an environmental impact statement."

Joseph Seminario, representing Marin Alert and saying he had 34 petitions signed by residents of other Marin communities: "I feel Peter Progress and his wife sold all his pollution to San Jose and has moved to Marin County."

Guthrie R. Greene, president of the North Marin Federation of Homeowners, presenting petitions circulated by homeowners throughout Novato: "Last year we went along on four flights a day and put trust and confidence in local government, city and county, and find this doesn't work all the time."

The council heard similar protest from representatives of the Black Point Improvement Club, South Novato Homeowners Association, and received resolutions against joint use from the city planning commission, city environmental quality committee and city airport study group.

John A. Trumbull, presenting a minority report from the city's airport study committee, said there were many unanswered questions, but he would be "loath to write off an unknown amount of sales tax, revenue and air support jobs."

Two speakers, Benjamin R. Ostlind of San Rafael, former aviation commissioner and aviation enthusiast, and Phillip Coady of 747 Bradley Avenue, Novato contended the information that has been getting to the public is inaccurate.

Ostlind said the 20 flights (40 operations a day) wouldn't be a 100 per cent increase in flights as sometimes stated, but a 22 per cent increase.

Coady said the physical limitations at the base "make it impractical if not impossible" for it to become a major airport as some people fear.

The Air Force has only approved four flights, and "might not even" approve the 20 flights proposed. In any case, he said, 20 flights would have "little environmental or ecological impact."

The council adjourned to its regular meeting at 8 p.m. today at the Novato Community House.

Avenue. He said the Marin Municipal Water District had not budgeted for its matching share of the project.

But several Manzanita Avenue residents rose to protest. Harold and Gloria Bartlett said they had not even been aware the fire line was inadequate.

Joan Vaughn, who said she lives next door to the Lutheran Church on Manzanita, voiced her concern at the lack of increased fire protection, while Edward Bland told the council it did not need a "slush fund" since it could get emergency money from other sources.

One solution to the problem, that there be no reserve fund at all, got the approval of councilmen Colthurst and Herber C. Leney, while Flahive, Mayor Holmes S. Norville and Harold B. Wagstaff opposed the motion.

Harvey asked the council to consider taking some of the $59,000 budgeted for "conferences, training, dues subscriptions and contractual services" to provide a reserve fund.

In the end councilmen reached a compromise when Flahive proposed that the Manzanita fire line project be left untouched and that the $4,000 curb ponding project be deleted and put into a $5,000 contingency reserve fund.

Norville and Wagstaff voted in favor, Colthurst and Leney dissented.

Asked where the extra $1,000 would come from, Wagstaff said from the conferences and training account — to loud applause by the audience.

Metzger Trial Date Scheduled

Despite protests of his attorney, who wanted the case postponed at least until next year, a trial date yesterday was scheduled for the week of Oct. 30 for Michael H. Metzger, an attorney accused of having drugs and narcotics at his Sausalito home.

Judge Samuel Gardiner of Marin Superior Court in scheduling the date ignored requests by William O. Weissich that the case be continued until Metzger completes trials he has scheduled for clients.

Weissich said today he still plans to appeal a decision by former Judge Thomas F. Keating, who refused to dismiss charges against Metzger, a formgrounds an informant in the case may have lied.

Attorneys for etzger, a former federal prosecutor, have claimed narcotics agents were so eager to arrest Metzger that they committed perjury.

Metzger was arrested after an intensive search of his hillside home in December. He has admitted LSD, cocaine, marijuana and hashish found in a safe belonged to him but said agents planted some marijuana before they came upon the cache.

The attorney has claimed agents were after him because he had embarrassed several by calling them perjurers during trials.

Clark MacGregor, Nixon's campaign manager, said gifts of money from Republicans were slowing down because party members were so confident of victory they believed Nixon did not need money.

Dixie School Signups Listed

The Dixie School District will register new students from Aug. 28 through Aug. 31 at each of the 10 district schools.

Hours of registration are 9 a.m. to 12 noon and 1 p.m. to 3 p.m., according to Supt. Clifford W. Campbell. Minimum age for admission to kindergarten is four years, nine months and for first grade, 5 years, nine months on or before Sept. 1, Campbell said.

The law requires all children must be immunized against poliomyelitis, rubella, and diphtheria-pertussis-tetanus, he noted.

Rec Board Eyes Food Sales Offer

The Strawberry Recreation District board last night appointed a committee to look into a money-raising proposition by McDonald's Restaurants, according to Manuel K. Lahua, board secretary.

Jane Brown and Thomas Miller, board members, were named to study a proposal that the board sell, for $1 apiece, food tickets usable at McDonald's, splitting the take with the restaurant chain, Lahua said. He said McDonald's does this nationwide as public relations.

The board agreed to send out a newsletter reminding possible candidates to the board that Sept. 1 is the deadline for filing for one of two positions at the Nov. 7 general election. Lahua and Mrs. Brown's terms are up and they have filed for re-election, he said.

lic are in very substantial agreement" that the land use will be compatible with the new general plan.

He described the moratorium as a "screening process" useful for reflecting current community standards in the new general plan. He added that the city on Saturday would be interviewing consulting firms to prepare the new plan.

Two of four commissioners present at the 45-minute briefing said they believed the moratorium was unnecessary.

Commission chairman Joseph J. Garbarino said he would have preferred a ban on rezoning rather than an outright moratorium.

"Why didn't we just raise the lot size needed for development?" wondered Commissioner Thomas R. O'Toole. Such an action "would have given the property owner a better break from the tax assessor," he said.

Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner said a lot increase would have neglected problems of traffic, distribution and view. "It just wouldn't have done the job," he said. He predicted that the new general plan would be completed by late 1973.

New Students Can Register On Thursday

Appointment times can be arranged by telephoning the school, he said.

An orientation and "get acquainted" day for all seventh grade pupils will be held at the school from 9 to 11:30 a.m. Sept. 6, Moore said.

Pupils will meet teachers, receive handbooks and locker assignments, tour the school, attend an assembly and have a shortened schedule of classes. Pupils are to receive copies of their class schedules by Sept. 1, Moore said.

His conciliatory language, designed to heal the breach in the Democratic party resulting from its takeover by McGovern partisans, stood in sharp contrast to the atmosphere at the Democratic National Convention in which Johnson's name was barely uttered in the fulsome praise by speakers for former party leaders.

McGovern's Texas trip was part of a week-long courtship with Democratic regulars and other establishment figures, which will see a meeting in Chicago with Mayor Richard Daley Wednesday and speeches to the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Johnson and McGovern have had little use for each other since the former president sent a half million troops into Indochina before McGovern and other war critics forced him into retirement in 1968. Johnson has never publicly forgiven McGovern for hie role in that episode, although he endorsed the nominee last week. He reserved, however, the right to criticize him in the national interest.

Monday night McGovern acknowledged his differences with Johnson over Vietnam but said, "We are going out there to recognize that this is a country where diversity is part of our strength."

Trial Is Set In Heroin Case

A jury trial has been set for the week of Oct. 2 in Marin Superior Court for John Lee Bailey, 35, of San Rafael, who has pleaded innocent to charges of felony assault and possession of heroin.

Bailey was arrested May 26 by sheriff's deputies on a traffic warant who said they found four balloons of suspected heroin when searching him.

He is also accused of being the person who fired at a man in a Bermuda Palms Motel room in San Rafael on May 23.

Trial Set On Felony Assault

A trial has been set for the week of Oct. 24 in Marin Superior Court for a 50-year-old San Francisco man charged with cutting a former girl friend at her Marin City home.

He was arrested June 29 after an argument with Flora Sample, during which he is accused of attacking her with a razor. She was hospitalized with wounds on her chin and arm.

Cotati's Mayor Sells Her Store

Cotati Mayor Annette Lombardi has sold her bookstore, saying politics has hindered the business.

Miss Lombardi and her partner, Paula Douglas, agreed to sell the Eeyore Bookstore since most visitors come to talk politics rather than buy books. The business has been sold to Andy Ross of Palo Alto who plans to remodel the store and reopen it next month when classes resume at Sonoma State College.

Miss Lombardi will continue working part-time at her father's clothing store in Petaluma and Miss Douglas plans to move to Idaho.

United Way $81,400 Goal

A goal of $81,400 has been set for the Petaluma United Way Campaign for 1972, according to board president James Keegan.

The goal for the entire North Bay Region of Sonoma and Mendocino counties was set at $516,290.

Funds will benefit 34 agencies including Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Red Cross, Camp Fire Girls, Children's Home Society, Salvation Army, Sonoma County Drug Abuse Council, Big Brothers, Visiting Nursing Service, Family Service Agency, Council on Alcoholism and Council on Aging.

Hall told police that he was counting the money when a customer came in for some popcorn. While he was getting it, several other customers came into the store and when he returned to complete counting the money, it was gone, according to police.

Trio In Cocaine Extortion Case To Stand Superior Court Trial

Three men yesterday were ordered to stand trial in Marin Superior Court in connection with an extortion try in a San Rafael apartment last month in which a young couple and a telephone repairman were held at gunpoint.

Judge Robert A. Smallman of Municipal Court bound the three, Edwin McCulloh Walsh, 22, and Robert Thomas Kent, 24, both of Hawaii, and Terry Lee Smith, 28, of Seattle, over to superior court after a preliminary hearing.

During the hearing, Nikki Bigelow, a petite, dark-haired 23year-old, testified how she and her common-law husband, Stephen, 22, had arranged an $8,000 sale of cocaine to Kent and Walsh on July 6.

Then on July 13, she said, Smith burst into the Bigelow apartment, carrying a gun under a blanket and demanding the $8,000 back for Kent and Walsh as well as an additional $2,000 "for his trouble."

Kent and Walsh, who had been waiting outside, joined Smith in the apartment, she said, after she told Smith she didn't believe he had been sent by the pair.

Mrs. Bigelow said she was told her husband and the telephone man, Richard Weiss, whom Smith had tied up with a lamp cord at one point, would be killed if she did not obtain $10,000 from her father.

Mrs. Bigelow said Kent Walsh claimed they had been "burned" in the cocaine deal by a third person, who had cut the drugs with a harmless substance.

Before testifying yesterday, Mrs. Bigelow was granted immunity from prosecution at the request of Deputy Dist. Atty. Jerry R. Herman. The immunity, granted by Superior Court Judge David Menary Jr., came over the objections of Mrs. Bigelow's lawyer, Theodore Lachelt, and his associate, William O. Weissich, who represents one of the defendants.

They argued the court could not guarantee Mrs. Bigelow she would not be prosecuted in a foreign country such as Peru, where Lachelt said much cocaine is produced.

Menary, however, said the lawyers seemed more concerned with the fate of the three accused men than of Mrs. Bigelow.

The three, charged with attempted armed robbery and extortion as well as felony assault stemming from the abortive attempt to rob Mrs. Bigelow who managed to get help, are to appear in Superior Court Sept. 5.

43-Month-Old Commune Drug Charges Dropped

Forty-three-month-old drug charges against Donald C. McCoy Jr. and 10 of his erstwhile followers were dismissed yesterday by Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court for lack of a speedy trial.

"Even though the defendants may be held responsible for some portion of the delay . . . it is apparent that the defendants cannot now be brought to trial without totally disregarding the constitutional requirement of a speedy trial," the judge wrote in an order dismissing the case.

McCoy and his followers were arrested in January 1969 during two raids on Rancho Olompali, an old mansion north of Novato in which a commune had been set up.

Since that time the ranch has been sold and the colony "scattered to the winds," in the words of a defense attorney.

McCoy, onetime well-to-do businessman who reportedly spent a good part of a $500,000 fortune on the commune, was given a guardian to administer his remaining funds.

Wilson noted in his order yesterday that there were other problems with th case and that, in any event, probably only three or four of the defendants could have been brought to trial. He said the majority of them had not been firmly enough linked to drugs found in the house.

He cited the history of the case, which had gone up on appeal in late 1969 after Wilson threw out the evidence, saying the prosecution should have named the person who tipped off agents there were drugs in the house.

Fires Take 4.3 Million Acres In '71

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Forest fires in the United States last year ravaged an estimated 4.3 million acres, about 1 million more than in 1970, the Forest Service reported yesterday.

As usual, man was to blame for most of the destruction, according to a report bearing a somber-faced picture of Smoky Bear on the cover.

The report said lightning fires accounted for over one-third of the acreage burned.

But it added:

"In the heavily populated eastern half of the U.S., man-caused fires continue to be a threat to natural resources and property. Between 98 and 100 per cent of all fires in the East were man-caused. A large part of these were caused by persons burning trash and other debris near wooded areas . . ."

The heaviest fire damage last year came in Alaska and Florida, which together accounted for over half the U.S. total of burned woodland. Florida, with fires in the Everglades and Big Cypress Swamp, had what was considered the worst fire season in two decades.

The report added that "incendiary" blazes—fires deliberately set by arsonists on other persons' property — accounted for over half the damage in Southern states and over one-third in the East.

Schools Ask Different Class Setup

Lagunitas School District trustees last night authorized Supt. Harry F. Roche to request state permission to deviate from the state course of study next school year.

Roche said the district will have five open, or loosely structured, classrooms this year "and they are not going to strictly follow the state course of study and use all the required texts."

Of the district's total of 500 children, 150 will be in multigrade open classrooms. There was one open classroom last year and Roche said the expansion of the program is "entirely due to community interest and approval."

He will write Wilson C. Riles, the state Superintendent of Public Instruction, and request the district be granted permission for the deviation.

In addition to the open classrooms, the district will offer children two other programs — a traditional program," and another falling between that and the loosely structured open classes.

The Lagunitas School District also:

INTERN HOUSING — Heard a plea from Roche for housing for 10 University of Massachusetts teaching interns due to start work in September, and for 14 more interns who replace them for the second 16 weeks of school. The students, all in their junior year, will work at no cost to the district, which will pay $2,000 toward the cost of program supervision.

WORKSHOP — Was told that as part of the pre-school orientation program, district teachers would take part in an individualized instruction workshop all day Sept. 6 on reading, mathematics and science.

SCHEDULES — Received class schedules which include a slip session for reading in grades 1 through 6 in existing and ABC programs.

NEWSLETTER — Agreed that 17 items submitted by Roche should be incorporated in a district newsletter to be mailed to parents before school starts Sept. 11. Bus and class schedules will be included.

PROGRAM COORDINATOR — Approved a job description for the three teachers who are program coordinators.

Venetian Blinds Being Planned

The San Rafael Library board last night voted to install Venetian blinds to reduce glare and help control temperature in the library reading rooms at a cost of $1,032.

Librarian Vivian Smith reported that an engineering investigation of the library's safety against earthquake damage is to begin this week.

Trustee Richard Bradshaw III was absent.

WINNING BRIDGE

Finesses Are Hard To Win, But Sometimes One Comes Free

I once knew a man who claimed he was very lucky with finesses. (He also went to his dentist four times a year and enjoyed paying his taxes.) The rest of my friends are completely normal: They can't win a finesse to save their lives. The only reason they're still alive is that they occasionally force an opponent to hand them a "free" finesse. Study South's technique in today's hand if you want to prolong your own life.

Opening lead – ♡ Q

EAST SIGNALS

West opened the queen of hearts, and East began an encouraging signal by playing the seven. South shrewdly refused the trick.

West led another heart, and South took the ace. Declarer led a trump to dummy, ruffed dummy's last heart and led another trump to dummy. This sequence of plays drew trumps and stripped out the hearts from both the North and South hands.

Declarer next led a diamond from dummy. East played low, and South finessed with the ten. West won with the jack and now had to give South a free finesse.

NO ESCAPE

If West continued diamonds, South would be able to win a trick with the king. If West, instead, led a club, South would get a free club finesse.

There was no escape, since if West led hearts South would ruff and discard the losing diamond from dummy. This was the reason for South's eagerness to strip out hearts from the dummy as well as from his own hand.

FINE PLAN

Declarer's fine plan would fail if he took the first heart. East would win the second heart and lead a diamond. West would be able to win one diamond trick and exit safely with a third heart. Now there would be no way to force West to make a favorable lead.

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Photo reconnaissance aircraft will be used to plot the safest bicycle routes for cycling school children in Petaluma this year.

The high-flying study will be funded by a $16,000 grant from the state Office of Traffic Safety, according to Frank J. Walton, secretary of the state's business and transportation agency.

Film obtained from the aircraft will also be used to teach children safe pedestrian and bicycling habits.

The pilot program, part of a statewide project aimed at reducing traffic accidents, will be exapnded to other cities if successful, Walton said.

Fairfax To Eye Teacher Policy

The Fairfax School District board will consider a teacher evaluation policy when it meets in White Hill School at 7:45 p.m. today.

The district must adopt a teacher evaluation policy in accordance with the Stull Act, according to Supt. H. Reginald Hammond.

The board also will hear a report on science programs for school districts and review an interdistrict attendance agreement and a student teacher agreement with San Francisco State College.

Deadlock Votes On Housing

The San Rafael City Council last night failed to reach agreement on a 170-unit subidvision in Peacock Gap after deadlocking on one vote to approve and another to deny a permit. (Other San Rafael City Council stories, page 1.)

Consideration of American Savings and Loan Association's proposed Peacock Gap Unit 5 subdivision was continued to 8 p.m. Oct. 2.

The stalemate developed as Mayor C. Paul Bettini first sided with Councilman John A. Miskimen in opposing the use permit, then switched to vote with Councilman Fred E. Jensen in approving it. Councilman Harry A. Barbier also swtiched from permit approval to disapproval in the voting shuffle. Councilman Lawrence F. Mulryan was absent.

Attorney Julius Selinger had earlier told the council that the subdivision proposed for McNear and Peacock drives would be a "good, well-kept development" acceptable to homeowners.

He said the development was similar to one that had been approved in 1964 and wguld be a "repeat of the type of development that already exists in Peacock Gap."

He said the proposal should be exempted from the city's moratorium because plans were filed prior to the June 19 moratorium ordinance.

Selinger claimed the moratorium was illegal because only one roll call vote was taken on the ordinance and not two as he said was required by state law.

He urged the council either to approve the use permit or buy the land as open space. He said the property was worth $1 million.

Lawrence T. Simmelink, president of the Peacock Gap Homeowners Association, said his group did not oppose the subdivision but objected to permit approval "at this time."

"We want assurances of a high-quality development and we don't have those assurances yet," he said.

Simmelink said his association wanted architectural control over the proposal through its architectural review committee.

"Are we going to judge this subdivision by 1964 standards or are we going to be guided by enlightened concept?" one resident asked.

The council asked the homeowner association and the developer to "work out the differences" and return Oct. 2.

The San Rafael City Council also:

MYRTLE AVENUE — Rezoned a 6.2-acre parcel at Myrtle and Glen Park Avenue from single-family residential to planned unit development residential district. The action allows owner Frank Merz to construct a 28-unit townhouse on the land.

LOCUST AVENUE — Put over until Oct. 10 rezoning several parcels at Locust Avenue and Gold Hill Grade.

APPEAL FEE — Instructed staff to investigate the possibility of an appeal fee to cut down on nuisance appeals.

PUMPER — Authorized purchase and called for bids on a new 1,250-gallons-per-minute fire pumper destined for Terra Linda duty.

BAHIA DE RAFAEL — Approved final subdivision maps for Bahia De Rafael Unit 2.

PARKING — Restricted parking on Grand Avenue between Fourth Street and Fifth Avenue to two hours between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m.

BOYD MUSEUM — Budgeted $2,500 for the Boyd Museum.

REDEVELOPMENT — Adjourned as the city's redevelopment agency and learned from redevelopment Executive Director William J. Bielser that preliminary redevelopment plans would be submitted to the planning commission on Sept. 13.

CLOSED SESSION — Agreed to meet in closed session at 8 p.m. Aug. 28 to discuss employee salary negotiations with the council's negotiator.

$8,000 City 'Contract' For San Rafael Chamber

The council voted 3-1 to pump $8,000 into the city's ailing chamber of commerce for the chamber's services as a "public information agency."

Though the city is limited by its city charter to spending no more than $1,000 for promotion and advertising, the council skirted the stipulation by granting the allocation for a specific service on a contractual basis.

Charter amendment proposals to delete or increase the $1,000-a-year limit were defeated by San Rafael voters in June 1970 and April 1971.

The $8,000 public information funding came as a compromise after City Mgr. James H. McCown recommended that the council grant only $5,000 of chamber president Jack E. Bucknum's $15,000 request.

Bucknum presented a list of chamber services and said that without additional funding the organization would have to halt its aid to new businesses and residents in San Rafael.

McCown argued that some of the expenditures on Bucknum's list benefited businessmen more than the city, and pointed to a $3,000 allocation the chamber sought for the publication of its annual business directory.

McCown said city departments could handle other chamber expenses, such as answering mailed inquiries which are sent to the city.

"You don't buy something you don't need," McCown declared, adding that the city's redevelopment agency might be able to share the burden of chamber support.

City Atty. Fred C. Robbins urged that the chamber provide a more complete breakdown "in dollars and cents" before the council acts on the funding proposal.

Mayor C. Paul Bettini said the city was collecting about $70,000 annually from a hotel-motel tax and that "the tax was clearly intended for promotional purposes," although it is currently put in the city's general fund.

"But we can only contract for those services which we feel are beneficial to the city," Bettini added.

"All we want is the same support other chambers get," Bucknum said, noting that other California cities comparable to San Rafael give local chambers an average of about $23,500 per year.

The county chamber of commerce gets about $30,000 a year, and Novato's chamber gets about $8,000, he said.

"We want a contract for services, not a subsidy," he said.

Space Scope Copernicus Gets Ready

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)— Copernicus, the most powerful observatory ever launched, settled down in orbit today for what astronomers hope will be five years of inquiry into the secrets of the stars.

Its record-size 32-inch diameter telescope was ordered tc spring together automatically in space on command from ground stations 11 hours after launch Monday. Project officials will have to wait until Friday to find out if it worked as planned, but they said everything appeared to be working normally.

Dr. James E. Kupperian, project scientist, said the in-orbit telescope assembly operation was the first for the space program. The telescope was launched in three pieces and the radio commands were to release springs and allow the units to snap together. This way, the delicate quartz mirror and light analyzing apparatus were able to be cushioned during launch.

Copernicus will undergo several more days of system-by-system checks. Its big telescope, designed by Princeton University to study ultraviolet starlight, and three smaller X-ray telescopes will be turned on Thursday for the first time.

But officials said the 4,900-pound orbiting astronomical observatory won't be ready to begin its formal observations until late next week. Project manager Joseph Purcell said the stargazer should work for five years.

The first target for the 32-inchtelescope will be the hot young star Zeta Ophiuche in the constellation Ophiuchus, some 500 light years away. A light year is 6 trillion miles.

Pleads Innocent To Pot Charge

A jury trial was set for the week of Oct. 2.

Berrigan Brothers Begin Vigil To Speed Brother's Sentencing

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Anti-war priest Daniel Berrigan camped outside the federal building today to protest a four and one half month delay in sentencing for his brother Philip, who he claimed was a political hostage of the Nixon Administration.

"It is our belief that our brother is being held hostage by the Nixon war administration," Berrigan said Monday as he and another brother, Jerome, began a fast and vigil as an "act of brotherly love."

Philip Berrigan, currently serving a prison sentence for destroying draft records, and Sister Elizabeth McAlister were convicted last spring of smuggling letters out of a federal prison in Lewisburg, Pa.

However, the federal government failed to win a conviction on charges they and the other members of the "Harrisburg Seven" plotted to kidnap presidential advisor Henry Kissinger and blow up heating tunnels under buildings in Washington, D. C.

Federal Judge R. Dixon Herman, who presided at the trial, has been deliberating 19 weeks on post trial motions regarding the smuggling convictions.

"We will leave these steps when the judge says Philip will be sentenced for those two infamous letters," Daniel said. He said Herman had told him a date would be announced sometime in August.

The Jesuit priest, paroled in connection with the same draft record case for which Philip is imprisoned, said the delay was a political plot to keep Philip silent about the Southeast Asian conflict.

"He is being held hostage because I am free and speaking out against the war. The administration doesn't want two of us speaking out at once."

Philip, a Josephite priest, requested parole but according to his defense attorney, Terry F. Lenzner, the parole board refused to render a decision until the Harrisburg Seven case was completely closed.

Lenzner said the delay was "unprecedented in American courts."

"In courts which have been twice as busy, the time between conviction and sentencing is normally no more than one month," he said.

Herman must rule on a series of defense motions, including several calling for a complete dismissal of the verdict and all other charges.

Father Daniel said he and Philip had "no hope" that Herman would rule in their favor.

"He ruled against us all during the trial," Daniel said. "Why should he change now?"

The shaggy haired priest said a New York parole board had given him permission to stay in this central Pennsylvania city for only two days. He said he would ask for a continuance if Herman does not rule by Wednesday.

Discipline Meted Marin Attorney

Attorney Duncan P. Davidson of 35 Mitchell Boulevard, San Rafael, has been publicly reapproved by the disciplinary board of the State Bar of California.

The board found that Davidson, acting as attorney in a dissolution proceeding, received a check payable to his client, endorsed it as attorney in fact and placed it in his trustee account without the knowledge or consent of his client.

The attorney then withdrew from the trustee account the amount of a disputed billing his client had refused to pay, and kept it. He forwarded a cashier's check for the balance of the check to his client, later returning the appropriated funds, plus interest, to the client.

Daley Predicts McGovern Will Make 'Last Spurt'

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mayor Richard J. Daley, scoffing reports he had snubbed Sen George S. McGovern by failing to meet with him in Illinois last week, predicted Monday that McGovern will be "coming from behind on that great last spurt."

He said he thinks McGovern's presidential campaign is "doing fine" and denied reports he was angry at the South Dakota Democrat.

"I never get angry at anyone," Daley told a news conference. "What's the use of getting angry."

Daley reportedly had become miffed at quotes about him attributed to McGovern in a news magazine. Observers believed it was the reason Daley stayed away from the "Democrats' Day" appearances at the Illinois State Fair last week in Springfield and a meeting with McGovern.

Daley said he would meet with McGovern Wednesday in Chicago when the senator arrives to address the American Legion convention. It is possible Daley also will be seeing President Nixon when he flies into Chicago Thursday to address the Legionnaires, Daley said.

What Has Become Of The Booster?

Whatever became of the Booster?

You remember the Booster. He was the "100 per cent American," also the "100 per cent Californian" or "100 per cent San Anselman" or whatever.

To the Booster, the particular plot of land in which he happened to put down roots was the greatest place in the world. His philosophy was shouted in city slogans: "The Biggest Little City in the World," "America's Best Town By a Damsite," "Climate Best by Government Test," etc.

NO MATTER how remote or primitive his place of abode, to the Booster it was a metropolis of the future, an embryonic center of culture and commerce.

And, to a surprising extent, through enthusiasm plus hard work — through "boosterism" — the Booster often helped push his community toward the status he envisioned for it.

He was the civic leader, the shaker and mover, admired and widely emulated so that his ranks kept growing. His motto was shared by the millions: "Boost, don't knock."

WE NEVER HEAR of the Booster any more — except, perhaps, a slurring reference in some book by a sociologist.

In a national mania for masochism, we hear only of what's wrong with the hometown, with the home state, with America. The Booster is debunked, downgraded, and despised. And he is discredited by semantics.

The Booster has been lumped in, semantically, with the quick-buck real estate operator and the phony promoter, under the label of "developer." And "developer" has been made a dirty word — although without development, we would all be lighting our homes with candles and running our sewage down open ditches.

In our national masochism, the philosophy of boosterism has been replaced by that of collective guilt and despair. Because some of the Booster's projects went awry, all that he did toward progress and improvement is damned.

TO THE BOOSTER, all things were possible, and whatever was needed, we could do for ouselves. In today's prevailing philosophy, we can do nothing for ourselves. We must always import outside "experts" to tell us what our community needs, for we are incompetent to make our own decisions. And when these experts decide what is needed, of course we cannot provide it from our own resources; we must ask the federal government — although knowing in advance that it will fail us.

Despite all this discouragement, the Booster has not disappeared. He is still with us, although in diminished numbers and with muted voice. You find him, here and there, scrounging up funds to establish a Boys Club, providing a meeting place for senior citizens, getting new uniforms for the high school band, and in other acceptable "good works."

The Booster is capable of bigger things than these, if encouraged. Accomplishment arises from confidence. But it is hard to be a Booster when told constantly, by those with sophistication but without knowledge, with education but without intelligence, that all is wrong with your town, your state, and your country.

WE NEED tha Booster. He can help us overcome our current national malaise, as he helped overcome the destitution and lawlessness of frontier America.

Boost him; don't knock him.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Military Family Lacks Representation

Recently our family due to military orders had to leave California to arrive here in the state of Texas. Since we have been here at Laredo AFB I wrote to Congressman Clausen to help me with a problem on the base, and the reply I got was that he no longer was my representative in Congress. I have sent him another answer back telling him we are residents of California, and that we will be voting there.

I am wondering why he has tried not to be our representative now that we have left our home state. Have other military families got this kind of representation once they leave California?

This has me concerned, because there are many matters that come up in military living that the solution has to come from our representatives and if they try to pawn us off to other state representatives we end up with nothing.

He states in his letter that he turned my letter over to my new congressman, which should be a Texan, and I don't want him getting his nose into any of my business. I am a Californian, and right now one without anyone representing me. I, and my family, love California. Especially Marin, and that area. We file our state tax there, all our vehicles are registered there, and in a few short years we will be coming home to stay. One thing for sure, we will think twice come his re-election time.

McGovern Now Has Support Of Hanoi

Senator McGovern has finally received an unequivocal endorsement from the Hanoi regime. This comes via Ramsey Clark who was assured that if there is a change in administrations to one which will forsake all support to Southeast Asia then the prisoners will be released in less than 90 days. This has to be true, according to Clark, because the Communists said it was. I wonder if all of this was accompanied by a promise of financial support to the McGovern campaign.

It is no accident that the dike bombing propaganda campaign was launched coincidentally with McGovern's nomination. It is no accident that Jane Fonda and Ramsey Clark were invited to join the propaganda team. Thier credentials were already well known to Hanoi.

Let us hear a few utterences from the Clarks and the Fondas and, yes, even the McGoverns about the misery the South Vietnamese have suffered at the hands of the Hanoi regime. Then perhaps their latest pronouncements might carry a shred of credence. Clark may be a qualified lawyer but as a judge his bias rules him out.

Richardson Bridge Bike Path Possible

At a time when bike paths are needed all over the state, it is interesting to note that the State Division of Highways voted down funds for a bike path to be included in the widening project on Richardson Bridge. This seems to be a vital link between San Francisco/Southern Marin and the Tiburon/Belvedere Peninsula.

I was originally under the impression that the Marin County Board of Supervisors was responsible for voting down the funds, but as can be seen from the following letter from Supervisor Wornum (which I received permission from his office to quote), this is not the case:

"At no time did the board of supervisors vote down funds for a bike path across the Richardson Bridge. On the contrary, they have on three separate occasions urged the State Division of Highways to include a bikepath in the widening project.

This is a state highway and a state responsibility and we are extremely unhappy that they presently are not fulfilling it . . ."

I therefore urge all those interested to write a letter to the State Division of Highways and your state senator, or circulate a petition, requesting that funds be alloted for a bike path across Richardson Bridge. Completion of the widening project is not scheduled until late December, I have been informed, so there is still time. So much better to have it done now, rather than have the highway torn up later and tie up traffic for another six months.

Call For Educational Reform Hits California

By EARL G. WATERS

A most enlightening objective and surprising report on education has just been released by President Nixon's Commission on School Finance.

It is surprising because of the number of professional educators who served on the commission. At least 14 of the 18 members are directly connected with education and seven are from the ranks of public education, two from California.

Although the commission was assigned to study the finance problems of education, it titled its report "The Need for Educational Reform."

THE REPORT is of great significance to California and is extremely timely. For, this state is caught in the throes of financial disaster with respect to its public educational programs. So confused have the educational problems become that the Legislature has seemingly become helpless in finding solutions.

Caught between court decisions, demands of the school administrators, and angry reactions of the taxpayers, the lawmakers have thrown up their hands after more than 18 months of debate and gone home to consult with their constituents.

Its most significant finding is that "class size has an important or even a measurable effect on educationl quality cannot presently be supported by evidence."

What this means to the layman is that the taxpayers have been misled for years by school administrators clamoring for more and more funds to hire more and more teachers to reduce class uizes.

THE REPORT further suggests taxpayers have been forking out ever-increasing amounts to the public schools without ever questioning the results. "We have been concentrating for too long on the resources going into the schools," the report states, "giving only minimal attention to the outcomes."

"Public functions, such as education, health, welfare, environmental control, transportation, and public safety are placing increasing demands on the public treasuries. Education therefore can only seek to share in the total funds which become available for all purposes. If education is to compete successfully with these other functions, its proponents must be able to demonstrate that whatever funds are provided are achieving desired results."

In a blow to the professional image that educators like to project, the report leveled at both teacher and administrator incompetence. "Educators," it read, "are expected to perform functions which impart to students the knowledge of basic skills such as reading, writing and arithmetic, and they can, and should, be held accountable for their ability to teach those skills."

"WE RECOMMEND that states reexamine their policies and procedures regarding the selection, education and certification of persons in the education professions with the objective of encouraging entry into the professions of those people who are uniquely qualified to teach or administer schools and school districts."

It also recommended weeding out the incompetents by "the development of appropriate plans for dealing with the problems of less able teachers" and suggested, among other things, early retirement.

Probably its most important recommendation affecting property owners, who have historically footed the public school bill, is that state governments should assume responsibility for financing "substantially all of the non-federal outlays or elementary and secondary education, with local supplements. . . not to exceed 10 per cent of the state allocations."

Waldheim, At Peking's Bidding, Makes Formosa A Non-Country

(Reprinted from the Christian Science Monitor)

It is right and proper that United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim should visit Peking. His journey there is the last of a series of visits he is making to the capitals of the five permanent members of the Security Council.

But the price he has apparently had to pay for getting an invitation to the People's Republic of China is too high.

China originally opposed the choice of Mr. Waldheim as U Thant's successor. Whether or not because of this, the new secretary-general has been carefully nurturing his relations with Peking ever since he took office last January.

AS A FIRST concession he endorsed U Thant's expulsion from the UN of two correspondents of the Nationalist Chinese news agency, ignoring the vigorous protests of the UN press corps.

Then, in a more sweeping concession on the eve of his trip to Peking, Mr. Waldheim ordered the elimination of all reference to Taiwan from UN documents and publications. Even such standard reference works as the UN statistical yearbook will in future contain no mention of Nationalist China. In the years when Peking was excluded from the UN, the year book published what date it could about Communist China. Now it will deliberately ignore the existence of an independent country of 14 million people whose industrial growth rate in recent years has been second in Asia only to that of Japan. Does this mean that Mr. Waldheim has accepted the Communist argument that Taiwan is an integral part of China?

THE CROWNING TOUCH of absurdity is the removal from the walls of UN headquarters of a plaque recording that the "Republic of China" was the donor of a marble tablet engraved with sayings of Confucius.

We deplored the explusion of the two Chinese newsmen at the time. We considered that they had every right to be present at the UN as representatives of the world's press. The latest measures taken at Peking's bidding are both petty and unrealistic.

Nixon Backers See Schmitz As Threat In California Vote

SAN FRANCISCO — With overconfidence a dire threat, the Nixon people are looking anxiously at their candidate's own home state. Seasoned Republicans long familiar with the crosscurrents in this great mixing bowl of an empire are fearful the Democrats will carry California in November.

The reason is not the pull of the McGovern-Shriver ticket. It is the menace of a third party on the far right with a candidate made to fill the bill of the rightists in Southern California. John G. Schmitz, the lame-duck congressman from President Nixon's own congressional district in Orange County, was nominated as the presidential candidate of the American Independent Party in convention assembled in Louisville.

Veterans of the scrambled Republican politics of California believe Schmitz will poll 400,000 votes on the American Independent line. That may be enough to tip the balance for the Democrats and put the state with its 45 electoral votes in the Democratic column.

THE REASONING is as follows: Right-wing Republicans, going to the polls in November supremely confident Nixon is going to win, will decide to register a protest vote. Schmitz is their man.

Somewhat to the right of Louis XIV, he listed membership in the John Birch Society among his other accomplishments when he was elected to Congress in 1970. He is for abolishing the Federal Reserve Board, returning to the gold standard, and in almost every other respect repealing the 20th century. As for the President's consorting with Moscow and Peking, that is unholy converse with America's enemies.

In short, he makes Gov. George Wallace look a bit dangerous with a populist-liberal taint. When Wallace formally declined to run, giving as his reason the need to recover from the wound he received at the hands of Arthur Bremer at a political rally in Maryland, the curious collection of malcontents and doctrinaire dissenters in Louisville turned to Schmitz, who was defeated in his own Republican primary.

He is no untutored rabble rouser. An instructor in philosophy, history and political science at Santa Ana College, he was elected to the California State Senate in 1964 at the age of 34. He served as a Marine Corps jet fighter and helicopter pilot from 1952 to 1960. Currently he is a lieutenant colonel in the Marine Corps Reserve.

IN GOLDWATER country, which embraces a good part of Southern California, there are a lot of people who share the Schmitz creed. Convinced that any measure of control over private ownership of guns is a step to turn the country over to the Communists, they barricade themselves in their own homes with an arsenal of weapons. Even the Saturday-night specials, the $15 handguns such as assassins so freely use, are sacrosanct. For them, it is hardly necessary to add, Sen. George McGovern is a dangerous radical. But their prejudices are likely to override any random thought that a protest vote could help to put McGovern in the White House.

What happened to Richard Nixon when he ran for governor of California in 1962 is the precedent that scares thoughtful Republicans who had a part in that campaign. Nixon lost by something more than 200,000 votes to the Democratic incumbent, Edmund G. (Pat) Brown. Right-wing republicans did not vote for Brown; they stayed home. That cost Nixon the election in the view of those who carefully analyzed the returns.

THE SAME overconfidence can work on the other side of the continent in New York with a similar threat from a third party. Sober observers believe that 200,000 votes cast on the Conservative party line is not impossible. It could swing the state for the Democrats.

The Conservatives in New York have a senator, James L. Buckley, who consistently votes with the Republicans and lists himself as Conservative-Republican. But will he campaign for President Nixon's re-election rather than the nominee of his own party? This will take some pondering, since Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, who stoutly opposed Buckley two years ago, will be directing the Nixon campaign in New York state.

Third parties figure not at all in most states in contrast to New York and California where the choice on the ballot is between the right, the Nixon center, and the McGovern left. But the rightists can stay home on election day and that could prove as decisive as a choice in the polling booth.

Forests Not Just Beautiful; They're Also Air Conditioners

A forest is a more efficient air conditioner than any gadget man has devised.

If you've never thought of a forest in this light, consider these facts, attested by professional foresters:

One acre of healthy young trees will consume 12 tons of carbon dioxide and give off four tons of fresh oxygen a year.

This is the most important kind of air conditioning there is. In fact, it is essential to the survival of all human beings and animals. We need oxygen to live. And with each breath we draw, we remove some of the oxygen in the air and replace it with carbon dioxide. Obviously, if this process continued without any offset, we'd rather quickly exhaust the oxygen in the atmosphere.

BUT THANKS be to God (or nature or chance or whatever explanation you prefer), plants use the air in a manner exactly the reverse of the way animals use it. They inhale carbon dioxide and exhale oxygen. So all forms of plant life —and especially the forests —are continually engaged in what is from our viewpoint a cleansing and renewal of the air.

In contemporary usage, "air conditioning" means not only cleansing but also cooling. And forests are extremely efficient at that, too. If you've ever walked in a forest on a hot summer day, you must have noticed how much cooler it is in there than it is out in the open. You may have thought that this was simply the result of being in the shade instead of in the sun. But there's lots more to it than that.

A tree continually carries on a process called transpiration, in which moisture evaporates through its leaves or needles. Evaporation, as you remember from high school physics, results in cooling.

FOREST SCIENTISTS have calculated that the net cooling effect of one healthy young tree is equivalent to that of 10 roomsized air conditioning machines.

It is not uncommon for the temperature under a tall canopy of trees to be 20 degrees lower than a thermometer reading taken in the open in the same general area at the same time.

If there is a moral to this dissertation, it is that trees not only are beautiful, they also are useful. Indeed, we literally couldn't live without them. This fact would seem to override all other "practical considerations" —even our great and growing need for timber in home construction —in all national decisions about conservation of our forests.

Utility Managers Feel Barbs Of 'Population Control' Groups

Individuals and groups seeking to curtail growth by limiting expansion of water and sewage services apparently are getting under the skin of utility managers.

Eugene S. Churchill, manager of the North Marin County Water District, who has managed generally to keep cool through wet and dry, sounded a note of resentment against such actions in his letter of resignation last week.

Churchill, who resigned effective Nov. 15 for a job with the World Health Organization, said:

"MY CONCERNS and frustrations over doing an adequate job for the district have recently grown due to the increasing pressures of certain groups to stop all community growth with the leverage of a lack of proper water supply and sewage disposal facilities.

"I firmly believe that it is illogical and against the best public interests to delay, complicate and compound costs of needed public service projects. . .as this drains off available money resources that are badly needed to correct present environment deterioration problems."

Churchill isn't likely to face that problem, since he has a choice of three jobs with the World Health Organization, and two are in areas seeking to organize national water and sewage agencies, not curtail activities.

IN THE NOVATO Sanitary District, Mgr. Charles A. Joseph has been more outspoken against those who would take what he called the "back door" approach to curtailing growth.

Persons who believe they can curtail population growth by controlling utility service apparently lack "an understanding of the basic planning and economics of most utilities," Joseph said before the Novato City Council last week.

Utilities plan "on an area of service," and providing a small sized facility wouldn't necessarily provide "control for a particular development in that area," Joseph said, "One parcel could use the full capacity of the smaller facility."

ABOUT 160 YOUTHS from Marin had a bonus adventure last week at the San Francisco Boys Club camp between Willits and Fort Bragg when they were nearly marooned by a severe rainstorm.

With the road so bad, buses couldn't take them out on their way home after a two-week stay. Lester Anderson, executive director of the San Francisco club chartered three railroad passenger cars, which were hooked on the end of a freight train to Willits.

Anxious parents who had expected the boys home at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday were notified and the boys arrived back at about 2 a.m. Thursday.

Four parents had an anxious moment when they couldn't locate their children among the debarking passengers. They were asleep in the bus.

ART BUCHWALD

Breathless Play-By-Play Of GOP Convention Race

MIAMI BEACH — "Ladies and gentlemen, from our booth high above the Miami Convention Center we bring you the Republican TV Roller Derby. The first event is about to start, featuring the derby teams of NBC, CBS, ABC and PBS floor correspondents. The object of this race is for the news teams to get from one side of the convention floor to the other with their microphones in order to interview Tricia Nixon Cox in the presidential box. The first one who gets there and manages to stick a mike up to Tricia's face wins the race.

"The correspondents line up at the starting line. The gavel goes down and they're off! Douglas Kiker of NBC is in the lead, Dan Rather of CBS is pulling up on the side, Herb Kaplow of ABC has just elbowed NBC's Garrick Utley in the kidney.

"CASSIE MACKIN of NBC has leaped over three chairs, and now she is out in front. Wait a minute. Kiker has tripped, and Roger Mudd of CBS has tripped over Kiker. Frank Reynolds, the ABC sprinter, has just grabbed Cassie Mackin by the leg, and she has been slowed down.

"Mike Wallace of CBS is making his move now by cutting through the North Dakota delegation — actually he's crawling across their laps. But he's been stopped. Someone is asking for his autograph.

"Tom Pettit of NBC has suddenly appeared out of nowhere. Pettit is only 50 yards from Tricia. Hold it! Sander Vanocur of Public Broadcasting is holding on to Pettit's throat. They've disappeared underneath the Alaska delegation chairs.

"Kiker and Mudd are both up again, and they are now neck and neck, not more than 35 yards from the finish line. Kiker has just thrown his mike wire around Mudd's neck, and Mudd is strangling. But wait! John Hart, the CBS man, has kicked Kiker in the shins. Kiker is down on his knees. Mudd is untangling the wire from around his neck. I don't see Cassie Mackin. There she is, struggling through the Wisconsin delegation! Her cameraman is now lifting her over to the Minnesota delegation. She can't be more than 25 yards from Tricia.

"Sam Donaldson of ABC has pushed Cassie back to Wisconsin. She has lost her balance and is falling into the laps of the Puerto Rico delegation.

"DAN RATHER has taken over the lead. No, Garrick Utley has just stabbed Rather in the thigh with his portable head antenna, and Rather is receiving first aid. Utley is now in front.

"Something's happening now! I can't make it out. The ABC team is being called off the floor! Yes, ladies and gentlemen, the ABC team is being called off the floor. We have just received word that ABC, who covered the convention for 12 minutes, is now going back to local programming.

"It now seems to be a race between NBC and CBS. Vanocur and MacNeil of Public Broadcasting have just been sent to the penalty box by the White House television adviser and have been told to stay there.

"Tom Pettit has overtaken Utley, but John Hart has bodychecked him and Pettit is sailing across the floor into Bebe Rebozo's arms.

"Mike Wallace is two yards from Tricia, Doug Kiker has just slipped under Wallace's legs and is a yard away. Wait a minute, Cassie Mackin is coming in on Kiker's blind side. Ohhh, she sent Kiker flying into the podium! Roger Mudd has now got his mike a foot away from Tricia's mouth. He gets a karate chop on the arm from Tom Pettit. Mudd has dropped his mike.

"JOHN HART hands Mudd his mike. Garrick Utley shoves his mike over Mudd's head. Tricia has two TV microphones at her throat and two others at her ears.

"Tricia, what do you think of the convention?"

"Oh, I think it's just hunkydory."

"Thank you, Tricia, and now back to Walter, John and David in the booths."

NEW CITIZENS

Visit Turns Out To Be Permanent Thing

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Felix of Tamalpais Valley were moving from Belgium to New Zealand when they stopped in the United States to visit.

That was eight years ago and they never left. They were among 12 Marin residents who became naturalized U.S. citizens in July.

The Felix family is very international. Felix hails from New Zealand, his wife from England. Their son, Mark, 10, was born in England, their daughter Yolanda, 15, in Canada and their other daughters, Tess, 14, and Anne, 8, in San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Felix met in England where she was a hairdresser. She styled his mother's hair and was invited to their house for dinner. That started a courtship which resulted in marriage.

The Felixes live at 451 Marin Drive. Felix commutes to San Francisco where he is an advertising artist.

Other Marin residents naturalized last month were:

SAN RAFAEL — Christian Paul Frederiksen of 26 Convent Court; Wilhelmina Adams McKay Fleming Van Der Biesen of 136 San Marino Drive.

The Brown Pelican On The Increase

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The endangered California Brown Pelican, whose reproduction has been curtailed by pesticides and other pollutants, produced substantially larger numbers of young birds this year than last, it was reported yesterday.

The Department of Fish and Game announced that the state's only nesting colony of the birds in the Santa Barbara Channel Islands had hatched 57 young this year compared to seven for 1971. One bird was hatched in 1970.

Earlier this year the department had declared that the colony was "incapable of reproducing." Six hundred nesting attempts were counted in 1971 but only seven birds were produced.

The department said that a survey last week of west Anacapa Island showed 150 nests and 26 young. Another 112 nests and 31 nestlings were counted on a small island off the Santa Cruz Island, six miles west of Anacapa.

The agency reported however, that it discovered indications of "substantial nesting failure" —seven nests with addled eggs or ones with broken or thin shells.

Tests were being conducted on the eggs to determine "the relation of pesticides to reproductive distress in birds nesting in the colony."

A June survey of the coast from San Diego to Ft. Bragg counted 2,500 pelicans with 700 on Anacapa. Another check later that month showed 1,800 of the big-beaked birds on Anacapa and Santa Cruz.

CAMPAIGN HEAD — Walter Zurcher, owner of the San Rafael Toy Shop, has been appointed to head the Marin campaign of the United Bay Area Crusade, according to Galen Foster, crusade chairman. Zurcher will also handle the publicity for the campaign.

Fired Trainer Takes Tiger Cub

Boyd was an animal handler with the Ringling Brothers Barnum and Bailey Circus until he was fired Friday. He was accused of stealing a Siberian tiger cub on his way out, filching the 11-week-old cub, worth $1,500, from the side of its sleeping mother.

Boyd was arrested during the weekend at an apartment, where he was allegedly keeping the cub. He was charged with burglary.

Parking Lot To Remain Bargain

Tiburon's bargain parking lot will remain a bargain — at least for the next few months — the Tiburon City Council ruled last night.

The lot at 1691 Tiburon Boulevard costs 25 cents per 12 hours weekdays, or $5 a month. It is operated by the Metropolitan Parking Corp. of San Francisco on land owned by the Northwestern Pacific Railroad.

In 1968 the railroad was granted a temporary use permit which must be renewed every year by the city.

Planning Director Richard G. Arjo said this year the parking operator had finally met most of the conditions attached to leasing the land. These included maintaining landscaping around the lot, spending $1,000 annually on resurfacing, and repairing damaged fencing.

Despite pleas by a railroad representative that the cost of doing business had gone up in four years, and that nearby lots charged 50 cents, the council refused to approve a 10-cent an hour rate hike.

Mayor Albert H. Sennett said that Tiburon would eventually have its own parking district to coordinate and manage parking in the city.

In the meantime, he said, "We want to discourage it (the parking lot) from achieving any sense of permanency."

Sennett said the railroad could reapply for a higher rate at a later time.

The council last night held off final action on a cluster housing project the planning commission had approved with enthusiasm in July.

By a 4-1 vote, with Councilman M. Carlisle Becker dissenting, the council approved first reading of an ordinance permitting rezoning of a 3.7-acre parcel of land on Round Hill Road from RO-2 to RO-2-C.

The rezoning would allow Tiburon resident Leo Bodian to go ahead with plans to develop a cluster of eight single-family dwellings on one portion of the property.

Mrs. Bodian said the project, designed by architect Raphael S. Soriano, would preserve the site's 50 mature oak trees and save the creek which runs through the property.

The cluster proposal would use a smaller portion of the total site than a conventional subdivision, she said.

Vice Mayor Allan N. Littman said the council wanted more time to study the site and its relation to nearby developments.

"We don't want to allow cluster zoning to increase density over conventional zoning," he said.

The Tiburon City Council Also:

TRIBUTE — Read resolutions of appreciation and presented plaques to former planning commissioners Victor C. Banks, Peter Macgowan, and Allan Thompson, and former parks and recreation commissioner Donald K. Loomis for their "valuable public service."

ZONING — Passed the first reading of an ordinance to modify regulations for the R-3 (multiple residential) zone. The amendment increases minimum parcel size from 6,000 square feet to 10,000 square feet, reduces maximum building coverage from 35 to 30 per cent, limits the ratio of total floor area to 75 per cent of the lot area, and adds requirements for usable open space.

OPEN SPACE — Deferred action on an offer by Kenneth Frankel to sell the city eight lots for open space since they were not in a "high priority" area.

BAY PLAN — Held off approval of a contract agreement between Tiburon and landscape architects Sasaki, Walker Associates, Inc. of Sausalito for preparation of the Richardson Bay Lineal Park Master Plan. Gary Gray, parks and recreation commissioner, told the council the contract should be more explicit about a timetable and certain fees. Language will be added to contract.

PARKING — Established no-parking areas on Lyford Drive near Davis Drive, and on Tiburon Boulevard, west of Beach Road.

NO HELP AT ALL

A fireman gains the high ground as he aims a water cannon into the "heart of the enemy" as a cannon and truck stand at the ready mark on the perimeter of the Jack Frost War Surplus Store in West Los Angeles. The outside armament did little good yesterday as the "enemy" — in form of the fire — worked from within and the store was a total loss. No estimate of the damage has been made as yet.

First Balloon Trip Over Swiss Alps

BIELLA, Italy (UPI)—Marc Yarry and Donald Cameron flew from Zermatt, Switzerland, to this Italian town Monday in the first flight in a hot air balloon over the Alps.

Yarry, 32, from New York, and Cameron, 33, from Brookward, England, said they flew as high as 17,000 feet to get over Monte Rosa peak, Switzerland's highest mountain.

Belvedere's Worry: Substandard Building

Belvedere city councilmen agreed last night they must "bite the bullet," as one councilman said, and make their own decision on what to do about more than 100 substandard building lots in the city.

The council met jointly with the Belvedere Planning Commission for almost three hours. It was mostly a rehash of previous debate on the lots, during commission hearings on the Belvedere planning study prepared by consultants Livingston and Blayney.

The concultants urged restricting future growth of the island city by imposing stiff variance requirements to build on any substandard lot. Many of the lots were recorded years before the city placed a 7,500-square-foot minimum lot size on the lowlands and lagoon area and a 15,000-square-foot minimum on the slopes of the island.

Most controversy centered on so-called "contiguous substandard" lots adjoining developed property owned by the same person.

Consultant Lawrence S. Livingston Jr. and the planning commission had recommended against allowing new construction on such lots.

Property owners and their attorneys filled the council chamber last night, to present widely differing views on whether building should be restricted.

There was not even agreement on how many lots were involved, although the most official estimate was 137 parcels.

Several property owners protested they had paid taxes on their property for many years, and should not be prohibited from development because the city minimums had changed since the lots first were recorded.

The 'financial hardship" of not being able to build on a substandard lot next to a residence owned by the same person "definitely is not" proper grounds for a variance, Livingston replied.

"I think we ought to say, 'no, period, no,'" to all variance requests, argued planning Commission Chairman Leslie W. Graham.

Steinau said the council "accepted the (planning commission) report (on restricting development of the small lots) with disappointment. We had hoped you'd find a solution."

"We've just got to bite the bullet ourselves," declared Councilman Willard G. Pittman.

He also cited stock market fluctuations as a parallel to the value of the substandard lots. There is no guarantee that stocks will not decline, and "if the lots were buildable" when purchased, "that would have been the time to build," he added.

The council adjourned to Sept. 11, after briefly discussing a proposed environmental review board with the planners and Livingston.

Pay Board Faces First Big Protest

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "We are denouncing this for the farce that it is!" yelled one demonstrator as the federal Pay Board faced what chairman George Boldt called its first protest demonstration.

Three persons were booked for investigation of assaulting a guard after a demonstration by some 200 persons at the Federal Building yesterday. They were released on personal recognizance bonds of $5,000 each.

Demonstrators said the board was unfair to labor and asserted that the 13 witnesses called before the hearing were all businessmen and that the meeting was deliberately held during working hours so working persons could not attend.

Boldt, a retired U.S. District Court Judge from Tacoma, Wash., told newsmen only that the protest was the "first incident of any kind that we've had."

"But I don't condemn them," he said. "We live in a free country."

He said the hearing here was to elicit "constructive criticism and suggestions toward perfecting our regulations to insure equity and fairness for all concerned."

"Why don't you go down to the factories?" asked another demonstrator," before he was hustled out.

"I think they should be heard," said a woman. She, too, was shown the door.

Later, two demonstrators were allowed to address the board.

The bride's sister, Joni Eisenhauer of Novato was her maid of honor. The other bridal attendants were Susan Eisenhauer of Fairfax, Va., Diana Reinsch of Davis, Mrs. Gregory Smith of Novato, and Mrs. George Farley of Davis, the bride groom's sister.

Ross Merkel of Galt was the best man. Assisting wedding guests to their places were Jeffrey Eisenhauer of Novato, the bride's brother, George Farley of Davis (the bridegroom's brother-in-law) Henry Hicks of Novato and Chris Halter of Millbrae.

Both Marcy and Robert are graduates of Novato High School. The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of California at Davis, and the bride has been attending UC Davis for three years and will continue her studies at the University of California at Irvine. The newlyweds will live in Irvine.

A PEDIATRIC HOUSE officer, the baby's exclusively assigned nurse and another nurse to help adjust equipment, care for a critically ill baby in a radiant warmer, as electronic monitoring equipment monitors his life signs at the University of California, San Francisco's newborn intensive care center. The new methods have cut infant death nearly 75 per cent in the last four years.

Infant Mortality Rate Down 75% In Four Years

By PAT BALMES

The newborn survival rate and, more important, the quality of those survivors is improving greatly at University of California, San Francisco's newborn intensive care center.

Using new techniques, U.C. has cut its infant death rate almost 75 per cent in the last four years, according to the center's director Dr. Roderic Phibbs of Mill Valley.

Local hospitals such as Marin General send their sickest premature and term newborns to newborn intensive care centers such as U.C.'s.

"The best transportation is in the uterus. If we can get the high-risk mothers moved to us before delivery, we can do better with their babies born in our hospital," said Dr. Phibbs.

"WE WAIT with a whole team of people. We can begin monitoring and treatment of a really sick baby 30 seconds after birth, and sometimes before birth to abort a process or modify it," he said. Equipment from the adjoining center can be wheeled right up to the delivery table.

Dr. Phibbs, an associate professor of pediatrics, was interviewed at his Mill Valley home where he lives with his wife and four sons. Two of his boys were born with hyaline membrane disease, a major killer and producer of handicaps in the newborn.

Not a rare disease but a common one, it is one of the most important medical problems in the United States. The stiff, immature lungs tend to collapse and the baby can't get his breath, Dr. Phibbs said.

ANESTHESIOLOGIST Dr. George Gregory of Larkspur, working with the center's staff, invented a new system of treating hyaline membrane disease called "Continuous Positive Airway Pressure" which keeps a small constant pressure on the lungs, allowing the baby to breath on his own. Perfected three years ago, it is now used throughout the country.

Now the survival rate among hyaline membrane babies born at UC is 90 per cent and 75 to 80 per cent of babies transferred there. Published nationwide statistics are only 40 to 50 per cent survival.

Emphasizing that U.C.'s center is reducing handicaps as well as the death rate, Dr. Phibbs cited a State Department of Public Health supported follow-up study on 200 sick newborns from all over the Bay Area who were treated at U.C. over the last six years.

"RIGHT NOW we should be seeing many more bad handicaps developing than there are," he said. Compared with statistics of 10 years ago, these children have only one third as much mental retardation and one fifth as much cerebral palsy.

"We must have a bigger impact on reducing handicaps than on increasing survivors. We are coming very close to a very tough ethical question — At some point the quality of life is not worth saving," he said.

Hopeful for those parents who only have one or two chances of getting alive baby, he said that the vast majority of three pound premature babies are now being saved with no mental retardation. Intra-uterine transfusion babies now being followed in studies average IQs of 110; with some up to 130.

WHAT WE could do for premature babies before 1956 was relatively little. We did not understand what the life and brain-threatening problems were. In the last seven or eight years there has been an explosion of knowledge in this field. Now we have tools to make some differences.

You began to do more to premature babies — measure respiratory and circulatory systems. When we measured blood pressure we found babies in shock, so we started treating them for shock. You started treating things you did not know were there until you did the research and made the measurements, he said.

The big change coming is that neonatologists are doing more for the fetus than for the new born. Now they can follow the fetus heart beat and measure the chemistry of the blood.

NOW THEY can tell most of the time if the baby is going to have hyaline membrane disease by testing the amniotic fluid. Results fall into three categories. Expectant mothers who test in the worst category should deliver in a hospital with a newborn intensive care unit," Dr. Phibbs said.

"In the future when we find a fetus with immature lungs, we hope to be able to treat the mother with hormones so her fetus' lungs will mature and when he is born he won't have hyaline membrane," he said, but research on this treatment is still incomplete.

"U.C.'s center is staffed by people who care intensively. And for one or two of us that's a full time job. We are always running over the Golden Gate Bridge at 2 a.m. The demands on your time are totally unpredictable. You are always at 75 or 150 per cent of capacity," he said.

"TO OPERATE a full-scale maximum intensive care program for newborns, a unit must have a population with 4 to 5,000 deliveries a year. High risk mothers should be delivered there, while moderate or low risk mothers should be delivered in community hospitals.

"Even community hospital delivery services must combine into fewer, larger units so that they can provide temporary maximum care for the unexpected delivery of a critical infant and intermediate care of moderately sick babies," he said.

The center's three open rooms can accommodate five maximum-care babies each requiring a specially trained nurse, 10 interim-care babies who need a nurse for every two of them, and nine recovery babies who can be cared for by three nurses.

The maximum care baby costs $240 a day and requires $6000 worth of monitoring equipment.

The well and sick infant nurseries' staff consists of two pediatric residents, three pediatric interns and three technicians exclusively assigned there. Five faculty members and specially trained nurses also work there.

"One of those interns, if he ever gets to sleep, sleeps in the small room next to the sickest baby," Dr. Phibbs said.

Dr. Phibbs is assisted by Dr. Gregory, Mill Valley pediatrician Dr. Joe Kitterman and the center's founder, Dr. William Tooley of San Francisco.

THEY DO regionalized training in the Bay Area, giving 30 to 40 lectures a year to pediatricians groups and they train nurses for hospitals who will care for moderately sick newborns in their hospitals and send the most difficult to special centers such as U.C.'s.

Asked why the United States ranked 14th in the world in 1969 in neonatal deaths, Dr. Phibbs said that good obstetrical and neonatal care are not readily available throughout the United States.

The countries with the best survival rates such as Sweden, Norway and Denmark, do not have as many sick newborns. They have a better cared-for and nourished population. They do not have large poverty populations which always have a much higher neonatal death rate, he explained.

HE ALSO commented that different systems of reporting, such as calling newborn deaths "abortions or stillbirths," can distort figures.

Other parts of this country need more newborn intensive care centers, but not the Bay Area which has several very good intensive care nurseries, he said.

Such care is incredibly expensive. Much of it is not covered by insurance policies which disenfranchise the newborn, Dr. Phibbs said, mentioning a bill before the state legislature which would make the sale of such policies illegal.

Mrs. Abbott To Preside Over Two Organizations

A busy year lies ahead for Mrs. Robert Lynn Abbott of Belvedere who will be president of two organizations.

Her interest in community service is reflected by her leadership of the Driftwood Unit of the Marin Foundation. The Marin Foundation, formerly the Friends of Arequipa, provides a group home for adolescents, whose family problems make it impossible for them to stay in their own homes or adjust successfully to placement in a foster home. In September the residents will move from an apartment to a home in Larkspur, where they will have more space and a yard and garden. The Driftwood Unit assists with fund-raising for the home. The annual Christmas card sale has already begun and plans are in the works for a fizz party to be given at 11 a.m. Sept. 15 at the home of Mrs. Richard McConnell in Tiburon.

Marialyce Abbott is also interested in the theater, and will assume the presidency of the Masque Unit. The Unit presents a play for children as part of the Junior Theatre of Marin winter season program, and in conjunction with the Youth in Arts Program. "The Wicked Witch of Endor" has been selected for presentation at the Marin Veterans Memorial Theater next March.

She has been active with both groups for three years. She has been hospitality chairman for the Driftwood Unit and vice president of the Masque Unit.

She is a past president of the Marin County Alumnae chapter of Delta Gamma, and a member of the Belvedere Sailing Society and the Tiburon Peninsula Club.

Mrs. Abbott is a native of Bismarck, N.D., and grew up in South Dakota. She received the bachelor degree from Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill. She also studied at Yankton College, S.D., the American Theater Wing, New York City, and California Institute of Fine Arts in San Francisco.

MRS. ROBERT L. ABBOTT
Elected twice

She is married to Robert Lynn Abbott, a real estate developer. They have lived in Marin County for seven years. They have two daughters, Tara, 10, and Kia, 6, and a son, Tane, 9.

The double president will have help with both organizations. Members of the incoming board of the Driftwood Unit are the Mmes. Joseph Veit, vice president; Mark Noble Jr., recording secretary; Harvey Rogers, corresponding secretary, and Benjamin Okulski, treasurer.

Officers of the Masque Unit are the Mmes. Gordon Dunn, vice president; Robert B. Rorick, secretary, and Kenneth A. Hulme, treasurer.

Hair Styles

Gone from the style scene is straight hair, hanging limp and lifeless. New on the fashion horizon are hair styles with body and shape. Curved curl and curly curl are the newest hair shapes, given body by permanent waves.

Controversial Proposal Would Hurt Consumers

By ROBERT P. HEY

The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Labels — that tell plainly, not in code, the date meat is packaged ("Open dating").

These are among a host of proconsumer proposals concerning meat and meat products that have been introduced into state legislatures in recent months. In a few areas some proposals have become law; in the vast majority they have not, but consumer advocates vow to keep the pressure on.

YET IF an almost unnoticed bill now on the verge of congressional passage becomes law, all the consumer pressure in the world can't help. The proposal now awaiting action by the full House of Representatives effectively would prevent states from requiring stiffer labeling, marking, and packaging laws for meat and meat products than the federal government now does.

The controversial provision is part of a bill to amend the Wholesome Meat Act, originally passed into law in 1967. This year's bill already has passed the Senate, although it then did not contain the anti-consumer provision.

However, if it passes the House in present form, as is expected, it will go to a Senate-House conference where the controversial provision is almost sure to be accepted in the final version of the bill.

In its present form this section of the bill says that the Secretary of Agriculture "shall withhold funds" with which the United States ordinarily would reimburse states for meat inspection, from any state with requirements different from the federal government's for the "marketing, labeling, or packaging of federally inspected carcasses, parcels, meat, or meat food products."

A SHOPPER ponders her selection of meat at the supermarket while Congress ponders whether to prevent the states from requiring stiffer meat labeling and packaging standards than the federal government does.

SOME CONSUMER advocates here are deeply concerned. In the first place, they say, stiffer laws governing meat packaging are necessary to provide consumers with information they really need. They hold that federal laws are insufficient. Specifically they mention the need for open dating of meats and unit pricing. (However, some firms voluntarily do provide unit pricing.)

These consumer sources say specifically that passage of the bill would negate the present stronger meat-packaging laws in Michigan and the state of Washington. Last month a consumer-oriented delegation from Michigan came to Captiol Hill to lobby against this providion on just these grounds.

More important, charge some consumer sources, the controversial section of this bill would slam the door on states at the very time they are considering stepping into the area of proconsumer meat-packing laws. They see this congressional action as stemming from the reaction of some members of Congress from meat-producing and packaging areas to the concern shown by the meat-producing industry over the prospects of state packaging laws.

However, there are some consumer interests here in Washington who view the burgeoning controversy as merely academic. Says one consumer source bluntly: "Virtually all of the states have lousy programs" in the consumer-packaging area.

He says that in a few states better programs than the federal government's exist "on the books" but they're "not enforced." As to the future, he isn't hopeful: "The states generally react to the producer and the distributor, rather than consumer interests."

You may be right, say his consumer colleagues who nonetheless differ with the assessment. But they don't like at all the prospect of consumer interests being prevented from achieving state action, without being able to have their views judged on their merits.

Advice To Girl With Two Dates - Wait And See Which Is Which

DEAR RAP:

When a guy treats you like his kid sister, you really work to make him fall. I thought I was really in love with Gar so I asked him to our homecoming dance this November. I was real surprised when he said "Okay."

It's the biggest dance of the year outside of the senior prom and I wouldn't feel right unless I went with someone I truly loved.

Well, now I've discovered I only "like" Gar — well enough to be friends but not like I LOVE Tony, who came into my life two weeks ago.

Last night Tony asked me to the homecoming ball. He's the one I want to go with so I didn't tell him about my date with Gar. Instead I put him off with "Let's wait a month and see if we still feel like this about each other." I should have been truthful, 'cuz now I'm in a mess. Whichever boy I go with the other will be mad. I don't want to hurt Gar (whom I've known for five years) but if I lose Tony, I'll DIE.

Should I tell them both I've sworn off dancing or something? — THREE MONTHS TILL HOMECOMING

DEAR TMTH:

If you're just a "kid sister" to Gar, don't you suppose he'll understand? A Homecoming Dance is very special and a girl should share it with the guy in her life, not the former guy in her life.

Wait a month and see which is which — SUE

DEAR TMTH:

. . . And don't be surprised if it's neither!

The moral of your letter is: girl with changeable heart should not plan three and one-half months ahead. — HELEN.

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

My mother had this wild crush on Tom Jones and when my grandmother teased her about it she laughed and said, "Remember how you mooned over Liberace — and he was 15 years younger than you!"

Anyway, I thought it was ridiculous, going crackers over TV stars. And then, Donny Osmond came along, and I guess it runs in families.

My father calls me wacky. My brother-in-law asks "Who's that good looking girl?" when he sees Donny's picture on my bulletin board. My mother says I'm "moony," and I don't dare remind her of Tom Jones.

My sister sympathizes but she says I'll never get to meet him so why bother? No one seems to realize I'm in love and you can't turn that off just by being practical. Besides I'm not lonely when I'm thinking of him.

I write his name all over my books and I've even carved it in a tree, along with mine. I'm jealous when I see him smiling at someone else (on TV). When other boys are stupid and childish, I pretend I'm talking to Donny and he understands and always says the right thing.

Am I crazy? If there's no hope (is there, just a little?) then will I ever get over it? — DONNY FOREVER

DEAR D.F.:

No, you're not crazy and, yes, you'll get over this crush. But meanwhile, it's helping you through what may be a rough time in your life. When a girl is vaguely lonely and not quite ready for real boys, it's comforting to have a "hero" who always says the right things, never makes her feel awkward or dumb, and will be "Donny on the spot," whenever her imagination calls him.

The world would be a sad place for young teenagers (and older people, too) if they could never daydream.

When will you outgrow Donny? — When a real Johnny, Pete, Dick, Tommy comes along. You'll see. — HELEN AND SUE

The Differing Views On Twins

The phenomenon of twins, which occurs a little more than three times in each 1,000 births, was looked upon differently in every culture. According to Greek legend, twins were magic or gods of healing. Castor and Pollux became the Gemini or twin constellation.

Other cultures considered twins a threat. A curse of disease was responsible, they believed, for this strange occurance and one twin was sacrificed. Some tribes of American Indians put all second-born twins to death, believing that these unusual creatures were not real people but instead, carriers of bad fortune and ill luck.

Still other Indian nations thought of Iwins as favored children, capable of supernatural acts. If the children were not pleased here, according to these tribes, they'd simply leave the earth the return to the heavens. To insure their favor, the Indians set twins apart, insisting that they dress alike in bright, colorful clothing. They were afforded very special care.

Bad Ceramics Can Produce Poison Food

There has been considerable concern in recent months about the risk of lead poisoning from eating food prepared in or served from improperly processed ceramic tableware.

The hazard is present when food acids react with the glass coating or glaze used on tableware. This glaze is applied to seal the ceramic surface and make it smooth and easy to clean. If the glaze is finished at too low a temperature in the final stages of the manufacturing process, it is not resistant to acid. The action of the acid in the food to dissolve the lead in the glaze results in a leaching effect, allowing the escaped lead to contaminate the food.

The foods which cannot be safely used in dubious tableware include substances which are sour or tart to the taste, such as vinegar, fruit juice, sauerkraut, soft drinks, tomatoes, etc. The danger of the food being lead-poisoned is increased if you eat these foods repeatedly, since lead can build up in the body. If the food is kept in the ceramic tableware overnight or if it is heated, the danger is further increased.

Symptoms of lead poisoning include cramping pains in the abdomen, constipation, fatigue and nervousness. If these symptoms appear and if you have been using lead or cadmium-glazed vessels, take these to your doctor and request that they and you be tested for lead.

Children Learn, Develop In Foreign Care Centers

By FLORENCE MOUCKLEY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

BOSTON, Mass. — Centers where children can learn and develop, not just a place to park the baby — this is how child day care is evolving in many countries with established public programs.

A Monitor survey of Sweden, the Soviet Union, China, Israel, Britain, France, and Japan shows the trends in day care are toward:

—Developing children's mental capacities.

—The placing of children in day-care centers at age 2 or 3 rather than when they are infants.

—A short day-care day for children if at all possible.

—More specialist training for personnel working directly with youngsters.

—More parental involvement.

In Sweden, the feeling is that the child-care center should have two main functions: It must be an extension of the home where the child receives warm, loving care — and it must be a stimulating place for children to learn through playing.

Sweden, which has one of the most advanced and best systems of child care in the world, is examining every aspect of its program.

SWEDISH JOURNALIST and child-care expert Marrianne Karre, in an article in a booklet entitled "Before School Starts," published by the Swedish Institute, writes that "Materially speaking, the children are very well looked after. Intellectually and emotionally, a great deal more could be done, particularly for the youngest children and those 2 or 3 years. . .

"The idea that day nurseries and nursery schools are needed for the sake of the children themselves, for their development, has begun to gain acceptance only recently — although it has been held by preschool teachers themselves for more than half a century."

Mrs. Karre says that more could be done in other areas. She cites:

—"Shiny new child centers" throughout Sweden, which she feels impose a ready-made environment because they are built according to detailed plans laid down by central authorities. This tends, she asserts, to hamper new educational ideas and new "unforeseen activities."

—The division of children into age groups by government regulation. "The youngest children also have a need to meet older children, and the 3-to-6-year-olds like to help looking after the younger ones; they in their turn need contacts with schoolchildren, teen-agers, and other adults."

—The absence of father figures. More male personnel are needed. According to the Swedish Government this fall 62 men (of 275 applicants) were accepted among the 1,067 students for the two-year training courses for pre-primary school teachers compared with none last year.

—The very limited parent involvement.

FINALLY, MRS. Karre questions: What is the aim of the preschool?

"What sort of people do we really want our preschools to turn out? What does it mean for the preschool child to 'be adjusted to society'?. . .To what society? Today's society? To a utopia of A.D. 2000?"

Monitor special correspondent Francis Ofner reports that in Israel the major problem in urban day-care centers is manpower. The workers are too few and mostly untrained.

"There are some child centers where we must take the cleaning woman to watch the children," says the head of WIZO (Women's International Zionist Organization), Dr. Hanna Gelber. (Day-care centers in Israel are organized and run mostly by two women's organizations: WIZO and the Pioneer Woman. The rest are set up by the Women's National Religious Movement, municipalities, and private persons.)

THE RATIO of teachers or nurses to children is about 1 to 12. Of the total staff, about 71 per cent are either nurses or teachers who come in direct contact with the children. Twenty-nine per cent are household workers.

This is still a far cry from the Ministry of Welfare's regulations, namely that two workers are to be assigned to any group of 10 infants up to the age of 18 months; and two teachers for any group of 25 children at the age of 2 or 3.

The Ministry of Education has recently launched programs aimed at providing more skilled personnel in day-care centers.

As in Sweden, experts in Israel agree that children in centers need a substantial amount of intellectual stimulation as well as skilled handling of their emotional needs. This is why the need for highly trained staff is felt to be so urgent.

In Israel, with immigrants coming from both advanced and underdeveloped countries, day-care centers have also had a hand in bridging the occasionally enormous culture gap.

Dr. Gelber went so far as to declare that "the level of Israeli universities is dependent on the level of the day centers."

How do Israeli parents who send their children to the centers feel about them? As in other countries, there are mixed reactions.

Those who send them of their own accord, rather than out of need, view them as a blessing: "In the center, the child has many other children to play with. There is no need to run around looking for company. I fully recommend the place, both in terms of care and cost. . .," said one mother.

ANOTHER MOTHER: "The care received at the center is much better than the child would ever get from a private child nurse, even if the staff here are to a large extent unskilled."

On the tentative side: "More teachers per child — and better training for the staff —is what I would like to see," pitched in another parent.

"If my wife didn't have to go out and work, I would have preferred for my child to stay home; not because the center is necessarily bad, but it cannot be expected to replace the individual loving care which only a mother can give," said one father.

In China, reports Jonathan Unger, an American mother might well feel almost at home visiting a day-care center. The atmosphere is relaxed. The teachers try to use encouragement, not punishment, as their basic teaching technique, keeping the children happily at work at creative activities —even though the emphasis is on the common good, rather than individual achievement.

In former times, the teachers of even very young children were taskmasters who taught by rote and punishment. The new environment is a dramatic break with 2,000 years of education tradition.

Chinese parents are highly concerned with their children's nursery schools, and Unger says interviews indicated they were quite well informed. They apparently have regular conversations with teachers and, if general Chinese practices prevail, parents are free to make suggestions and criticisms.

PERIODICALLY COMPLAINTS are raised in the Soviet press about the neglect of children in Russian child-care centers, largely because of overcrowded conditions. (Some 9.4 million children receive day care.) But pedagogues claim that — at their best — these centers provide for excellent physical and mental development of children.

After a study in 1969 of 25 nurseries that were conducting a special program of games and lessons, a highly placed educator wrote that the children were "self-reliant, active, and organized. They sleep and eat better," he asserted, "and they have stronger daily hygienic habits than their homegrown counterparts."

Some Soviet parents, especially from the intelligentsia, shun the nurseries, however, charging that they sap a child's individuality and do not provide intellectual challenge for the gifted youngster. Many other parents search far and wide before selecting a nursery school which they fell is up to par.

Some Soviet experts are saying that children should not be placed in child-care centers until they are 2 or 3 years old. (Soviet nurseries accept babies at two months of age.)

According to Dr. Joan Bergstrom, an American child-care expert who has visited facilities in Sweden and the Soviet Union, each kindergarten in the Soviet Union is said to have a parent-education program.

"In Kindergarten 406, Moscow, the teachers work six days a week. Since most of the parents work five days a week, this facilitates parent-teacher meetings.

Conservative, But

Teen-age girls who are a little too conservative to wear wild prints on the outside might consider this: a wild-colored or crazy printed girdle or underpants. Either is bound to bring a howl from the girls in the gym locker rooms.

Sandwiches And Salads At Fair

Everybody's favorites — hot corned beef and pastrami sandwiches, potato salad and strudel — will be served from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. at the Kosher Kitchen booth at the Marin County Fair, from Aug. 31 to Sept. 4.

Ta Mar Chapter B'nai B'rith Women 1130 have chosen this activity as their principal fundraiser of the year. For additional information, contact Mrs. Peter Haas of Novato.

A LIBRARY GOES PLASTIC

Party Boots Film Boss; New Image

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Communist Party fired the chairman of its cinematography committee today and said the Soviet film industry was shirking its ideological role.

One party complaint: not enough devoted Communist heroes on the screen these days, but too many smatterings of Western cinema actions that are "alien" to Socialist realism.

Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper, published a decision by the Central Committee to tighten discipline in the Soviet film world. It also announced that Filipp T. Yermash had replaced Alexei V. Romanov as chairman of the state committee for cinematography.

The Central Committee decision indicated why Romanov lost the job he had held since 1965:

"The committee for cinematography weakly exercised the state supervision of the development of cinema art, did not guarantee a purposeful repertoire policy and did not make proper ideological and artistic demands."

The decision complained that Soviet film makers failed to fully use opportunities "to intensify the international and patriotic upbringing of the working people."

"Some films lack ideological purposefulness," it said. "There is no clear class approach in covering the social phenomena. Instead of truthful showing of life from the position of Lenin... such movies give a superfluous, unilateral and sometimes wrong interpretation of events and facts."

The decision said "there have been attempts at noncritical borrowing of the methods of foreign cinematography which are alien to...Socialist realism." The term "Socialist realism" refers to the Soviet contention that art's chief task is to assist the state in building communism.

"On the screen we rarely see heroes who would attract us by their human charm, their devotion to Communist ideals," the decision said. "At the same time, exaggerated attention is paid to personages which lack deep social interests and firm moral standards."

The decision told new committee chief Yermash to "take necessary measures to eliminate the shortcomings."

Petaluma's Growth Under New Policy

The Petaluma City Council last night approved a residential development control policy it hopes will keep reins on growth.

The policy reaffirms the council's previous limitation of growth to 500 new living units per year and calls for a balance of development on the east and west sides.

The council also approved a 17-member development control board after haggling over its number and membership. Councilman Fred V. Mattei said he thought a group of 17 may be too large, but other councilmen insisted a large amount of public input would be necessary.

The board will screen applications by developers and will recommend to the city council which developments should be built under the 500-home limit. No developer could get permission to build more than 100 units in any one year. Developments will be weighed on the basis of what school and city facilities are available, whether they meet the needs of the community, open space allotments and attractiveness of design.

The council will include two city councilmen, two planning commissioners, three business or professional representatives, four school district representatives and six citizens at large. The businessmen and citizens will represent east, west and central Petaluma.

Mayor Helen Putnam asked that the council submit names for the board at the council meeting next Monday at 7:30 p.m.

The Petaluma City Council also:

PARK'NG -- Established a parking and business improvement area to collect fees from businesses to buy parking lots and promote downtown stores.

PARK — Heard Councilman Richard W. Clecak report that phase one of Shollenberger River Park adjacent to the city boat-launching ramp has been funded with $34,000 from the county and $25,000 from a federal grant and will include four acres of turf, picnic areas, play area, landscaping and fencing. He said the city in conjunction with the county is working on plans to develop the other 16 acres of the park.

HOUSING — Scheduled a Sept. 5 public hearing on the proposed housing element.

DEMOLITION — Called for estimates of costs to demolish a city-owned house at 303 Post Street to determine if the building should be torn down or repaired.

CAB — Denied the application of Yellow Cab Co. for a taxi service permit since no representatives have been available to answer questions.

TAX RATE — Introduced an ordinance setting the city tax rate at $1.89 per $100 assessed valuation and scheduled discussion on it for Sept. 5. Vice Mayor John W. Cavanagh Jr. said he may protest the tax rate, but gave no reason.

MEETING — Adjourned to next Monday at 7:30 p.m. to consider the planning department project schedule for next year.

'IT'S KINDA FUN'

'Mills Administration' Takes Over Sacramento

SACRAMENTO (AP) — "Would you like to be really, really governor?" James R. Mills was asked as the president pro tem of the state Senate held his first news conference as acting governor of California. "Yeah," the San Diego Democrat said grinning. "It's kinda fun."

That set the tone yesterday for what he called the beginning of the "Mills administration" which is scheduled to include a 19-gun salute and the first time a governor has signed a bill he authored in the state legislature.

The Senate president pro tem is third in line of ascendancy to the office of governor, and next is the speaker of the Assembly — currently Van Nuys Democrat Bob Moretti.

Mills said he will sign his bicycle lanes bill into law Wednesday at the city library in Davis. He also reported he plans to ride his bicycle from his residence in Davis to the state Capitol one day this week — a distance of 14 miles.

He is anavid bicyclist and pointed out the signing will mark the first time California has appropriated money — $720,000 in Mills' bill-toward bicycle land construction in yet-to-be-designated areas.

Bicycling is good exercise and it makes the rider feel he's moving around without contributing to pollution, Mills says.

The balding 45-year-old hosted reporters yesterday in his spacious gold-carpeted, paneled office. He said he was offered the use of the regular governor's office.

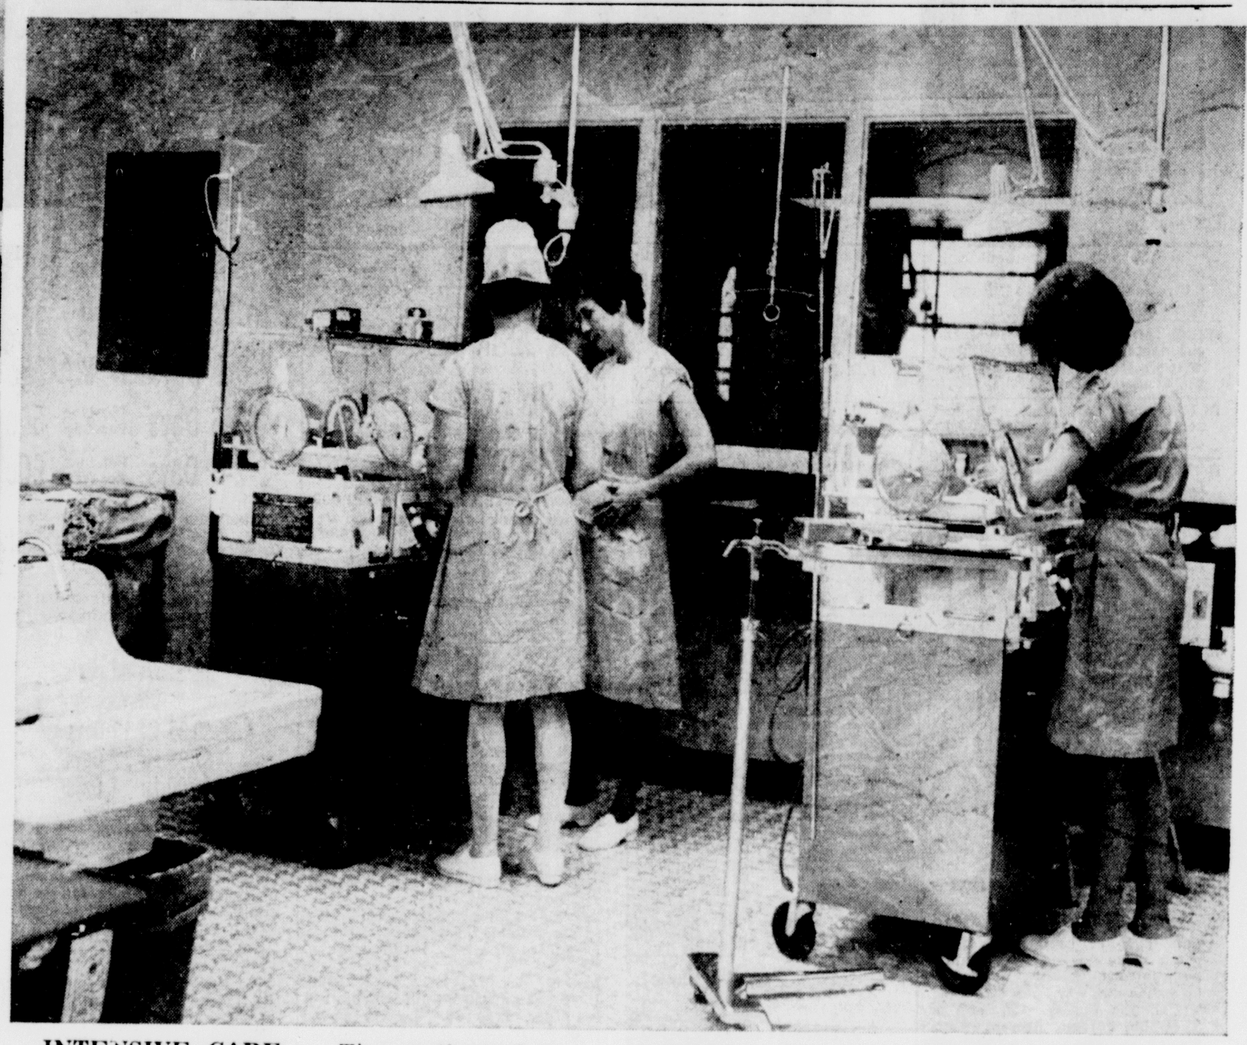
NEWLY BORN— Kristi Lynn Brown seems to be attempting a smile following her Caesarian birth last week as she is lifted inside an isolette in the intensive care nursery. The daughter of Edward and Judith Brown of San Rafael, Kristi was reported to be "thriving" this week.



INTENSIVE CARE — Tiny patients lying inside highly sophisticated isolettes are constantly watched and treated by nurses in Marin General Hospital's new intensive care nursery. Anxious parents can watch through glass windows and visit their ailing babies as often as they like.

New-Look Care For The Newborn

By PAT PERRY

Marin General Hospital's new intensive care nursery is in operation after a $27,000 remodeling program that has centered care for acutely ill newborns in a single section of the hospital.

The nursery's space has been doubled to accommodate eight babies, and includes new cardiac monitoring equipment contributed by the North Bay Chapter of the National Foundation, March of Dimes.

"We've been offering this kind of service for some time," explained hospital administrator Ray K. Bolinger, "but we've zeroed in on the problem."

He said two pediatricians specializing in neo-natology share the responsibility for the intensive care unit on a 24-hour basis.

"Most infants will not need the intensive care nursery," he emphasized, "but it is a vital backup to obstetrical and pediatric services."

At $70 a day, the unit's rates are one-third the cost of comparable facilities in San Francisco, he said.

In addition to the familiar isolettes, which enable nurses to handle baby patients in a womb-like environment, the unit has a heated treatment table, which Gail Moore, clinical nurse specialist, said makes it possible for nurses and doctors to treat babies outside the isolettes.

She estimated there are about 3,000 births a year to Marin County mothers, with 1,200 to 1,300 of that number at Marin General.

At a time when the birth rate is dropping nationwide, why did the hospital district enlarge its nursery facilities?

"We looked at it from the standpoint of trying to serve the total needs of the community," said Bolinger.

Contact with their ailing baby is completely different from the look through a glass window that parents once were limited to.

For a start, parents get teaching sessions.

"We really do encourage liberal visiting," said Miss Moore. "We try to get the mother to do some of the feeding at least once during the day. And she can wash the baby, for instance."

"When it's twins, we get the father in for the teaching sessions so the couple can function as a team at home."

Miss Moore or a public health nurse make a pre-discharge visit to the baby's home, checking temperature and location of the baby's sleeping quarters and answering worried mothers' questions.

"And we tell them to discourage visitors for the first month," she added, "because the babies don't have the resistance to disease."

Perhaps the biggest role these teaching sessions and home visits play is giving the parents confidence in their ability to look after their child once it's well enough to leave hospital, Miss Moore explained.

And after the baby is discharged, another home visit is made on the second day. "Usually the mother has lots more questions by then," Miss Moore said.

No additional fee is charged for the home visiting service, Bolinger said. "It's all part of our intention to integrate health care into the community."

San Anselmo Planners Talk But Don't Act On Moratorium

The San Anselmo planning Commission last night discussed halting "upward" zoning and lot splits of more than an acre until the city adopts a new general plan, but took no action on a proposed moratorium.

Under consideration at a public hearing attended by about 25 persons was a suggestion that a four-month emergency ordinance be adopted to prevent more density than is now permitted, and which could be extended to last as long as two years.

Planning Commission Chairman Duane C. Ragan emphasized "this is not a moratorium on building, only on density," but David Greenlee, executive manager of Marin Builders Exchange, said he was opposed to "any type of moratorium."

He called present zoning tools adequate to control density and lot splits and pointed out that only six apartment buildings and 31 homes were built last year in San Anselmo.

Others in the audience, however, including resident Mia Cassady, supported the proposal. She called it a "relatively mild moratorium" compared to those in other cities.

City Engineer Charles R. Leitzell said the moratorium would provide "a chance to get the answers to questions such as open space and pollution" and would give time for a citizens group to complete a new general plan for the city.

The commission agreed to discuss the matter again at a special meeting at 8 p.m. Monday in the city council chambers.

The San Anselmo Planning Commission also:

COMPLAINTS — Heard reports of noise and traffic problems around the Lion's Share nightclub on Red Hill Avenue, but took no action.

DENIAL — Refused to allow Michael Gallagher to split a lot at 80 Butterfield Road into two parcels because to do so would have created an R-2 zoning on a single residence lot.

No Action Taken On Lot Sizes

The Fairfax City Council last night held its sixth public hearing without action on a proposed zoning ordinance that would require larger minimum lot sizes for development.

At issue last night were the city's commercial zones, according to Mayor Albert E. Gately.

About 40 residents attended the hearing, many of whom argued that the new commercial zones would reduce property values, Gately said.

An attorney for Max Friedman, owner of the 26.78acre Marin Town and Country Club property, said that the historic parcel should either be bought by the city or rezoned for multiple-residential development, according to Gately.

"The attorney said that it was no longer profitable to run a swimming club there," the mayor reported.

Under the ordinance, property now zoned commercial, limited commercial or industrial would be rezoned to limited commercial, highway commercial, central commercial or commercial recreational zone. Friedman's property would be zoned commercial recreation, which would bar residential uses, Gately said.

The council decided to hold another public hearing on the ordinance on Sept. 18, at which time zoning definitions and procedural steps will be reviewed, Gately said.

Rohnert Park Council Pro School Tax Idea

The Rohnert Park City Council last night endorsed a Cotati School District plan to collect extra fees from subdividers to provide temporary classrooms.

City Mgr. Peter M. Callinan said the council accepted the plan by the school district to collect $75 per home from developers. Funds will be used to lease portable classrooms to accomodate the projected overflow of students until a new building can be constructed.

Callinan said developers had agreed to the plan, but had suggested the fee be lowered to $50 per home.

The council had earlier rejected the district's request that the city collect the funds or provide temporary schools that could later be used as recreation centers.

The Rohnert Park City Council also:

TAX RATE — Set the 1972-73 tax rate at $1.69 per $100 assessed valuation, the same as last year.

PLANNER — Hired Thomas Cordill, former Marin County zoning administrator, as a planner to work 80 hours per month at a salary of $725 per month.

Coastal Planning Hearing Is Set

A proposed master plan for the Bay Area's 246 miles of ocean coastline will have its first public hearing at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the supervisors chambers in the Marin Civic Center.

The plan calls for halting virtually all development in West Marin and proposes creation of a new regional agency with broad powers to enforce the plan.

The plan was drafted by consultants to the Association of Bay Area Governments. The hearing will be by the association's ocean coastline planning committee, chaired by Marin County Supervisor Michael Wornum.

If approved by ABAG's executive committee, the plan will be a basis for review of projects using federal funds for transportation, water and sewer facilities and open space acquisition.

Do You Want
A BETTER Deal
On The SAME New Car?

All new car dealers have the same models, styles, colors and optional equipment on their new cars. What is the difference between dealers on the same make of car?

THE ANSWER IS IN THE COST OF DOING BUSINESS IN ONE AREA AS AGAINST ANOTHER

Marin County new car dealers have a much lower cost of doing business that the dealers "over the bridge." This is why your new car will cost less in Marin County. WHY DON'T YOU CHECK AND SEE!

Viet Cong Says Nixon Missing A Peace Chance

PARIS (UPI)—The Viet Cong said today that President Nixon is missing a chance to settle the war in Vietnam "within several days" by maintaining, even in the Republican platform, his support of South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Ly Van Sau, official spokesman for the Viet Cong delegation to the peace talks, also said the Nixon administration is attempting to "trick American opinion" into the belief that its program of Vietnamization of the war is succeeding.

"The Republican party platform glorifies the policy of Vietnamization of the war, repeats President Nixon's May 8 ultimatum and reaffirms support for puppet Nguyen Van Thieu at all cost," Sau told a news conference at his delegation's headquarters.

"We reaffirm that if President Nixon wants a just and honorable peace, if he responds to our legitimate demands and negotiates seriously, peace can be achieved within several days," Sau said.

He said optimistic statements by U. S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers about the possibility of a settlement around the time of the U.S. presidential election Nov. 7 were not realistic.

"Mr. Rogers' aim is clear," Sau said. "On the eve of the Republican convention in Miami, he was trying to trick American opinion into thinking that Vietnamization has succeeded."

The Viet Cong have said that President Nixon's Vietnamization program is designed to maintain U.S. domination of South Vietnam and has failed.

The White House said Monday that Rogers' statement in a newspaper interview about a possible negotiated peace before or soon after Nov. 7 was not a prediction but expression of a hope.

Sau said the only conditions acceptable for peace were those set forth in the Viet Cong's seven-point plan that was proposed 13 months ago and from which the Communist delegations have never publicly wavered.

"In the last few days American government leaders have made statements aiming to convince that President Nixon, during his term in office, has only sought peace and that, if peace has not come, it is the fault of the Vietnamese," Sau said. "Such statements are absolutely false."

"We don't want to humiliate the United States or make the United States capitulate as President Nixon always pretends," he said. "But if President Nixon continues his same policies of the last four years, then peace cannot be achieved," Sau said.

Reds Storm From Citadel; Reel Back With Heavy Casualties

SAIGON (UPI) — Tank-led North Vietnamese units stormed out of the Citadel in Quang Tri City today and attacked South Vietnamese marines but were beaten back with heavy losses, front dispatches reported.

In the Da Nang area, a force of 7,000 South Vietnamese hit Communist positions menacing the city from the south.

Storm clouds masked much of North Vietnam and U.S. fighter-bombers and B-52s carried out attacks in Quang Tri and against Communist armor and artillery south of Da Nang. One F4 Phantom was shot down over Quang Tri with its two-man crew lost and another was badly damaged.

The marines said they hit several tanks with American-supplied disposable LAW anti-tank rocket launchers but were unsure whether the tanks were destroyed. They said that when the North Vietnamese came out to retrieve their dead they were hit by artillery fire and that at least 100 must have died.

UPI reporter Ed Basset said the 7,000-man ARVN force below Da Nang moved to within two miles of Base Camp Ross, which was overrun Sunday by North Vietnamese forces who captured nearby Que Son City.

He said the ARVN column killed a dozen Communists today and freed two South Vietnamese captured Sunday.

The South Vietnamese said fighting had swirled to within one mile of Que Son and that in three battles one to six miles from the town the Communists lost 31 killed and four captured. Five South Vietnamese were wounded. The South Vietnamese said the Communists had not captured the Que Son Valley itself but only the area around Que Son town.

Meanwhile the South Vietnamese Foreign Ministry today denied that Saigon had accepted peace proposals drawn up last week by the five member countries of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN).

The communique said the ASEAN plan stipulated only a "simultaneous cease-fire" between North and South Vietnam which would not be internationally supervised. South Vietnam's eight-point proposal demands a cease-fire for all of Indochina, including North Vietnam, under international supervision.

Fired Tam Teacher Files Writ

Fired Tamalpais High School teacher Kenneth A. Anderson yesterday tried a new legal tactic to get his job back, at least until his case is heard in court.

A petition for a writ of mandamus was filed in Marin Superior Court on Anderson's behalf by Carl B. Shapiro, who maintained Anderson has a right to be reinstated while the case is pending.

Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino, who represents the school district, today said Anderson has not yet had a hearing on the charges because it is not required by the education code. He added that Shapiro has raised a constitutional question, saying Anderson is entitled to such a hearing.

In June, the Tamalpais High School District board filed suit aimed at firing Anderson, who has been suspended since April on moral charges.

The suit accused Anderson of encouraging and participating in illegal acts with a student who was linked to three bombings in Southern Marin last year. He also was charged with "engaging in inappropriate conduct with a female student."

Earlier, Anderson had been given a nonteaching job for "refusal to follow school rules." He then was suspended from his English teaching job in April when the new charges were added.

Anderson has appealed his firing but no trial date has been scheduled.

Another Try Slated On Manzanita Center

The Sausalito School District board agreed last night to ask the Marin City Community Services District to reconsider its recent refusal to become the agency to coordinate use of the vacant Manzanita School by private groups in Marin City.

If the services district board does not change its mind, the school board indicated it may have to call for bids on the facility and lease it to the highest bidder, according to Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg.

He said a call for bids might result in making the school inaccessible to many organizations in Marin City wanting to use it.

Last week the services district board said it was not interested in leasing the facility — which has been closed since last September — from the district. The services district board instead suggested that Manzanita be leased to the Bethsaida Mission, a Marin City church group.

But Lindberg said the district cannot legally turn the school over to a private organization, including a church, without calling for bids to give all private groups an equal chance to lease the building.

He said the Marin City Learning Center's request to obtain the school for its private classes next year was turned down for that reason.

A special committee of the school board — Trustees Warren K. Hansen and Betty Times — had recommended the school be leased to a public Marin City organization which could oversee its use by other community groups. The services district is the only public agency in Marin City.

Last night Dr. Hansen said he did not believe the learning Center (a private school started by parents dissatisfied with the education their children were receiving in Sausalito schools) should be allowed any use of Manzanita. But Mrs. Times thought the center should be treated like any other private group and permitted some use.

In asking the services district to reconsider, the school board said the district is willing to assist the district by setting up guidelines for use of the building.

Mystery Will Makes Panthers Jackson Heirs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Photostatic copies of a one-page will purportedly signed by convict author George Jackson the day he was shot to death at San Quentin Prison are circulating in the San Francisco Bay Area.

Turner was an important member of the Black Panther Party at the time Jackson, three guards, and two "honor" inmates were killed during what prison officials described as a breakout attempt. But Turner is reported to have split from the party since that time.

Attorney Ed Bell, who is representing the Jackson family in the matter of Jackson's estate, said he had "no comment" on the purported will.

Jackson's only visitor on the day of his death was attorney Stephen Bingham, scion of a wealthy Connecticut family who dropped from sight hours after the escape and has been missing ever since.

Bingham is accused of smuggling a gun to Jackson in a tape recorder during that last visit and has been charged with five murders in the incident — the three guards and two "honor" inmates.

San Quentin Warden Louis S. Nelson said Jackson did not have access to a typewriter in his prison cell, adding:

"If the so-called 'will' is legitimate, and I'm not prepared to say that it is, it was brought in for signing and taken out by Bingham, who was found among Jackson's personal effects."

The probate court in Marin County has already recognized Jackson's mother, Georgia, as the administrator of his estate. The estate is believed to consist primarily of certain publishing rights plus letters, documents and manuscripts found in Jackson's cell.

The 29-year-old black revolutionary author was best known of the three Soledad Brothers. At the time of his death, Jackson was awaiting trial on charges of murdering a Soledad Prison guard in January, 1970.

Local Relief Rolls Decline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federally financed relief rolls continued to increase during April but state and local charity cases declined, the Health, Education and Welfare Department (HEW) reported today.

More than 15 million Americans received welfare money during April, the latest month for which national statistics are available. This represented a decline of 3,000 persons from the previous month.

But the number of mothers and children in needy families, and blind and disabled persons —all federally supported—was up 8,000 to 14.1 million.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Tips Given To Older Persons On How To Avoid Accidents

It is not necessary to slow down with age, but the person with poor eyesight, arthritis, or cardiovascular disease has no choice.

Those who reach 65 in good shape might learn that being more graceful is a means of remaining active and avoiding accidents. Safety practices are important because each year almost 30,000 persons 65 and older have fatal accidents in the home. Half of these involve falls.

TOO MANY senior citizens are more active than they should be. They hustle up and down steps, clean house, hurry to the store, and lift heavy objects. There is no harm when the oldster is accustomed to this routine, but the majority forget they are getting older until an accident occurs.

Meanwhile, they are careless and refuse to be sensible — possibly because they do not want to look or act their age.

There are several hazards in the home that are especially bothersome to oldsters. Falling is common, so keep all stairways lighted and keep one hand on the railing.

INSERT NIGHT LIGHTS in bedrooms, halls, and bathrooms. Avoid scatter rugs or carpets unless they rest on non-skid mats or are fastened to the floor. The bathroom is also a booby trap; have it fitted with hand holds and rubber mats, especially inside the tub or shower. Keep the floor dry.

NEVER TURN suddenly and only move in the direction you are looking. With age, everyone should learn to walk with the feet farther apart. This stance broadens the base. Small, run-down heels lack proper support and encourage falling.

Good health and good safety practices are inseparable. A healthy body is better able to take stress and an active mind is less forgetful. An oldster who thinks he is over the hill soon will be there.

Carbon Monoxide, light air pollution.
Smoke particles, clean air.
Other areas:
San Francisco, light air pollution.
San Jose, significant air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial courses, while the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Bad Check Is Called A Mistake

The attorney for rock musician Buddy Miles, 28, has claimed that a bad check charge against Miles stems from a mistake.

The lawyer, Marvin Cahn, asked for and received a pretrial conference in Marin Municipal Court, scheduled for Sept. 6 at which time, he said, he hopes the matter can be taken care of.

Miles had earlier failed to show up in court, Cahn said, because he misunderstood the date of his court appearance.

Cahn said he was released from jail in a hurry earlier this month "because 5,000 screaming fans" were awaiting his appearance at a Sacramento concert.

Cahn said when Miles learned his moving bill had not been paid by his manager, he wrote out the check on an account in a Massachusetts bank which he did not realize had been closed.

Cahn said his client had many more times the sum of the bad check in other accounts.

Campaign Limit Set At $7,500

Supervisorial candidate Barbara Boxer of Greenbrae has announced she will limit her campaign spending to $7,500 and suggested her opponent, incumbent Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. of Fairfax, do likewise.

Mrs. Boxer, who issued the same challenge before the June primary, spent $6,090 to Arrigoni's $12,006. She outpolled him in the primary, 6,430 to 6,135.

She also announced she will disclose all contributions monthly, a practice only she followed in the primary contest, and urged Arrigoni to do likewise.

Mrs. Boxer, in a letter to Arrigoni, said their campaigns should appeal to the intelligence of the voters instead of trying "to buy their votes with the usual expensive public relations techniques."

$175 Raised At Novato Carnival

She estimated that approximately 200 persons attended the carnival at their home at 55 Gustafson Court. Last year the carnival netted $120 for Muscular Dystrophy, she said.

A marathon on roller skates to raise money for the same cause will be held from 1 to 10 p.m. Sunday at Marin Skateland at 863 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, and not yesterday as reported Friday in the Independent-Journal.

Statement By Rogers Clarified

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The State Department says Secretary of State William P. Rogers was not predicting a specific date for settlement of the Vietnam war in an interview he granted last week.

Knight Newspapers Inc. quoted Rogers in an article published Sunday as saying there would be a negotiated settlement before or "very soon after President Nixon's reelection."

Department spokesman Robert J. McCloskey said at a briefing Monday that Rogers was speaking "in terms of months" and that it "was not an effort on his part to make a flat prediction."

TELEVISION IN REVIEW

Political Writer Views Convention

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

At 9:45 p.m. EDT, Monday a very pretty girl of the young voter age group politicians are trying to woo this year asked wistfully:

"Isn't there anything else on television tonight?"

I had to tell her all three networks were devoting prime evening time to coverage of the Republican National Convention in Miami Beach.

She responded to this information by slipping quietly out of the room.

This is the first time since 1948 I have watched the national political conventions over TV instead of covering them in person from the noisy, sweaty, crowded confines of the convention press box.

All these years, I've had the idea a convention would be far more interesting if you saw it on TV than if you had to sit through it in person. I was wrong. The only difference is that if you're watching it from your own living room, you don't have to walk five miles through subterranean passages to reach the men's room.

No, take that back. There's another difference. On TV, you get to see Walter and David and Howard and Harry and John and all the other big TV stars telling you what you're seeing—or what you would be seeing if the camera were focused on the rostrum instead of on them.

I did not find this an improvement.

Neither did the charming lady who watched the opening GOP session with me. She has a thing about John Hart, and remained furiously frustrated throughout the evening because CBS never showed Hart's handsome profile. At the risk of appearing more neutral than the hardnosed reporter ought to be, I must confess I could not detect much difference in the presentations of the three major networks even though I kept switching channels with perfervid devotion to duty.

I did, however, observe one big change from the Democratic convention which took place in the same hall five weeks ago.

The Republicans obviously have a much clearer understanding than the Democrats of the main purpose of a national convention. The Democrats have this quaint idea that a convention is primarily intended to nominate candidates and settle issues. So they droned on far into the night with protracted arguments and dreary roll calls.

The Republicans know that a convention is a chance to get millions of dollars worth of free TV time to launch a political campaign—and they are using it with magnificent efficiency. Their opening TV show was tightly scheduled and on time from start to finish. All of the speakers fed the audience the red meat of unabashed partisanship. There was one booboo when they showed one movie on the air while the delegates in the hall saw another, but who cared about that?

On the whole, it went very smoothly and I suspect even Democrats watched because, as the pretty girl brought out, it was the only game in town.

Guilty Plea Entered In Marijuana Case

Mark Edward Estrada, 21, of no fixed address, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Superior Court to a charge he possessed a pouch of marijuana on June 16.

Estrada also admitted to an earlier conviction of a similar crime, which could affect his sentence.

He has been promised, though, under the terms of a plea bargain that he will receive a $250 fine and a jail sentence of 10 days.

Estrada was arrested by a sheriff's deputy who saw a pouch of pot on Estrada's car dashboard after the youth was stopped for a defective taillight.

Nine Given Sentences For Drinking

Nine persons have been sentenced in Marin Municipal Court by Judge David R. Baty for drunken driving.

Sentenced Wednesday was:

Joseph Brown Kemp, 55, of 7 Cole Drive, Marin City, arrested July 4 in Marin City, placed on probation for one year, sentenced to 30 days in jail and ordered not to operate a vehicle for one year.

Sentenced Friday were:

Robert Emmett Gribbin, 19, of 72 Hilldale Avenue, San Anselmo, arrested July 25 on Highway 101, placed on probation for one year and fined $302.

William Frederick Fox, 58, of 116 Ward Street, Larkspur, arrested July 2 on Highway 17, placed on probation for one year and fined $302.

Tom Hugo Menefee, 56, of 45 Mount Whitney Drive, San Rafael, arrested April 7 on Highway 101, placed on probation for one year and fined $250.

Godefrides Alphonses Verburg, 32, of 1825 Lincoln Avenue, Apt. 215, San Rafael, arrested July 12 on Highway 101, placed on probation for six months and fined $302.

Richard Kenneth White, 38, of 164 Meernaa Avenue, Fairfax, arrested July 29 on Highway 101, placed on probation for six months and fined $302.

Michael Shane Korner, 26, of Redding, Shasta County, arrested June 27 on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, placed on probation for six months and fined $250 or 80 hours work for a parks and recreation department.

Jay Fred Russell, 35, of San Francisco, arrested Aug. 16 on Highway 101, placed on probation for six months and fined $302.

Daniel Francis Kay Jr., 35, of 6 Villa Maria, Novato, arrested Aug. 13 on Highway 101, placed on probation for six months, fined $302 or 100 hours work for Marin County Parks and Recreation Department.

San Quentin Strike Vote Is Shelved

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A strike vote by San Quentin and other correctional officers has been shelved, a spokesman for the California State Employees Association announced today.

The employees committee of CSEA voted Saturday in Sacramento to postpone the vote pending outcome of negotiations with representatives of Gov. Ronald Reagan, according to spokesman Richard Martin.

The main points of disagreement between the state and the correctional officers concern safety on the job, working conditions and more pay, he said.

The association says it represents 551 of San Quentin's 650 employees and 5,000 of the 7,200 correctional workers throughout the state.

Five Die In Crash Of 10 Vehicles

GILROY (AP) — Five persons were killed and eight others injured in a grinding 10 vehicle crash on the Pacheco Pass about 22 miles east of here.

East and westbound traffic was halted for four miles in each direction for more than six hours yesterday in the area of California 152.

The California Highway Patrol said it took rescue workers up to four hours to remove victims pinned in the wreckage of their vehicles.

Although details of the accident remained sketchy, those at the scene said a 10-wheeled semitrailer truck loaded with peaches went out of control going down the long west side of the pass.

The vehicle jackknifed, wrecked another large truck, sliced a pickup in half and rolled over onto a car, officers said.

In all, three large trucks, two pickups and five passenger autos were reported involved in the accident.

Killed in the crash were Roy Hifner, 53, of Tulare; Henry Hifner, 3, his grandson, of Campbell; Bobby Ray Smith and Robert Bruce Barnes, both 25 and of Stockton, and Richard Bunting, 34 of Santa Clara, the Santa Clara County coroner's office said.

Two persons, one listed in critical condition and the other in serious condition, were being treated at Wheeler Hospital in Gilroy. Four other persons were treated for minor injuries and released, a spokesman at the medical facility said.

Two other persons were reported treated and released at Los Banos Community Hospital.

The three people in the crushed car were believed among those dead.

Name of the driver whose truck went out of control was not immediately available.

Carl Schneider, a truck driver from Mitchell, S.D., told a reporter he was driving up the pass "when I saw this semitrailer bearing down on me on the wrong side of the road. As he overturned and hit me he went on top of a passenger car," Schneider said.

Schneider's truck was shunted into an embankment.

Marinwood Vote On Land Purchase

The Marinwood Community Services District board last night scheduled Jan. 23 for a bond election to finance open space acquisition, but set no amount for the bond.

"We decided to hold public hearings and seek community guidance to see how much people are willing to pay," said board member Frank Solomon Jr. He added that the bond issue might be in "the $400,000 range".

Board member Ellis D. Jaquette and open space committeemen James Winter and Michael Laughlin were appointed to a priority committee charged with contacting property owners and developing a priority list of open space parcels, according to Genevieve T. Bolding, district manager.

She said the board also authorized a $2,500 expenditure to appraise and conduct a title search of about a dozen undeveloped parcels in the district.

The board will schedule a public hearing on the bond issue election at its Sept. 18 meeting, she said.

The Marinwood Community Services District board also:

CADET — Extended the employment of fire cadet Gary Sosa for three weeks at a wage of $1.55 an hour. A federal program that financed the cadet ended last week, Mrs. Bolding said.

CENTER RENTAL — Adopted a revised rental schedule for Marinwood Community Center. The board abandoned its $15-per-hour charge for use of the building and instead decided to charge outside groups $35 per event for building use. The charge will vary according to tha activity planned, Mrs. Bolding said.

LIGHTING — Agreed to pay Pacific Gas and Electric Co. $4.11 more per month when it learned that the firm had not been charging for a street light.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Sept. 18 in the community center.

Reagan Signs Bills Adding Smog Seats

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Bills adding two "public" members to the hearing boards of air pollution control districts and extending the jurisdiction of the Bay Area district to motor vehicles have been signed into law by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The first, AB 1084 by Assemblyman W. Craig Biddle, R-Riverside, will add two members to the three-member hearing boards. One of the new members must be an officer of a private, nonprofit organization devoted to environmental concerns. The other will be selected from the public.

The classification of the other three will be changed from two attorneys and an engineer to one engineer, one attorney and one doctor.

The other bill, AB 2019 by Assemblyman Richard D. Hayden, R-Sunnyvale, authorizes the board of directors of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District to enforce air pollution control laws contained in the vehicle code. This is done now on a haphazard basis by the California Highway Patrol.

Still No Solution To Olympic Dispute

MUNICH (UPI)—The Executive Board of the International Olympic Committee wrestled for hours today on the Rhodesian dispute that has rocked the Olympic Games without seeming to come any closer to a solution.

However, Monique Berlioux, director of the I. O. C.'s Secretariat said, "I think we'll have a decision by this evening. The position of both parties is well known."

The nine-man Executive Board, which is charged with putting together a proposal that will be presented to the entire 73-member Congress, met with the Rhodesian delegation shortly after breakfast and then returned to the conference room to meet with the whole Congress.

The Board invited representatives of both Rhodesia and the African nations which are calling for the expulsion of Rhodesia to speak before the Congress. Meanwhile, Cuba, Haiti, and Yugoslavia have joined the Africans in opposing Rhodesia.

The I. O. C. is walking a tightrope between the two sides, trying to find an area of agreement which would avoid a threatened walkout by some 32-35 African countries from the Games which are scheduled to open Saturday.

The Supreme Council for Africa Sports (SCAS) decided Monday its 30-plus members will go home if Rhodesia is not expelled, according to Abraham Ordia of Nigeria, president of the council.

"It's them or us," Ordia told the IOC. passions are too high.

"There can be no compromise on this issue," Jean-Claude Ganga of The Congo said. He is secretary general of the National Olympic Committee of Africa (NOCA).

After the IOC received the African ultimatum, they called in the Rhodesians. The chief of the Rhodesian team, Ossie Plasket, returned to his apartment and promised to do anything the IOC wanted, even leave.

"It's in their hands," a harried Plasket said from an 18th floor apartment in the Olympic Village. "We'll abide by whatever the IOC says. We've always gone by every little rule."

The IOC, after almost 24 hours of nonstop discussions ending early today, resumed its deliberations at mid-morning in a downtown hotel with the Rhodesians in attendance again.

"We wjnt to talk to them and gain clarification on a few points," an IOC spokesman said.

The IOC executive committee was asked Monday to draw a resolution on the situation which could be presented to the IOC Congress for a vote today. But it didn't.

"Gentlemen, I'm tired," one committee member said. "It's been a long day. We have an early start. We were unable to agree among ourselves."

Willie Daume of Germany, president of the Olympic Organizing Committee, said he would not ask the Rhodesians to leave.

"You cannot invite somebody and kick him out a few days before the games," Daume said. "No I will not consider asking them to help us by leaving.

A high IOC source said if the Africans win, politics will have entered the games, contrary to Olympic policy.

The major problem is the Rhodesian travel document, an identification card issued by the organizing committee. The Africans insist the Rhodesians did not furnish proof of their identity in the form of a British passport and thus broke the agreement reached last year in Luxemburg.

But the United Nations has a sanction on Rhodesia, meaning they cannot use passports in any country belonging to the UN, including Germany. The sanction committee of the UN Security Council Monday asked the Germans to explain how the Rhodesians entered the country.

Pirates' Mockery Of Old Baseball Adage

For the second straight season Pittsburgh's Pirates are making a mockery of the old baseball adage that pitching is the name of the game. Power, not pitching, is taking the Pirates to their second straight National League pennant.

The Pirates powered their way to the pennant in 1971 and they're doing it again. They haven't got one pitcher even close to being a 20-game winner this year. Dock Ellis almost made it last year with 19 wins — and a 3.05 earned run average.

A pitcher who allows an average of three runs or more a game usually winds up a loser but not with the Pirates, the best hitting ball club in the majors. Ask the ex-Bronco Nelson Briles from Santa Clara University about that.

BRILES IS 11-5 with the Pirates this year on a 3.50 ERA. Bob Moose is 9-7 with a 3.00 ERA. Ellis has his ERA down to 2.75 this year, considerably better than his 3.05 of last season. Ellis, now 10-6, is the only Pirate pitcher in the starting rotation with an ERA under 3.00 other than Steve Blass.

Blass is the best pitcher on the Pirate staff, 13-6 with a 2.60 ERA. But that's no surprise. Blass was a two-time winner in the 1971 World Series. He got the series turned around for the Pirates after Baltimore's Orioles took the first two games. He beat them 5-1 in the third game and won the seventh game 2-1 to make the Pirates world champs.

Blass is the one pitcher for whom the Pirates don't have to score a bundle of runs. But they've been making it relatively easy for him this year, just as they have for the rest of the Pirate pitching staff. A pitcher feels very comfortable with a club whose team batting average is .279.

THE PIRATES HAVE six .300 hitters in Manny Sanguillen, Richie Hebner, Al Oliver, Willie Stargell, Roberto Clemente and Vic Davallilo. Rennie Stennett has been a solid .290 hitter. Gene Alley and Dave Cash contribute a couple of hot .270 bats for a shortstop and second baseman.

With that kind of power, it's understandable why Pirate pitchers, with earned run averages of three or more a game, don't get panicky if they happen to fall behind by a couple of runs.

LEFT-HANDED PITCHING was supposed to stop the Pirates this season. At least, the Giants thought so. That's why they traded away Gaylord Perry for Sam McDowell.

When McDowell faced the Pirates for the first time in Candlestick Park June 3, the Pirates were 8-0 against lefthanders. They kept their record perfect, running it to 9-0, when they beat McDowell. And it was Oliver, a lefthanded swinger, who roped a two-run double to left center in the seventh inning to beat Sudden Sam 4-3.

TO HIS CREDIT, McDowell beat the Pirates in Pittsburgh June 14 when he faced them a second time. But it wasn't an easy 3-1 victory for him. Tito Fuentes speared three line drives in that game, turning two of them into double plays.

When the Pirates pay their final season visit to Candlestick Tuesday night and Wednesday afternoon, McDowell won't get a chance at a rubber match with them. He's on the disabled list now.

END OF THE LINE

Baltimore Colts running back Don McCauley (23) was flipped over and down after gaining 40 yards last night by Kerry Reardon (15) of Kansas City, but not before he made it to the three-yeard line. Baltimore won the game in Kansas City's new Arrowhead Stadium, 23-17.

45 Aides Needed For Dispea Race

No, the number of people on hand to administer the Dipsea race doesn't exceed the number of runners. It just seems that way.

Upwards of 45 people were lured, persuaded or coerced into helping the sponsoring Mill Valley Junior Chamber of Commerce run the famous footrace, according to director John Drew.

And that doesn't even count members of such organizations as the Amateur Athletic Union, Marin Amateur Radio Club and San Francisco Ski Patrol.

The race will begin Sunday at 10 a.m. at the flagpole in Litton Square in downtown Mill Valley and will traverse the tortuous, 6.8-mile Dipsea trail to Stinson Beach. About 1,400 are expected to compete.

The day will begin earlier for race officials, who will set up shop at about 8 a.m. in the City Council chambers on the second floor of the City Hall, half a block up Corte Madera Avenue from the square.

"We have about five people working on early registration, 12 on late registration, three at the starting line, seven along the route, 15 at the finish line, and two or three on miscellaneous problems," Drew said.

Early registration involves merely giving out numbers to runners who entered before race day but after last Saturday. Numbers have been mailed to the approximately 465 runners who entered before Saturday.

Late registration will involve complete processing of the expected 400 or 500 entrants on race day. Entry fee will be $3. AAU officials will be present to issue AAU cards to those needing them, at a cost of $1.50.

The Marin Amateur Radio Club will be standing by at various checkpoints along the trail, Drew said, relaying information and coordinating activities.

The San Francisco Ski Patrol, which will be on hand for the first time, will provide first aid if needed en route. Patrol members will be on foot, presumably.

Individuals wishing to beat the last-minute crush in the council chambers and get a couple of extra hours of sleep Sunday morning may pick up applications at the Mill Valley Chamber of Commerce, 85 Throckmorton Avenue, or the San Francisco AAU office, 942 Market Street, or by writing the Jaycees, P. O. Box 30, Mill Valley 94941.

New Ski Club In Marin Slates Meeting Tonight

A newly-founded ski club, for single adults, will hold its second meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at Sam's Anchor Cafe in Tiburon.

The meeting will be held, for among other reasons, to pick a name for the new club. A first meeting last week drew 37 people.

Charter membership dues will be collected to represent the club in the Bay Area Council — Far West Ski Association Snow Queen Contest.

Pirates Share 2nd After Cage Victory

John Channell scored 20 points yesterday to lead the Pirates to a 68-54 victory over the Wildcats and a share of second place in the final Drake Summer League high school basketball standings.

The Pirates and Shaw's Ice Cream tied for second (9-2) behind the Crusaders (11-0). In other action yesterday, Mike Dinehart scored 20 points to lead Gilmore Photo to a 67-48 triumph over the Vikings, and the Bulldogs beat Chuck Moore, Insurance, 38-29.

Marin Girl Wins

Lucy Sokoloff of Los Ranchitos won first place in the 50-yard swim (44.6 seconds) and second in the 25-yard swim (18.7) last Wednesday in the International Special Olympics for handicapped children held on the University of California at Los Angeles campus.

FIFTH GOLF CLASH

Women Champs' Tourney In Mill Valley Tomorrow

Defending champion Mrs. Lawrence Gapinski and two-time winner Mrs. John Cann will head a field of six golfers tomorrow in the fifth annual Marin County Women's Tournament of Champions golf event at the Mill Valley Golf Course.

Handicapped at six and seven strokes respectively, Mesdames Gapinski, from San Geronimo National, and Cann, from Meadow Club, figure to make a two way battle of the tourney, which pits the representatives of Marin's six regulation courses against each other in scratch medal play.

OTHER ENTRIES

The other entries are Mrs. Harold Baer, 13-handicapper from Peacock Gap in San Rafael, Mrs. Roger Williams, 11, of Indian Valley in Novato, Mrs. Joan Wheeler, 10, from Mill Valley, and Mrs. Charles Gondak, 9, of Marin Country Club in Novato.

Rated the best chance at pulling an upset is Mrs. Wheeler, who will enjoy the home course advantage. "Joan has an edge over all of us," Mrs. Cann said last week. "Local knowledge counts very much on that course." The course, a par-67, 4,400 yard layout, is the hilliest, and some say the trickiest in Marin.

ADVANTAGE

Mrs. Wheeler admits to having "maybe a little advantage. It's a funny little course and I'm fairly down the middle, which helps. Accuracy is going to count more than distance here."

Last year, at Peacock Gap, Mrs. Gapinski fired an 80 to edge Mrs. Gondak by two strokes. Mrs. Cann, winner in 1969 and '70, was off in Europe last summer, and did not compete.

VETERANS

All the players except Mrs. Wheeler and Mrs. Williams have played in the tourney before. Mrs. Baer and Mrs. Gapinski each have played four times, Mrs. Cann and Mrs. Baer twice each.

The tourney will get underway at 8:30 a.m. Admission is free to the public.

Injured Raider Is 'Improving'

There were early fears of total paralysis from the neck down, but surgery after the game and again Monday in a Southern California hospital on a dislocated neck vertebra and bruised spinal cord have resulted in more optimistic reports on the condition of the 225-pounder from Memphis State.

CHICAGO IDLE

A's Trim Tigers To Regain Lead

DETROIT (UPI) — If this is a preview of the playoffs, the first game turned out just as Manager Dick Williams of the Oakland A's hoped it would.

Oakland won the meeting of the American League division leaders Monday night by getting three runs in the first inning and easing to a 5-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

"Playoffs? I can't think that far ahead," Williams said after his team increased its edge over the idle Chicago White Sox to a half game and chopped Detroit's margin over second-place Baltimore to the same distance.

Williams had predicted Oakland and Detroit would win their respective division races when the two teams met in Detroit earlier this season. Oakland held a comfortable margin at that time while Detroit looked stronger then than it does now.

"We can't watch the scoreboard," Williams said. "We have to do it ourselves. I don't know if you've been looking at our club lately," he said, "but we've had some injuries. We cooled off with the bat and the White Sox got hot. Mike Epstein got hurt, then, the day he got back, Reggie Jackson went out. Our pitching's been great—it's kept us in there," Williams said.

Jim Hunter started the first game of the "playoff preview' and was excellent in recording his 16th victory against six losses with the aid of Rollie Fingers' 15th save. Fingers had to come on to retire the side in the ninth after Norm Cash and Jim Northrup opened the inning with singles.

Bert Campaneris started the contest with a string of six games in which he'd gotten at least two hits. He made it seven with a double, single and triple, scoring twice.

His leadoff double led to the first A's run off Woody Fryman. Campaneris stole third and Joe Rudi singled. Oakland added two more runs in the same first inning when Sal Bando singled and Mike Epstein doubled.

Reliever Lerrin Lagrow was touched for runs in the eighth and ninth. Bill Voss singled, Tim Cullen doubled and Hunter hit a sacrifice fly. Campaneris tripled and scored on Angel Mangual's single.

Rudi had four hits in five at-bats to hike his average to .320, good enough to take over the league lead from Rich Scheinblum of the idle Kansas City Royals.

Hunter was nicked for Northrup's eighth home run in the seventh with nobody on base.

Warriors' Thurmond Seeks Raise

The 6-foot-11 center will be entering the option year of a contract he signed two years ago with the Warriors. But Thurmond is rumored to have been offered a contract of $1 million or more from the Carolina Cougars of the rival American Basketball Association.

Thurmond reportedly is making in the $150,000-$200,000 range with the Warriors and would like to perhaps double that figure.

WITH 49ERS

First Pick Beasley Back In Camp Drills

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — Rookie wide receiver Terry Beasley has rejoined the San Francisco 49ers' drills here for the first time since breaking one of his big toes at the start of training camp.

"I couldn't bend it like I wanted to," he said Monday, "and I have to watch it because not being able to bend it puts more pressure on the rest of my foot, and I could hurt my arch or something."

The first-round draft choice from Auburn has yet to play a minute in an actual game. The toe is still swollen.

"I'm hoping I'll be able to play against Denver this Sunday, although I know I won't be at my best."

That he can even suit up is good news to the 49ers, whose casualty list after Saturday's game against the San Diego Chargers resembled Custer's after the Little Big Horn.

The 49ers lost half their starting defensive backfield, Jimmy Johnson and Mike Simpson, for four to five weeks with shoulder separations, and running back Ken Willard for up to four weeks with a wrenched knee.

Also among the walking — or hobbling — wounded are running backs Larry Schreider and Jimmy Thomas; linebackers Frank Nunley, Ed Beard, Skip Vanderbundt, Dave Wilcox, and rookie Mike Green; tight end Ted Kwalick; defensive tackles Bob Hoskins and Earl Edwards; and offensive linemen Len Rohde and Forrest Blue.

McDowell Returns; Giants Host Pirates

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Pittsburgh, playing like the World Champs they are, calls on San Francisco tonight in the opener of a two-game set with Nelson Briles (11-5) hurling against Juan Marichal (5-13) of the Giants.

San Francisco, idle Monday, lost one player and gained one when first baseman Ed Goodson was put on the disabled list and pitcher Sam McDowell was brought off it.

Goodson will undergo surgery Wednesday on an injured knee that has hampered him all season. He still managed to hit .282 despite the injury.

"The damage is not extensive," said Dr. E.C. Sailer of Burlingame. "There is painful tendonitis of the knee cap and a rough spot on the bone, but we won't have to probe deeply."

McDowell has been on the injured list since Aug. 3 with a sore shoulder. He returns to the fray with an 8-7 record.

San Francisco is only 2-5 against Pittsburgh, the team that beat the Giants in last year's division playoff.

Youngest Male Olympian

Marinite Has U.S. Distinction

(First in a Series)

Only 16, and a senior at Terra Linda High, DeMont's rise to the top of the distance-swimming world was crammed into a year-and-one-half period that culiminated in his world-record setting performance at the United States Olympic Trials three weeks ago.

He'll swim two events in Munich — the 400-meter freestyle on Sept. 1, and the 1,500 free on Sept. 3-4. He qualified second in the 400, at the U.S. trials and won the 1,500 en route to his world record.

He gave promises of greatness, despite a chronic asthma problem, from as early as age 10 as the holder of national age-group records.

His successes temporarily tapered off for a couple of summers, while going through a rapid change of coaches, until he became settled with Don Swarts of the Marin Aquatic Club in June, 1970.

Hard winter training with Swartz finally produced tremendous improvement in the late spring, but the young coach admitted, "I knew how good he was, and I triedto force myself and my methods on him. I overcoached him." Finally, though, DeMont was well broken into the Swartz training technique, and times started to drop.

That summer, DeMont surprised some with his first National Amateur Athletic Union short course (25-yard pool) National AAUs in Dallas in April — DeMont placed third behind John Kinsella and Burton, dropping his 1,650 time in the process from 15:55.8 to 15:36.5, according to Swartz.

From then on, there was little doubt in anyone's mind that he could do it, and triumphs in the Santa Clara International and Los Angeles Invitational gave him more confidence. The only question in any doubter's mind was: would he withstand the tremendous pressure at the Olympic trials, holding off top efforts by Kinsella, Burton, and other seasoned performers?

Larry Lack, coach of the Petaluma Swim Club, stated flatly two weeks before the trials: "He can win in Munich."

Some, though, perhaps still had doubts, among them many major U.S. Newspapers, who still raved about world record holder Kinsella, listing him the one to beat.

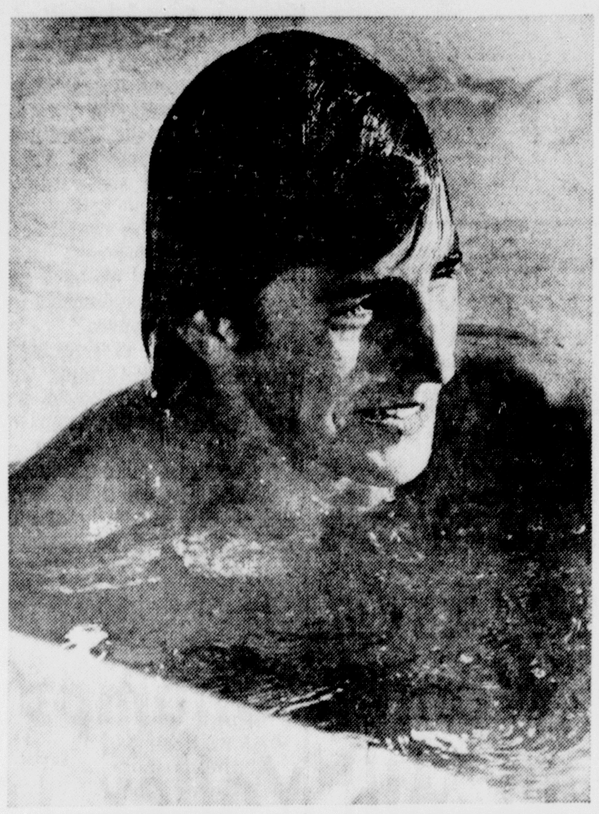
DeMont answered these challenges with a vengeance in Chicago, bettering his 1,500-meter time from 16:03.5 to 15:52.91, cracking the old world record of 15:57.1.

As an extra, he threw in a second-place finish in the 400, lowering his best from 4:06.0 to 4:01.2.

In Munich, he'll face two outstanding Australians in the 1,500, Brad Cooper (best of 15:57.6) and Graham Windeatt (16:03) as well as his U.S. teammates, Doug Northway and Burton.

The Aussies will have the advantage of not having "peaked," psychologically or physically, and not having yet "shaved down" this summer.

But somehow, one feels DeMont will answer this challenge the same way he's answered all the rest of them — with a victory.



GUNNING FOR GOLD — Sixteen-year-old Rick DeMont of Terra Linda, who went almost overnight from age-group star to world record holder, will be the youngest member of the U.S. Olympic team when he competes in the 400 and 1,500-meter freestyle swimming races in Munich.

qualifying time — a clocking of 17:06 in the 1,500-meter free. At the AAUs, he placed 14th in 16:44, and was on his way.

A weight-training program put added muscle on his lean frame this winter, and in early season meets, he showed phenomonal time drops in all his races. But still, to make the Olympic team he would have to be in the top three in his event for the whole United States — it seemed very far off.

Back in February, one team member mentioned to Swartz, "You know, Rick's probably got a good chance to win in the 1976 Olympics." Swartz replied, "Let's get him on this year's team first."

Throughout the spring season, DeMont surprised many people by clobbering highly-regarded stars: Mike Burton, Rex Favero, Hans Fassnacht, and Robin Backhaus, meanwhile dropping his 1,650-yard time in leaps and bounds. The big turning point came at the

Defensive Colts Stop Kansas City

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Ray May finally broke the ice and there was no stopping the Baltimore Colts after that.

May, a linebacker, scored Baltimore's first touchdown in three pre-season games Monday night when he scooped up a fumble and ran 16 yards for a touchdown. The score apparently lit a fire under the Colts, who were manhandled in their first two games, and they went on to upset the Kansas City Chiefs 23-17 in National Football League action.

SCORING

May's touchdown came after Baltimore took a 9-3 lead on two field goals by Jim O'Brien and one by Boris Shlapak. Norm Buliach plunged two yards for another score late in the game after Marty Domres set it up with a 42-yard pass to running back Don McCauley.

Both Kansas City touchdowns came in the last four minutes of play. John Huarte passed 52 yards to Jeff Kinney for the first TD with 3:52 remaining and Jim Otis dove over with a second left after a 26-yard pass interference penalty put the ball on the Baltimore one.

CAMPS

In news from the camps, running back Calvin Hill and tight end Billy Truax sat out Monday workouts but were expected to be ready for the Dallas Cowboys' Saturday night game against the New York Jets. Hill suffered a bruised elbow and Truax a bruised knee in Saturday night's victory over New Orleans.

Jets' Coach Weeb Ewbank plans to realign his defensive secondary after struggling to a 31-31 tie with the New York Giants Sunday. A four-way battle for the two safety spots is expected between W.K. Hicks, Gus Hollomon, Chris Farasopoulos and Phil Wise.

The Los Angeles Rams trimmed three players, including veteran quarterback Jerry Rhome.

WATSON GONE

Curt Watson, New Orleans' sixth-round pick from the University of Tennessee, was one of two players dropped. The Saints also reported that cornerback Dee Martin and kicker Charlie Durkee worked out for the first time in two weeks Monday.

Defensive tackle Mike McCoy suffered a broken bone in his foot and will be lost to the Green Bay Packers indefinitely. McCoy's foot will be in a cast for three weeks.

BUTLER HURT

The Atlanta Falcons lost runnng back Jim Butlar with a fractured cheekbone but regained the services of another back, Harmon Wages, who had missed the two previous preseason games with a knee injury.

Lee Bougess suffered a sprained knee and will be lost to Philadelphia for two weeks

'Finley Day' Cancelled; Boston Signs Westphal

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

COOS BAY, Ore. — The scheduled "Charles O. Finley Day" in Coos Bay was cancelled Monday when the controversial owner of the Oakland Athletics failed to show up. Finley's A's have a farm team here in the Northwest League.

BOSTON — Paul Westphal, standout guard for the University of Southern California the past three seasons, Monday signed a multi-year contract with the Boston Celtics of the National Basketball Association.

Golf

NEW YORK — Bruce Devlin, on the basis of his $40,000 victory in the USI Classic this past weekend, has vaulted into sixth place on the Professional Golfers Association money list with earnings of $119,598. Jack Nicklaus, who skipped the USI, is still the leader with $240,415.

Tennis

HAVERFORD, Pa. — Mal Anderson of Australia fought off two match points in the third set Monday to defeat Dick Dell of Bethesda, Md., 3-6, 6-1, 7-6, in the opening round of the 73rd Pennsylvania Lawn Tennis Championships.

Three contract pros from Lamar Hunt's world Championship of Tennis also were in the field of 64 players competing for top prize of $2,000. They were Tom Okker of Holland and Mark Cox and Roger Taylor, both of England.

Okker, seeded first here, made the second round by defeating Dale Ogden of Ft. Worth, Tex., 6-1, 4-6, 6-3.

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. — Defending champion Clark Graebner, of New York, who had reached the finals here six times, was bounced out in the first round of the 46th Eastern Grass Courts Open tennis championships Monday.

Graebner was stunned by the aggressive play of Bob McKinley of St. Ann, Mo., in the opening match of the seven-day tourney at the Orange Lawn Tennis Club. McKinley, 20-year-old brother of former national ranking star Chuck McKinley, surprised Graebner in straight

Phillies' Pitcher Carlton Has 15-Game Triumph String Ended

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

He makes no excuses, he has no complaints. He suffers defeat with the same good grace that he enjoys victory.

Pitching for the Philadelphia Phillies, who might be kindly called a pathetic team, Carlton rolled up 15 consecutive victories. On Monday night, before an enthusiastic crowd of 52,662 fans in Philadelphia, he went for No. 16.

TESTIMONIAL

The crowd—incredible for a Monday night for a last place team in August—was a testimonial to how much Carlton has meant to the club this year. In the end, his teammates let him down.

He held the Atlanta Braves to one run for 10 innings but the Phils scored only one themselves and Atlanta finally pushed across a run in the 11th inning on Mike Lum's broken-bat single with two out. That was enough for a 2-1 Atlanta victory.

Phil Niekro, who allowed the Phils nine hits in 11 innings, got the victory. Carlton, who allowed just seven hits, took the loss and is now 20-7 this year.

NO LAMENT

It was a heartbreaking way for the streak to end but Carlton isn't the kind of guy who laments the lack of hitting support.

'MY NIGHT'

Niekro said, "it was just my night, my knuckleball was better than it has been all year. It was going up, in and down, out, I didn't know what it was doing. Earl (Williams) did a super job back there."

Carlton, who hadn't lost since May 30, was hoping to eventually match the record of 19 straight victories set by Rube Marquard of the New York Giants in 1912.

In the losing effort, he struck out 10 to boost his league-leading total to 252 and he fanned Hank Aaron three times. But after he got Aaron for the second out in the 11th, Dusty Baker doubled. After Williams was intentionally walked, Lum lined his game-winning single to center. The first Brave run came in the second when Felix Millan doubled and Aaron singled.

PHILS RUN

Philadelphia got its only run in the eighth inning on doubles by Willie Montanez and Greg Luzinski. The Phils eventually loaded the bases with two out but Niekro struck out Carlton to end the threat.

In the other games, Cincinnati downed Montreal 4-1, New York topped Houston 4-2, St. Louis blanked Los Angeles 4-0 and San Diego edged Chicago 6-5.

Bob Gibson pitched a seven-hitter and hit a run-scoring double to lead the Cardinals to the victory over the Dodgers. Gibson, who is now 14-7, has won 14 of his last 16 decisions after a rocky start. It was his fourth shutout this season and the 54th of his career, the most for active National League pitchers.

Reserver catcher Bill Plummer drove in two runs with a fifth-inning single as the Reds topped the Expos on Jim McGlothlin's eight-hitter. Mike Torrez went eight innings and suffered the loss. Joe Morgan homered for Cincinnati in the first and Plummer rapped his single in the fifth for a pair of insurance runs.

BIRTHDAY

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Orioles Close In On Detroit As Dobson Three-Hits Angels

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

It obviously takes more than the four top starting pitchers in baseball and the best defensive lineup in the majors to lead the American League's Eastern division.

Boog Powell's 17th home run in the fifth inning backed Pat Dobson's three-hit pitching as the Baltimore Orioles topped the California Angels 3-1 Monday night. The victory, combined with Detroit's loss to Oakland, left the Orioles a half-game behind the divisionleading Tigers.

POWELL'S BLOW

Powell shattered a 1-1 tie with a two-run shot off losing pitcher Andy Messersmith, 3-8, after Tommy Davis had walked with two out.

The Orioles main problem this season has been hitting—or rather the lack of it.

"I've pitched much better this season than last," said Dobson, now 14-12 compared to a 16-6 record at this stage a year ago. "The big difference is runs. Our pitching has been equal to the challenge all season. We've scored 150 runs less this season than last," he added.

"Take a look around," said Powell, a 12-year veteran with the Orioles. "We have the four top starting pitchers in baseball. The lineup we put on the field is as good a defensive lineup as there is in the big leagues. Especially the infield, it's the best in the majors. What remains is a little bit of hitting. If we get that then its all over."

DOBSON WINS

Dobson won only his second game in six decisions since the All-Star break. He struck out five and walked two while stranding three Angels.

The victory was only Baltimore's third in its past nine outings.

In other American League games Oakland whipped Detroit 5-1 and Cleveland defeated Minnesota 10-3 in the only games scheduled.

FISH AND GAME

The Ducks Campaign Of Golfer Palacio

By AL GIDDINGS

Early Saturday morning, the phone started to ring, even before the morning news arrived. It was Mat Palacio Jr., noted San Rafael golfer, ready to talk about ducks. Mat, as a member of Ducks Unlimited has been carrying the ball for the bay hunters of Marin County.

He started his campaign for keeping our area open to canvasback duck hunting by writing letters last fall to everyone and anyone he could think of giving his arguments.

Last Friday, when the Fish and Game Commission met in San Francisco to set the waterfowl seasons and limits for this year, Mat was there. But with the framework of duck seasons and limits set by the Fish and Wildlife Service and the Department of the Interior, it had already been established that the canvasback season would be a closed affair, at least for this year.

The Fish and Game Commission has to operate within the federal framework, so even though liberal duck and goose seasons and limits were adopted, the canvasback hunting was kept closed. Mat was crushed, but he feels he made many good points. Thus, if things go well, possibly next year the canvasback season can be reopened. Mat needs all the help you can give him on this project.

THERE WERE A NUMBER of surprise changes in the waterfowl regulations. The California seasons will be split. The first half of the general season will start Oct. 14 and run through Dec. 20. The second half will open Dec. 27 with a bag and possession limit of seven ducks.

In the northeastern part of the state, there will be a straight 93 day season from Oct. 14 through Jan. 14, with a limit of six ducks daily and 12 in possession. Ic Southern California, south of the Techachapis, there will be a split 93 day season with the first half from Oct. 7 to Nov. 18, and the second half from Dec. 2 to Jan. 20. The Colorado River area will also have split seasons with the first half being Oct. 1 through the 23 and Nov. 12 through Jan. 20. Both areas will have the six daily, twelve in possession duck limits.

The goose seasons will run concurrently with the duck seasons with limits of six daily, six in possession, except that no more than three can be of the dark species and only one can be a Ross goose.

IN THE COLORADO RIVER area, the goose limit was set at six also, but at least four must be white.

The Black Sea Brant season will start Jan. 20 and run through Feb. 20 with a daily bag limit of four and a possession limit of eight.

The snipe and mudhen seasons will coincide with the duck seasons in the various areas. The limits on jacksnipe will be eight per day, 16 in possession. The limit on mudhens will be 25 per day, 25 in possession.

WITH THE SEASONS generally opening statewide on Oct. 14, the hunters will be far more scattered than in the recent past. Tule Lake and the Lower Klamath Basin which have always opened a week or so earlier will be relieved of the crowds of from eight to 16,000 people who came from all over the state for this early hunt. I believe it's a good deal for everyone.

Discussions have been held with thoughts of putting these areas in a lottery system. Perhaps, this year with the diminished pressures there, things will get back to normal; and the lottery system won't be needed. Even at Honey Lake, hunters were arriving a full two or three days early, to form lines of waiting hunters.

Incidentally, on Thursday, Sept. 14, Ducks Unlimited of San Francisco is having its eight annual Fall Harvest Dinner and Waterfowl Art auction at the Stanford Court Hotel. The art works of many known wildlife artists will be auctioned off all for the benefit of Ducks Unlimited. These monies have been the crux of maintaining and reclaiming the prairies of Canada for the finest duck and goose breeding areas in the world. If you are not a member of Ducks Unlimited, this is your chance to see and contribute to their efforts.

On Sept. 17, the Pacific Rod and Gun Club of San Francisco at Lake Merced is holding its annual Ducks Unlimited shoot.

Drugs Probe Row On Riva Ridge

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (UPI)—Was Kentucky Derby winner Riva Ridge drugged when he came in fourth in a recent New Jersey race?

The owner of the horse, Mrs. Helen Tweedy, told newsmen at her home in Saratoga Springs that tests she had ordered for the horse after his fourth place finish in the $100,000 Monmouth Invitational Handicap at Monmouth Park Aug. 5 turned up traces of a tranquilizer known as pheno-thiazine.

DRUG TRACES

She said a blood test taken the morning after the race, and a urine test taken one day later both turned up traces of the drug. She added it was "outrageous that anyone could and would get to the horse" before the race.

Mrs. Tweedy said the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the New Jersey State Police and the Thoroughbred Racing Protective Association were taking part in an investigation of the situation. In June, an admitted fixer testified before a House committee in Washington that he fixed races by drugging the favorite and enabling a normally slower horse to win.

TESTS REQUESTED

Mrs. Tweedy said she requested the tests because she was worried the horse might be sick because of his lethargic performance. The owner said she was "astonished" to learn the results of the tests."

Riva Ridge's racing record has puzzled racing observers this year. In eight starts, he has either won or finished out of the money—five firsts and three fourths.

TESTIMONY

In testimony last June in Washington before tha House Crime Committee, admitted horse race fixer Bobby Byrne explained how he took advantage of the fact that only the first two finishers are tested by drugging the favorite to let a slower horse win. He specifically mentioned Riva Ridge.

"I could take a wagon horse today pulling a wagon and administer this drug to Riva Ridge and this wagon horse would beat Riva Ridge on any given day with this drug," Byrne told the committee.

Mrs. Tweedy said that since her father, utilities executive Christopher Chenery, started his stable in 1938, there never has been any evidence that any of their horses have been drugged.

Selby Five-Hitter Paces MacArthur's

In other games, Mary Brookes edged Sons of Sicily, 7-6, Ad Lite routed Perry's 15-4, and Snap-On-Tools defeated Timmer, 7-4.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

U. S. Bonds, Notes Offer Fair Income

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. We are interested in a safe, insured investment for $30,000 which we will realize from the sale of our home. A fair rate of return, rather than growth, from investments other than stocks or mutual funds is what we seek. — J.L.

A. There are several choices open to you and a combination of them might be the best solution. First of all, U.S. Savings Bonds Series H yielding 5½ per cent a year (compounded semiannually) for the first 5 years and 6 per cent for the remaining 5, are a safe, guaranteed holding. These bonds are sold at par value and are redeemable after 6 months on written request also at parvalue. Interest is paid by check semiannually. Purchase is limited, however, to $5,000 per person per year.

Marketable U.S. government securities are another choice. Treasury Notes maturing in from 1 to 7 years or Treasury Bonds, which have no limitations on maturity, yield up to 6.2 per cent for the notes and 6.4 per cent for the bonds. These highest returns are available on the 1984, 6⅜ per cent bond and the 6¼ per cent 8/79 note. Unlike the nonmarketable Series H bonds, marketable Treasury notes and bonds are subject to fluctuation in price. Thus, if these are sold prior to maturity, there is no guarantee that you would receive either your purchase price or the face value. On the other hand, if interest rates drop, these securities may trade at a premium over face value.

The third type of investment which fits your requirement is bank term certificates. Two-year term certificates generally pay 6 per cent and are insured by one of the federal or state saving account insurance corporations.

Carl K. Schieck
Banker Retires

Longtime Bank Chief To Retire

Carl K. Schieck of San Rafael will retire this month as executive vice president of Security Pacific Bank, ending a 47-year banking career in San Francisco.

A native of San Francisco and a 53-year resident of San Rafael, Schieck served as president for Pacific National Bank prior to the merger of Security First National Bank and Pacific National Bank in 1968.

He graduated from Mount Tamalapis Military Academy and began his banking career in 1925 with the Ameircan Bank in San Francisco, which subsequently merged with the Mercantile Trust Co. to form the American Trust Co.

He became associated with the former Pacific National Bank through the acquisition of City National in May, 1929. He rose through the ranks and was named president of Pacific National Bank in January of 1962. Three years later, he got the additional title of chief executive officer.

Upon the merger of Security First National and Pacific National in 1968, Schieck was appointed executive vice president of Security Pacific.

Oil Issues Help Market At Opening

NEW YORK (UPI)—Paced by oil issues, the market moved sharply upward during the first two hours today in fairly active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

There was little in the news background to spark the advance. An analyst noted gasoline and heating oil and supplies are shrinking faster than expected and this should make some oil issues attractive, according to a Wall Street Journal story.

Prices were only slightly higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. Dome Petroleum was the most active issue, up 1-8 at 42 5-8 on 38,300 shares.

Other strong Big Board oils included Atlantic Richfield and Ohio Standard, up 3 1-8 apiece; Mobil Oil 2, Jersey Standard 1 7-8, California Standard 1 1-4, Natomas 1, Ashland Oil 3-4, and Phillips Petroleum 5-8.

Some glamors, neglected in the past few days as attention shifted to the cyclicals, were gainers. Corning Glass advanced 2, Polaroid 1 3-4, and Curtiss-Wright 1 1-2. Upjohn, however, lost 2 1-2.

In the electronics and computers, IBM gained 4 and Motrola 1 3-8.
